City of Cambridge, Minnesota
Additional information related to
Municipal Construction and Development Fee Revenue
And Expenses Annual Report
2007 Report

- (1) The City's Long Range Financial Plan calls for an accumulation of infrastructure fees until 2011 when we plan to expend approximately $1.7 million of infrastructure funds to bring water and sewer to an area currently not serviced by utilities.
- (2) The City of Cambridge views the functions of development and building permit activities as integrally related. Issuance of building permits does not occur unless certain up-front development activities occur. Therefore, we believe it is more appropriate to consider section III and IV of this report together when evaluating relationships of fee revenue to expenditures related to the generation of the fees. When adding these sections together, fees total $389,354 and expenditures related to the generation of fees total $1,097,301. This displays a significant level of taxpayer subsidy to encourage growth in the City of Cambridge.

We also believe that it would be a significant deterrent to economic development within the City of Cambridge if we were to bring the fees charged during the development phase more in line with the expenditure levels associated with the cost of development. We believe that if development fees were raised significantly that it would discourage inquiries of potential developers.
