

Proclamation

- WHEREAS: Betty Fieblger has spent the last six years of her career at Eldorado Behavioral Learning Center; and
- WHEREAS: Through her great secretarial capabilities--her efficiency and organization--she has managed to complete innumerable tasks while keeping everyone's backside out of a sling; and
- WHEREAS: While keeping track of all the Center's staff, Betty has also managed to oversee the students, and make certain they were in class where and when they were supposed to be; and
- WHEREAS: Betty has earned everyone's undying gratitude with her typing skills, and her willingness to type for all even though she didn't have to do so; and
- WHEREAS: Betty's competence at the Center is surpassed only by her potluck dinner planning, where her food is always a highlight (and a great tummy pleaser!); and
- WHEREAS: The students at Eldorado Behavioral Learning Center appreciate and warmly respond to Betty, probably partly because she has proven her commitment and dedication to them by rising at 5 a.m.--even in the cold and dead of Minnesota winter--to be on the school bus at 6 a.m.; and
- WHEREAS: Her loyalty to the Center, its staff and students has never been questioned, except when cabin time approaches in the spring, and she disappears with Don to their weekend hideaway; and
- WHEREAS: Betty is one of Minnesota's educational system's finest employees, and she will be missed by all after her retirement;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Rudy Perpich, Governor of the State of Minnesota, do hereby proclaim June 5 to be
