POPULATION—MINNESOTA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The Territory of Minnesota was organized in 1849 from the area now comprising the State of Minnesota and parts of the present States of North and South Dakota. In May, 1858, Minnesota, with boundaries as at present, was admitted to the Union as the thirty-second State. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,563,953, which represents an increase of 176,828, or 7.4 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 80,858 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 31.7, as compared with 29.5 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Minnesota from 1850, the year in which the population of the Territory of Minnesota was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Minnesota is shown by counties, townships, cities, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 13 cities and 1 village in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Minneapolis, the largest city in Minnesota, has a population of 464,356, which represents an increase of 83,774, or 22.0 per cent, over its population in 1920. St. Paul, the capital and second city in the State, has a population of 271,606, and Duluth, the third city, has 101,463 inhabitants. The next three cities, in the order of their population, are St. Cloud, Winona, and Rochester. Three cities in this population group, Brainerd, Albert Lea, and South St. Paul, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 87 counties of Minnesota from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. One of these counties, Lake of the Woods, was organized in 1922 from a part of Beltrami County. Of the 85 counties, the boundaries of Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Minnesota comprise townships, independent cities and villages, and one borough. The great majority of the townships in the State are organized, but in the sparsely settled counties there are still a number of unorganized townships, including a few for which no population was returned in 1930. In addition to the villages which form primary divisions of the counties, there are other villages which constitute secondary divisions. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and incorporated villages for the last three censuses. The population of the villages which constitute secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the townships in which the villages are respectively located. Italics are also used for the figures representing the population at censuses prior to 1930 of places which have recently been made independent, to indicate that the figures (having already been counted once) are not to be added in with those for the townships and other independent areas to make the county total. Where a village occupies two or more townships or parts of townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION

Changes in the boundaries of townships, cities, and villages, between 1920 and 1930, are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.
