Dedication

One hundred years ago the 9th Minnesota Legislature ratified that great guarantee of justice which provides in part:

"No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

(Amendment XIV, Section 1, Constitution of the United States)

To the memory of those who a century ago served so well the cause of justice and to the Senators and Representatives of the Minnesota Legislature who now serve the same cause during the 65th Legislative Session and the 1967-1968 bienium, this manual is gratefully dedicated.

Preface

The 1967-1968 Minnesota Manual continues to tell the story of Minnesota.

Over the years the Manual has evolved from a pocket-sized handbook for the state's lawmakers into an authoritative reference book on our state government. The law requires that this issue follow the same general pattern as previous issues. Within that broad directive an effort has been made to improve its general appearance by the application of modern principles of design so that the material presented would be in a form easy to read, pleasing to the eye and appropriate to the subject matter. Finally within the broad objective of making available the important information about our state to its citizens, both design and content were subjected to the rule of economy of space to avoid prohibitive cost or bulk.

Compiling a book so comprehensive in scope would be impossible without the support and cooperation of hundreds of people. I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to all of them.

JOSEPH L. DONOVAN

MINNESOTA AND ITS PEOPLE

Physiographic Features

Minnesota is centered along the northern border of the nation astride the watershed of three major seas. It is a large state, twelfth in rank of the fifty. Within its borders, stretching from the tip of the Northwest Angle jutting into Canada to the Iowa border 405 miles away are a variety of environments from the spruce and fir of the north to the tall grass prairie of the south. Broad in the north, 300 miles from the Arrowhead to the Red River, and narrow in the center, 180 miles from the St. Croix to the Dakotas it encloses 84,068 square miles almost identical to the combined area of England, Scotland and Wales.

The 53,803,520 acres of varied topography encloses a rich land that in the past supported the fur trader of the forest, the bonanza wheat farmer of the plains and the miner of the granitic hills. In the mosaic of culture and economy which distinguishes the state today are reflected the changing historic sequence of yesterday. As the farmer succeded the trader and the voyageur so the urban worker multiplies and succeeds the small town artisan and the country storekeeper.

Minnesota still possesses much of its forest and mineral resources as well as its great soil fertility.

Its soil fertility is still one of the major resources of the state. That fertility is so marked that Minnesota is one of the great agricultural areas of the nation. It was the fabled fertility of the prairie which lured to Minnesota the largest proportion of its early settlers and they made up the ancestors of our present population whether they now be urban or rural. The great migrations and spread of settlement in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century remains the major source of our great urban population growth today.

The fertility of the prairie and the deciduous woodland had its origin in varied courses. Most important was the glacial deposition caused by the ice which came down from the northwest and the northeast, leveling off many high points of land, and, when receding, depositing many feet of earth which in the centuries since has produced the rich black and brown top soil.

Over much of the state the glacial meltwater collected in lakes, much larger and more numerous than the myriad 10,000 left to us now. Vegetation growing and decaying in them, deltas of streams filling them, resulted in the slow accretion of soil, high in organic material, being deposited inch by inch over the centuries. No less important was the grass and other plant life which grew on the land during the same and subsequent periods. Year after year, roots and stems and leaves took all the gifts which nature afforded them and turned them into nutrient soil element which gave Minnesotans a giant bank on which they drew large dividends during the first century of their agricultural use of the land.

A current problem of great importance, which Minnesotans are just beginning to appreciate as requiring concerted action, is that of conserving and improving that bank account of fertility so that it may provide continued dividends in the future.

Not all of Minnesota possesses this fertile soil. In fact, there are northeastern portions of the state which had their top soil removed by the glaciers for subsequent deposit to the south. Many times bare rock protrudes in the area. Sometimes sand and gravel constitute most of the surface of the land.

In this more rocky land, where grass did not grow readily, trees found a place in which to thrive. So it was that many of the early immigrants came not with seed and a plow but with an ax and a peavey. The forests which covered better than a third of the state waved an invitation to Paul Bunyan and his crew with the result that from 1835 to 1935 billions of board feet of pine lumber moved out of this region into other parts of the state and nation.

What has replaced the Norway and White pine trees are birch and aspen, spruce and fir, willow and jack pine. This seems a loss to the state's subsequent generations. In part it is, and because such is the case reforestation in terms of hundreds of millions of pine seedlings is under way, to replace those trees man has removed. That work has only begun.

Even as the replanting process has been instituted, large investments of time and money have been made to cause the smaller and faster growing trees, which have grown up among the pine stumps, to serve the use of man. The paper pulp plant has in large degree replaced the great band saw mills of 1900. Wood is ground to fiber, mixed with chemicals, and so reconstituted as to serve multiple applications in an ever changing market. Timber growth continues, as it will for sometime to come, to be the dominant surface feature of northeastern Minnesota.

Related to both soil and forest and their uses is the availability of water. Minnesota is quite unique among the state in its claim to being a continental divide. Not far from Hibbing, Minnesota, the Geologic Survey has found a point at which some of the rainwater which falls, flows north to the Hudson Bay and the Arctic area, some flows east to the Atlantic via the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River, and some south via the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico.

This location at the headwaters has offered many advantages to Minnesotans. The early explorers and fur traders had a network of water highways at their disposal. The sportsman and tourist of today make much the same use of the streams but with varying motives and objectives. They put them to good use for hunting, fishing and general recreation.

With respect to topography, more outstanding than Minnesota's streams are its lakes. They are variously numbered from 10,000 to 22,000. No one knows for sure how many there are because the state is still not completely mapped and the definition of what constitutes a lake varies. There is only one other state in the nation which can contest Minnesota's dominance in the number of lakes possessed, or the proportion or acreage of surface within her borders covered by lake water.

These lakes particularly dominant in that portion of the state formerly noted for its pine forests, are usually clear, cool waters, with sandy beaches, forest clad shores, and wild life found on, near, and under their surfaces.

Minnesota waters are by no means limited to rivers and lakes. Probably of equal importance are the waters found underground. While the supply varies greatly both as to depth, amount, and quality according to what part of the state is drilled for water, most of Minnesota has, within ready reach of the well driller's tools, good water, cool, clean, and in great quantity. This supply has done much in the past and will do much more in the future to assure the state of healthy people, thriving trade, and expanding industry.

Minnesota's climate is warm in summer, cold in winter, marked by frequent change due to cyclonic storms with precipitation varying from about twenty to thirty inches of rainfall a year. Precipitation comes to the state in humid air masses from the Gulf of Mexico. As a result, the southeastern portion of the state has considerably heavier rainfall than the northwestern portion. The average temperature is about 14.6° in January in the Twin Cities region and about 74.1° in July in the same area, with annual rainfall in the 24 to 26 inch range.

Minnesota's mineral wealth is more significant in terms of quantity than variety. Minnesota is unable to claim any great number of minerals of merchantable value. The state has no precious metals, no coal, no petroleum or natural gas, no salt, sulphur, or other raw material except peat and limestone for chemical operations.

What Minnesota does have, however, is an almost unlimited supply of iron and taconite, commonly considered civilization's most essential element. When the glaciers scraped off the surface of northern Minnesota, they exposed great deposits of iron ore on the Mesabi Range. The extraction of that ore, in terms of billions of tons, has done much to change the history of the state, nation, and humanity in general.

Modern civilization is based upon steel. Steel is made through the use of coal, limestone, and various other elements of which iron ore is the most important. Minnesota has only the iron ore, but this it has had in almost limitless amount.

Fortunately for the nation, the state's best ore was found just when it was most needed to supply that period of growth, and military necessity, extending from 1880 to the present. Most of the known deposits of the best ore have now been depleted.

Remaining in the state, are unmeasured billions of tons of low grade ores, much of which is termed taconite. The latter is now being made merchantable through the billion dollar beneficiation plants erected on or near the shores of Lake Superior. Due to many changes, and cost involved in transporting and processing the low grade ore, Minnesota no longer dominates the iron ore market to the extent that it once did. Something like forty to fifty per cent of the steel mills' demands are now satisfied by Minnesota ore rather than the seventy per cent of a previous day. However, the capital investment involved, labor employed, and assurance of long continued availability of supply do much to make this low grade ore of future value to the state and nation comparable to the higher grade ore already removed.

In addition to iron ore, the state possesses an even larger volume of sand and gravel, as much peat as is claimed by all the other forty-nine states combined, and minor quantities of titanium, manganese, anorthosite, and other elements. Most of these require further exploration and research to make them of significant consequence to Minnesota's people.

Founding Pioneers

The poet has said of those who came first to learn from the Indians who lived here in prehistoric times, "The cowards never started and the weak died on the way." Certainly they possessed qualities of courage and competence to make them truly a highly selective group.

First came the French Voyageurs, a happy-hearted, somewhat boisterous, and pretentious people. With indomitable confidence and perseverance they penetrated the wilderness which was, brought metal tools and weapons, new diseases and ruin to the Indians who commonly welcomed them, and established trading posts which later grew into cities long before some of the English colonies on the Atlantic seacoast were even named.

The romance of these French and their half-breed descendants has never been adequately told. They were more heroic by far than the cowboys of the Old West. They made trails where there were none before. They brought tall tales as well as furs to ocean ports in the east. They wrote no books but they guided the missionaries and explorers and engineers who did, and so played a mighty part in opening the state to those who came for purposes other than getting animal skins from which beaver hats could be made. To the extent that any rule existed, they ruled this land from 1680 until the early part of the nineteenth century.

Names such as Radisson, La Verendrye, Lac qui Parle, LeSueur, Duluth, Hennepin, and Nicollet are only a few of the many which sprinkle the early pages of Minnesota history during this period of French dominance. While it is true they destroyed a great many fur bearing animals which have never been fully replaced, they left much behind them of permanent value.

No land as rich in romance, in surface values, and in natural resources as Minnesota's was reported to be by fur traders and early explorers could be left undeveloped indefinitely. Beginning with the establishment of Minnesota as a territory in 1847, as a state in 1858, and with the passage of the federal Homestead Act in 1862 a new and giant influx of people was noted.

The wave of people on the march consisted of three major types. The first, and largest in number, were the farmers from the states to the east, and in increasing degree from the countries of northern Europe, particularly Germany and the Scandinavian nations. Second, there were the lumberjacks who came from Maine, Michigan, and Wisconsin to harvest our pine. Third, there were the "Yankee Traders," the newspaper editors, lawyers, doctors, artisans, and storekeepers who came to serve the interests of the farmers and woodsmen.

The farmers tended to settle in southern and western Minnesota. The wood cutters went to the pine lands in the northeastern half of the state. The tradesmen and those in the professions went wherever their services were called for. Wherever they went, those who came here to help create a state out of what was a wilderness area found reason to write back to the folks living in their former homes and thereby do a good job of recruiting.

By reputation, Minnesota is not only a land of snow and cold but also of the Swedish. It is an undeserved reputation in both cases. Our immigrants did include uncounted numbers of people of Swedish descent, but also almost as many Norwegians, and a large number of Danes. There were however, more Germans than any other single nationality and, not entirely lost in the mass, there was a liberal sprinkling of Irish, English, Welsh, Belgians, Icelanders, and perhaps a score of other nationalities. In the last half of the nineteenth century Minnesota became one of the most, if not the most, cosmopolitan of all the states.

They were all welcomed, even to the extent that the vote was given to some who had not completed their applications for United States citizenship. While those who tilled the land showed a stronger inclination to stay put than did the other two types previously referred to, the common characteristics of all three was that of patient and persistent industry. As a group they realized that what they found here gave them reason to believe that, for them, they had reached their Shangri La. Here they found no gold but they did find other natural resources of such abundance and quality as to cause them not only to stay but to apply with diligence and fervor their very considerable talents to the creation of homes, business enterprises, and government institutions.

They and their descendants have given of themselves more than they have taken from this land. The sturdy energy of the Germans, the love of learning of the Scandinavians, the laughter of the Irish, the song of the Welsh, the shrewdness of the English, and the driving force of the Yankees have combined to make of the Minnesota melting pot a cauldron of purpose and progress.

Those who constitute the make-up of Minnesota's present population show by the names of their communities, as well as by their own family names, the background from which they came. Names of municipalities such as Askov, Finland, Halstad, Hanska, Karlstad, Lindstrom, Mora, Oslo, and Upsala bespeak of Scandinavia, as Hamburg, New Germany, New Ulm, and Pierz do of Germany. Grand Marais, Duluth, LaCrescent, Laporte, Roseau, St. Cloud, St. Peter, and our capital city of St. Paul testify to the French influence as Bemidji, Biwabik, Calumet, Mahtomedi, Shakopee, Sleepy Eye, Wabasha, and Winona evidence the Indian tradition.

Minnesota takes pride in this inheritance knowing that the amalgam of nationalities represents an element of strength just as other metals added to iron and copper and gold give quality to the pure metal no matter how worthy the pure metal is in itself.

Minnesota's Economy

The pictures of Minnesota which adorned the pages of the school geography texts of an earlier generation no longer give a true representation of Minnesota today. Those pictures were of puffing steam tractors pulling a gang of a dozen plows through the stubble of giant wheat fields.

While agriculture rates high in Minnesota industry, most of our people live and work, not on farms, but in cities of various size. Nearly one half of our people live in the urbanized area of the Twin Cities. Here 1,513,023 of our 3,413,864 citizens, according to the 1960 census, make their homes and win their daily bread, usually in employment not directly associated with agriculture. Cities of 2,500 or more, not in the immediate Twin City region, contain some 609,543 residents. Our rural population is still considerable, 1,291,298, but only a declining fraction of these actually farm the land. Many of them live in municipalities of less than 2,500 where one of the principal functions is that of servicing the interests and needs of farm families.

Changing times and their effect on the occupation of Minnesota's wage earners is shown by employment figures. These show that approximately 958,400 Minnesotans are employed in nonagricultural pursuits, with 228,400 in manufacturing, 53,400 in construction, 28,900 in mining and quarrying, 25,000 in public utilities, 53,900 in transportation, 238,000 in trade, 49,500 in finance and real estate, 142,300 in services and 152,700 in government. Those regularly occupied in farming number some 155,600. Recent trends indicate a fairly rapid increase in those engaged in trades, services and manufacturing and a continuing decrease in farm workers.

The impact of the transfer of emphasis on other than agricultural activity is represented by other census figures. The value added by industry totals some $2.5 billion a year while cash farm receipts are over billion dollars less, at 1.4 billion dollars.

It must not be concluded that agriculture is becoming of relatively little importance to our people. Chief among the products of industry are those such as meat, butter, canned, frozen, and otherwise processed vegetables, and scores of other items which owe their origin to Minnesota's fertile acres.

The state ranks fifth among the fifty in the value of her agricultural products and is at or near the top in the production of foods as varied as honey, cheese, flax, milk, corn, soybeans, oats and peas. Minnesota ranks first in the nation in the production of butter, dry milk, Christmas trees and oats; second in honey production, turkeys raised and sweet corn processing; third in milk and egg production and in green pea processing; and fourth in cheese.

Other than processed foods, our manufacturing plants operate extensively in the production of machinery of various types, particularly of agricultural application, and in scientific instruments, printing and publishing, beer, electrical machinery, and plastics. The Twin City area was first known for the lumber which came from the saw mills, then for flour, and is now taking high and rising rank in the field of electronics, presently ranking fourth in the nation.

There would appear to be a clear cut pattern in process with respect to the economic trends of the state. That pattern involves fewer but larger and more productive and valuable farms, the increasing size of our cities, more in the way of service trades and professions, which supply their benefits to farm and city folk alike, and the processing of goods for the markets of the nation. In this processing, there is emphasis on and expansion in those end products which, such as electronic and plastic goods, call for and provide a high proportion of labor investment in contrast with the value of the raw material and with the weight and size of the end product being low in relation to its market price. By concentrating in these fields it is possible to supply remunerative employment to the well educated, stable, and healthy folk who make up our labor force, and whose superiority in these respects make it possible to meet the competition of other areas located closer to the larger centers of population.

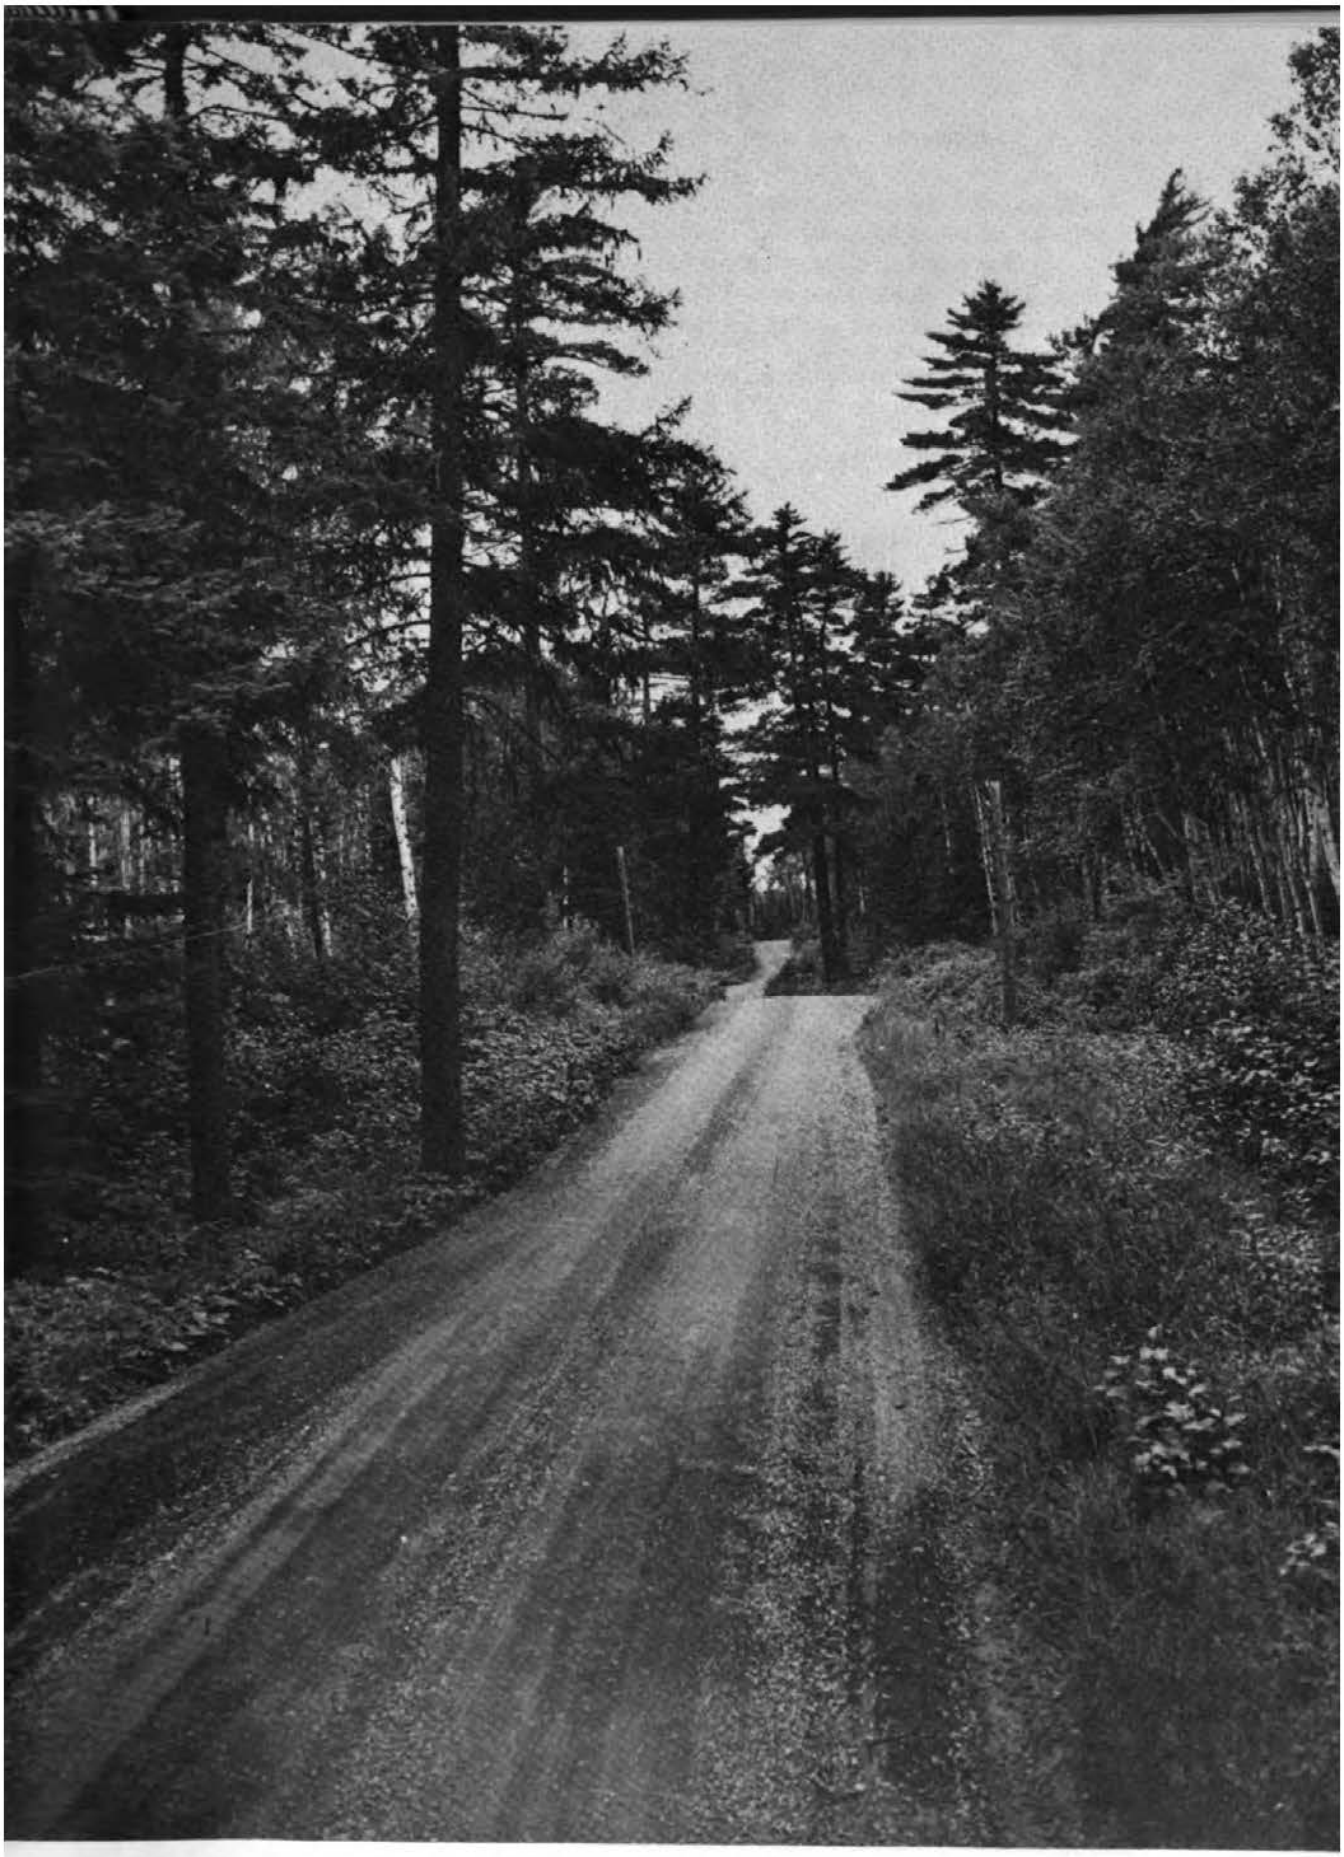

The ability of Minnesota's labor and management to compete in highly finished and complicated equipment has only recently been discovered. In the last 20 years massive progress has been recorded. The billions of dollars now being invested in such types of enterprise is the result of many factors. Not least among these is the conscious effort being made by hundreds of the state's small communities to engage in effective self-help programs of an economic nature. Just as they at one time extended themselves to invite the best of farm folks to settle on their vacant acres, they now establish business development corporations to foster the growth of community industrial enterprise.

The Forward March of Minnesota

The social and economic well being of Minnesota's people, which has been reflected in previous pages, has originated from many causes, some of which, such as the state's natural resources and the character and competence of its people, have been briefly noted. Not to be overlooked is the influenc of Minnesota's educational institutions which have served as stimulants to that progress.

When our pioneer forefathers came to the state they lived in homes made of logs or of blocks of sod cut from the tough prairie turf. Money was hard to come by, for taxes or any other application. One expense they authorized at the earliest possible date. That was a frame school house which could be used as a church, town hall, and social center as well as the seat of learning.

In the century since these small rectangular schools began to dot the landscape of the new state, startling advancements have been made. Each succeeding generation has resolved that it both must and would, supply to the generation following a better education than they had themselves received. It has not been easy to maintain that resolution. Sometimes incomes have decreased, disaster of some nature has struck, and educational costs have risen to what have seemed prohibitive heights. Through it all, a consistent policy of providing Minnesota youth with the tools of learning required to make them competitive wage earners and intelligent citizens has been maintained.

As a result, nearly every Minnesotan, young or not so young, now has within his reach and grasp, primary, secondary, and higher education. He can fit himself, if he will, for what he wishes to do and is capable of doing, regardless of the nature of his interests and aptitudes. If he lives in the country, a motor bus takes him to high school. Should he wish to operate a resort, become a doctor, learn to be an artist, print a newspaper, specialize in electronics or ballistics or nearly any other means of usefully applying his talents, there is an institution or course of study provided for him. He may have to pay part of the cost of that education but it is made available to him by private schools or by tax-supported public schools.

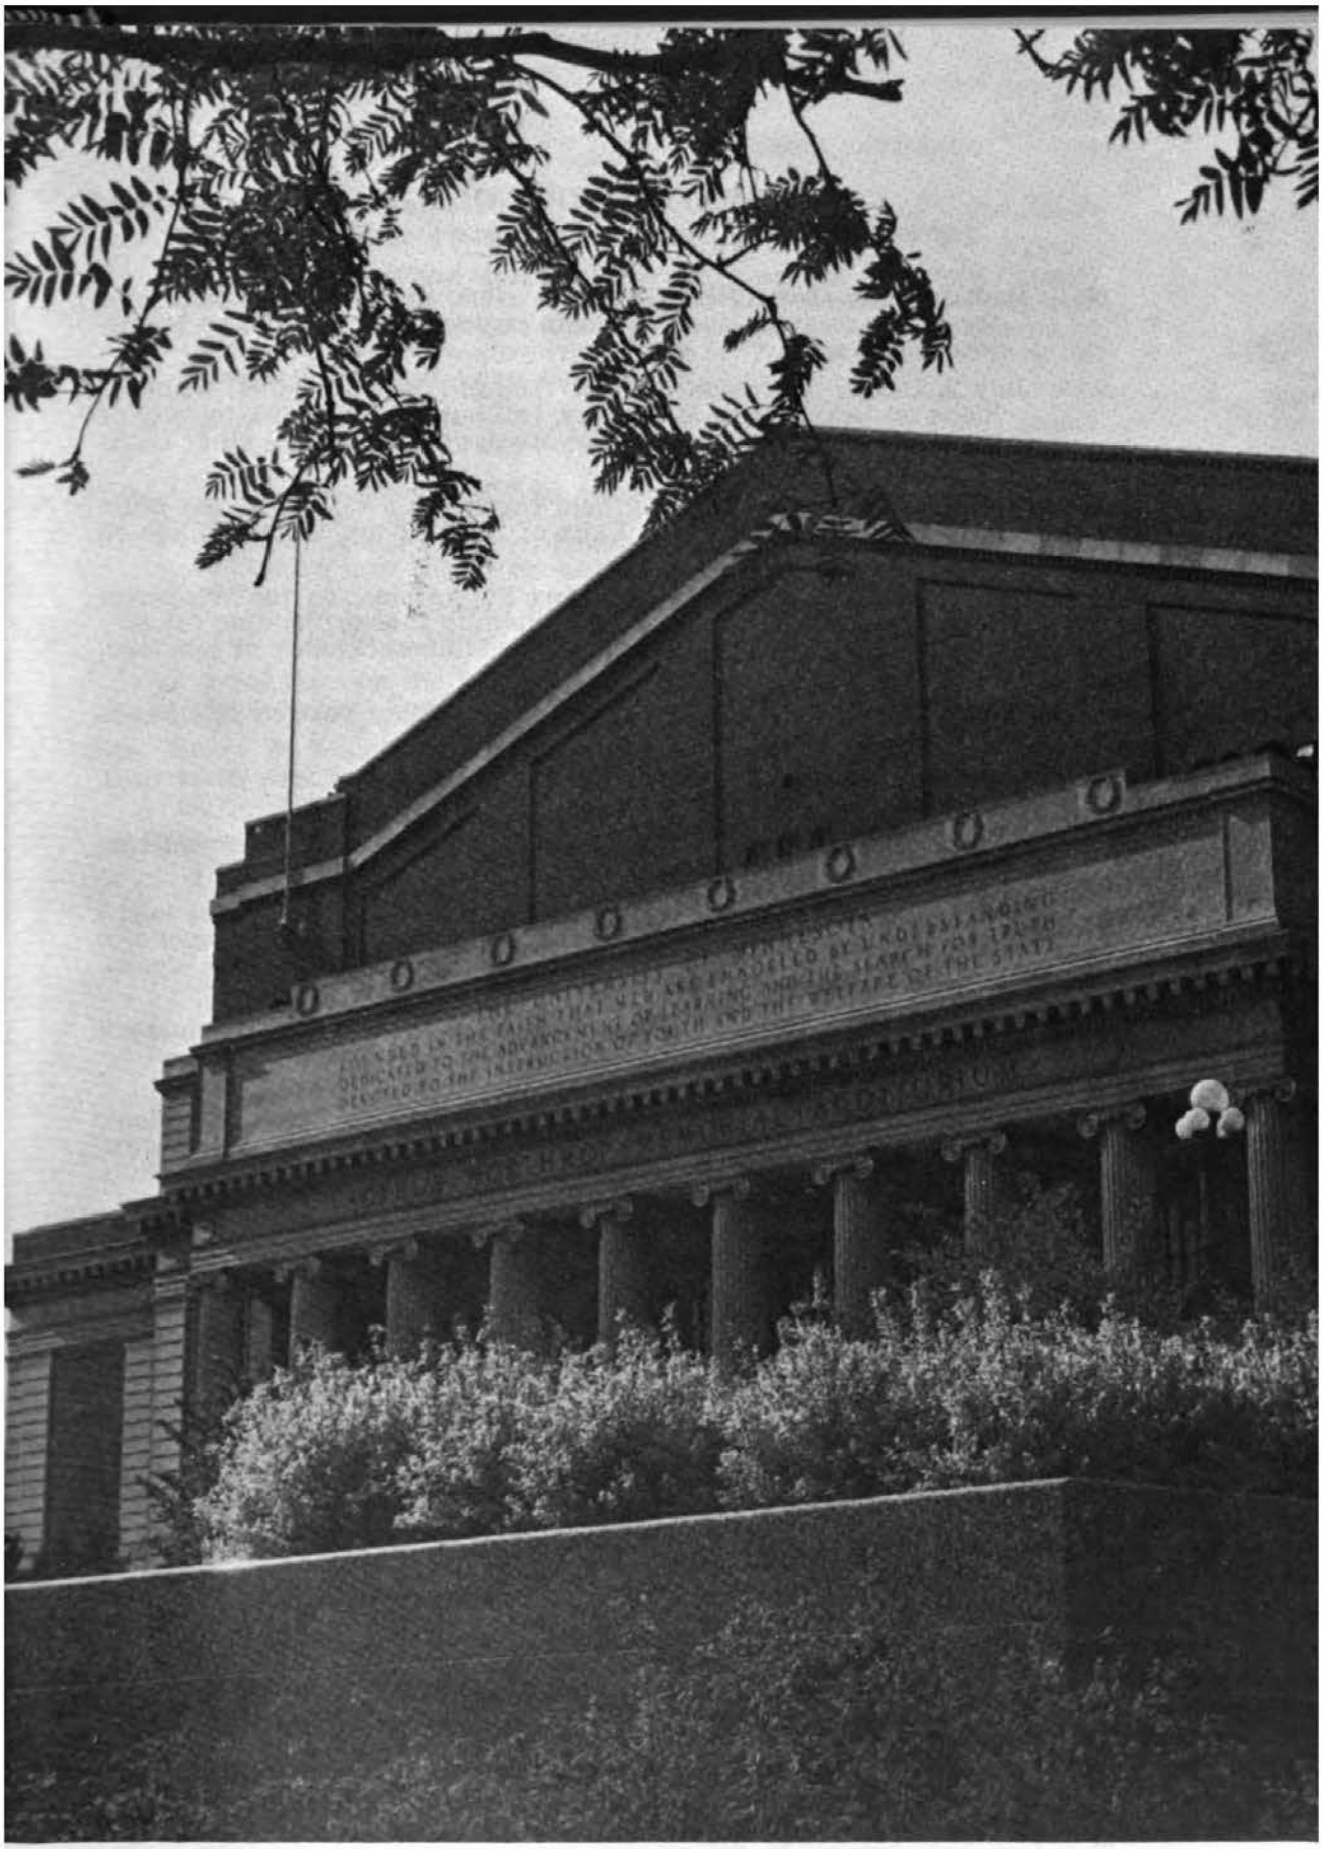

The University of Minnesota is one of the ranking institutions of higher education in the nation as it certainly is one of the largest (four campuses, 42,000 students), ranking third in the nation in number of bachelor's degrees conferred. The graduate school and the research laboratories in medicine and technology are world renowned and with the humanities and social science departments train hundreds of foreign scholars each year. Private colleges, considerable in number, are of equal value to our youth. The biggest, newest, and most used buildings in most of our villages and cities are the schools which our primary and teenage boys and girls attend. Those schools, and the youth attending them, represent the hope and faith of Minnesotans in themselves and their land.

One of the recent developments noted in Minnesota has been the purposeful and planned efforts, on a community level, to provide an opportunity for these young people to continue to live in their home area should they wish to do so. They cannot continue to live there or in any part of Minnesota if there are not enough jobs. As has been previously noted, the realization of community responsibility has moved hundreds of our municipalities to set up business development corporations in which much volunteer time and effort and some money is invested in the encouragement of industrial or other type of economic growth.

Perhaps the most distinctive feature of Minnesota life today is the extent and degree to which those living in the state enjoy the out-of-doors. More fishing licenses, well over a million a year, are sold in Minnesota than in any other state. In proportion to population, Minnesotans own the most boats. The Friday afternoon, and Saturday morning exodus from the state's cities suggests a mass migration. While commercial forms of recreation such as major league baseball and football, bowling and other forms of organized sport have participation at least equal to that found elsewhere, the unorganized enjoyment of outdoor life in fishing, swimming, skating, boating, picknicking, hunting, and hiking definitely marks Minnesotans apart.

MINNESOTA CHRONOLOGY

of Some Leading Events in the History of the State

1654 Radisson and Groseilliers, French traders, made an expedition into the West, reaching the Wisconsin region and possibly the Minnesota country.

1679 July 2, Daniel Greysolon DuLhut (Duluth) held a council with the Sioux on the shore of Mille Lacs. DuLhut, in July, 1680, by way of the St. Croix River, reached the Mississippi and met Father Louis Hennepin.

1680 Father Hennepin, after being held captive in a village of the Mille Lacs Sioux, discovered the Falls of St. Anthony, which he named for his patron saint.

1689 May 8, Nicholas Perrot, at his Fort St. Antoine, on the Wisconsin shore of Lake Pepin, laid formal claim to the surrounding country for France. He also built a fort on the Minnesota shore of this lake, near its outlet.

1695 Pierre Charles Le Sueur built a fort or trading post on Isle Pelee, now Prairie Island, above Lake Pepin.

1700 Le Sueur established Fort L'Huillier, on the Blue Earth River near the mouth of the Le Sueur.

1727 The French established Fort Beauharnois near the site of Frontenac on Lake Pepin, with the Sieur de La Perriere as commander.

1731 Pierre de Varennes La Vérendrye established on the present north boundary of Minnesota two trading posts, Fort St. Pierre, near the mouth of Rainy Lake, and Fort St. Charles, on Lake of the Woods, within the present area of Minnesota.

1736 June 6, the eldest son of La Verendrye, Father Aulneau, and nineteen French voyageurs were massacred by a war party of Sioux on an island in Lake of the Woods.

1745 The Chippewa won the most decisive battle in the war with the Sioux at the great Sioux village of Kathio on the western shore of Mille Lacs. The Sioux were eventually driven west onto the Great Plains by the Chippewa.

1763 By the Treaty of Versailles, France ceded the part of Minnesota east of the Mississippi to England, the country west of the river having been ceded to Spain the previous year.

1784 The Northwest Company was conducting extensive fur-trading operations in the Minnesota country with headquarters at Grand Portage.

1797 David Thompson, a trader for the Northwest Company, mapped the Minnesota area.

1800 May 7, Minnesota east of the Mississippi became part of Indiana as a result of the division of Ohio.

1803 April 30, Minnesota west of the Mississippi, for the preceding forty years in possession of Spain as a part of Louisiana, was ceded to the United States by Napoleon Bonaparte, who had just obtained it from Spain.

1809 Minnesota east of the Mississippi became part of Illinois Territory.

1812 The Sioux, Chippewa, and Winnebago, under the leadership of hostile traders, joined the British during the war. The Red River colony was established by Lord Selkirk. June 4, Minnesota west of the Mississippi was included in Missouri Territory.

1817 The American Fur Company, under the leadership of John Jacob Astor, began trading operations in the Minnesota country.

1819 Minnesota east of the Mississippi became a part of Crawford County, Michigan. Fort St. Anthony (renamed Fort Snelling in 1825) was established, beginning as a post at Mendota under the command of Colonel Henry Leavenworth. Major L. Taliaferro was appointed Indian agent at the new post.

1820 The cornerstone of Fort. St. Anthony was laid September 10. Colonel Josiah Snelling took command of Fort St. Anthony on August 1.

1823 The first steamboat arrived at Fort Snelling on May 10. Major Stephen H. Long explored the Minnesota River, the Red River Valley, and the northern frontier. Giacomo C. Beltrami explored the region near the source of the Mississippi.

1825 The dividing line between the Chippewa and Sioux was agreed upon at Prairie du Chien.

1826 A great flood on the Red River forced part of the Selkirk colony to move to Fort Snelling.

1832 Henry R. Schoolcraft discovered the source of the Mississippi and named it Lake Itasca. It had been known earlier to Indians and traders as Elk Lake.

1834 Minnesota west of the Mississippi was attached to Michigan.

1836 The territory of Wisconsin was organized embracing the whole area of Minnesota. Joseph N. Nicollet began his explorations in Minnesota.

1837 Governor Dodge of Wisconsin made a treaty at Fort Snelling with the Chippewa, by which they ceded all their pine lands on the St. Croix and its tributaries. A treaty was also signed at Washington, D. C. with representatives of the Sioux for their lands east of the Mississippi. These treaties led the way to the first settlements within the area of Minnesota.

1838 Franklin Steele established a claim at the Falls of St. Anthony. Pierre Parrant built a shanty and settled on the present site of St. Paul, then called "Pig's Eye."

1841 The "Chapel of St. Paul" was built and consecrated, giving the name to the future capital of the state.

1848 May 29, Wisconsin was admitted to the Union, leaving the area of Minnesota east of the Mississippi without a government. August 26, the "Stillwater convention" took measures for a separate territorial organization, and asked that the new territory be named Minnesota. October 30, H. H. Sibley was elected delegate to Congress.

1849 The bill organizing Minnesota Territory passed March 3. Territorial officers were appointed March 19. Governor Ramsey proclaimed the Territory organized June 1. The first territorial legislature assembled September 3. The Minnesota Historical Society was organized November 15.

1850 Commercial steamboating was inaugurated on the Minnesota river. Population of Minnesota, 6,077.

1852 The first county agricultural society in Minnesota was formed in Benton County. In the 1850s a number of such organizations were established to encourage the importation of blooded stock and the introduction of choice seeds, grains and fruit trees into the territory.

1853 W. A. Gorman was appointed governor. The first capitol building was completed and construction of Fort Ridgely begun.

1854 The Rock Island Railroad, the first road to the Mississippi River, was opened. Commercial flour milling began in what is now Minneapolis with the establishment of the "Minnesota" mill on Hennepin Island. Large scale immigration began. The real estate boom commenced.

1855 On January 23 a suspension bridge between Minneapolis and St. Anthony, the first bridge to span the main channel of the Mississippi River anywhere along its length, was officially opened.

1857 The Minnesota Enabling act was passed by Congress February 26. Governor Samuel Medary (appointed by President James Buchanan) arrived April 22. The legislature passed a bill to remove the capitol to St. Peter, but failed to accomplish the object. The constitutional convention assembled July 13. Real estate speculation reached its height, and was checked by the financial panic of August 27. The constitution was adopted and state officers elected on October 3. Population of Minnesota, 150,037.

1858 A five million dollar loan for railroads was authorized by the legislature and ratified by a vote of the people. Minnesota was admitted to the Union on May 11 and state officers were sworn in May 24.

1860 Population of Minnesota, 172,023.

1861 Fort Sumter was fired upon April 12, and the Civil War began. On April 13, President Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers to serve three months. Ramsey telegraphed Lt. Gov. Ignatius Donnelly in St. Paul to call for volunteers. That night the St. Paul Pioneer Guards met and Josias R. King was the first to sign up. This gave him claim to being the first volunteer in the U. S. service in the Civil War. Governor Alexander Ramsey offered President Lincoln a thousand men on April 14, giving Minnesota the distinction of being the first state to offer troops. The first Minnesota regiment left Fort Snelling on June 22.

1862 On July 2, the first railroad in Minnesota opened between St. Paul and Minneapolis. During August and September the Sioux attacked several settlements. A military commission tried 392 Indians for murder, rape, etc., and 303 of them were condemned. On December 26, thirty-eight Indians were hanged at Mankato.

1863 On July 2 the First Minnesota Regiment made its famous charge in the bloody battle of Gettysburg. Within fifteen minutes 215 of the 262 men of the First were killed or wounded. On July 3, Chief Little Crow, Sioux leader of the tragic Sioux Uprising, was killed near Hutchinson.

SYMBOLS OF STATEHOOD

State Flag

(Minnesota Statutes, Sec. 1.141)

The new Minnesota state flag was adopted by act of the 1957 legislature, replacing the old state flag which was adopted in 1893. The design on the old flag, though beautiful and artistic, was too expensive to reproduce by modern manufacturing methods.

The new flag retains the basic symbol of the 1893 flag — the state seal. Nineteen stars, which symbolized the fact that Minnesota was the nineteenth state to be admitted to the union after the original thirteen, were outside the center emblem on the 1893 flag. They are now included within the center emblem. The uppermost star is the largest and represents the north star state.

State Flower

(Laws 1967, Chapter 291)

The pink and white lady slipper, Cypripedium reginae, (the shoe of Venus, the queen) is Minnesota's state flower. Its common names are pink and white lady slipper and showy lady slipper.

In Minnesota the pink and white lady slipper grows best in the damp shady places provided by tamarack and spruce marshes. It cannot grow without the presence of a tiny fungus which helps the flower's roots get food from the soil. The plant grows so slowly it takes from ten to twenty years before it is old enough to bear blossoms. If it reaches full growth, from two to three feet tall, it may live to be fifty years old.

The pink and white lady slipper has become one of the state's rarest flowers, because the plant does not reproduce easily.

State Tree

(Minnesota Statutes, Sec. 1.143)

The Red Pine, Pinus resinosa, commonly known as the Norway Pine, a majestic evergreen, was adopted as the official state tree to symbolize Minnesota's history, background and physical characteristics.

The mature Norway Pine is easy to recognize. The lower two-thirds of its 60- to 140-foot straight trunk is bare of branches. On the upper third the branches grow straight out from the trunk, and form a cone-shaped crown to the tree. The brownish red bark of the tree accounts for the origin of one of its names, the Red Pine.

The tree is free from disease and insect attack and it is long-lived, often living up to 300 years. The Norway Pine has been planted extensively under the Minnesota reforestation program.

State Seal

(Minnesota Const. art XV s 4)

The Great Seal of the State of Minnesota is placed on all official state documents. Its design is similar to the design of the territorial seal which was used from 1849 until the adoption of a state seal in 1858. The picture on the seal is apparently a scene near St. Anthony Falls. A white man is plowing in the foreground while an Indian is riding into the sunset in the background. Henry H. Sibley, the first governor of Minnesota, is credited with selecting the motto which appears on the seal, "L'Etoile du Nord," which translated is "The North Star."

The Secretary of State is the custodian of the Great Seal of the State of Minnesota.

State Fish
(Laws 1965, Ch. 576)

The Walleye, Stizostedion v. vitreum, a fitting symbol of the cool and pleasant northland, is found throughout Minnesota in lakes and rivers but is most at home in the large clear cool lakes of Minnesota's northern forests. It attains a weight of 18 pounds, has flesh of the highest quality and is any fisherman's prize. About half of Minnesota's fishing water is managed primarily for walleye fishing.

State Bird
(M.S. 1.145)

No bird better typifies Minnesota lakes and woods than the state bird, the loon, Gavia immer, which knows no peer in swimming, diving or fishing. It can be heard, if not always seen, throughout the northern lake country. His shrill musical call is a beautifully haunting wilderness melody.

THE LEGISLATIVE PROCESS

POSITION OF THE LEGISLATURE—Our legislature as the top policy making body in the state plays the major role in determining the laws under which we live. Historically, the United States has witnessed a steady growth of executive power at the expense of the legislative particularly at the Federal level. In Minnesota, however, this trend has not been evidenced to the same degree, primarily because of the legislature's reluctance to delegate power to the executive. What's more, the attitude of the courts toward the separation of powers has served to prevent the legislature from delegating power to the executive branch.

As a result, the legislature is a powerful body. Its operation intimately concerns the citizens of the state. It is very important, then, for all citizens of Minnesota to achieve a basic understanding of the structure, functions, and work of the legislature as well as an appreciation of the legislator's position.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS—The principal legal task of the legislature is to make law by which public policy is established. Lawmaking covers an immense field including, business, conservation, contracts, education, finance, morals, property, public health, recreation, safety, taxation, transportation and welfare.

A special lawmaking function entails the formulation and adoption of constitutional amendments. Amendments may be proposed by a majority of both houses. All proposed amendments must be ratified by the electorate, a majority voting at an election.

The legislature exercises a general check, supervision or oversight over the executive departments which may consist of questioning, reviewing and assessing, modifying or rejecting policies of the administration. Legislative oversight has several devices for reviewing, influencing and directing the administration such as, legislation, power to appropriate or withhold funds, participation in the executive appointment process and committee hearings and investigations.

Another important function is educating the public by which the people receive instruction and guidance in public affairs when the legislature keeps state concerns suffused in a broad daylight of discussion.

The individual legislator's function in representing the people requires that he give careful attention and consideration to the individual and collective needs and interests within his district.

Finally, the judicial function, whereby the legislature judges the election and qualifications of its members, punishes and expells members for contempt or for disorderly behavior, and impeaches and removes from office members of the executive and judicial branches. In theory a classic power, impeachment is rarely used. It may be most significant for its deterrent effect.

MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE—The Minnesota Legislature is a bicameral body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives. One senator and two representative are elected from each of 67 legislative districts in the state (except the 15th dist. with 3 representatives). Senators are elected for four and representatives for two year terms at the November General Election, which is held in even numbered years. Both representatives and senators are nominated at state primary elections.

The 1966 Legislative Apportionment Act changed district numbers and boundaries of the previous apportionment (1959) and continued the number of Senators at 67 and Representatives at 135.

Legislators' salaries are presently set at $400 per month for a two year term. Each legislator is entitled to one round trip (per session) from his home to the Capitol at the rate of 15¢ per mile, plus a per diem allowance for living expenses during the session. Members are paid $25 per day for each day of a special session plus per diem living expenses.

For a person to become a candidate for the office of state senator or representative he must be a qualified voter of the state, a resident of Minnesota for one year, and a resident of the legislative district from which he aspires to be elected for six months immediately preceding the election.

A legislator is not eligible to hold any office, state or national, except that of postmaster, during his term of office in the legislature. In addition to this, he may not hold an office which was created or had its remuneration increased during a legislative session of which he was a member, until one year after the expiration of his term of office.

Certain privileges and immunities are granted legislators in recognition of the importance of their position. The first is that in all cases except treason, felony, or breach of the peace legislators are privileged from arrest while going to and returning from legislative sessions. Another is that a legislator cannot be sued for any debate he engages in or any speech he makes in either house of the legislature.

ORGANIZATION—Legislators are elected without party designation on the ballot. This does not mean, however, that party preferences play no role in the Minnesota Legislature. Although the members in each house divide into Liberal and Conservative groups for purposes of organizing the legislature, Democratic-Farmer-Laborites generally join the Liberal group and Republicans the Conservative group.

In each house, the group having the majority of members proceeds to organize the body and assumes the responsibility for carrying forward a legislative program. Both the Liberal and Conservative groups attempt to secure a majority of the members in each house in order to be in a position to control the election of officers and to make certain that a majority of its adherents are placed on all standing committees.

The Liberals and the Conservatives in each house caucus before the beginning of the session in order to make nominations for positions of leadership, particularly for Speaker of the House and President pro tempore of the Senate.

In 1967 there were 93 Conservatives and 42 Liberals in the House, 45 Conservatives and 22 Liberals in the Senate.

HOUSE PRESIDING OFFICER AND ORGANIZATION—The Speaker of the House wears two hats: he is the presiding officer of the House and the acknowledged leader of the majority group by virtue of being chosen at the majority group caucus and elected on the floor through unanimous majority group support. Once elected Speaker, he is usually re-elected as long as he is in the legislature and his group is in the majority.

The Speaker's authority to assign bills to committees and to appoint the chairmen and members of standing, select and conference committees, the groups which determine the subject matter and form of legislation may be his greatest power. Since there is no formal recognition of the caucus as an instrument for organizing the legislature, there is no recognition of a minority per se or of minority rights. As a result rather than the minority group assigning its own members to an alloted proportion of committee seats as is done in Congress, the Speaker selects the entire membership for each committee.

In his role as presiding officer, the Speaker interprets and enforces the rules of the House, recognizes members who wish to speak and calls for votes.

Due particularly to his great influence upon committee organization and legislation, the Speaker's authority, formal and informal, in and out of the legislature, places him in the list of leading state elected officials.

SENATE PRESIDING OFFICER AND ORGANIZATION—The presiding officer of the Senate is the Lieutenant Governor. In contrast with the Speaker of the House, the Lieutenant Governor is not a member of the body over which he presides nor does he enter into debate or vote as a regular member. Because of his selection by state wide vote rather than by legislative choice, he has no direct tie with the Senate majority group. Since 1931 he has no authority to appoint committees and his power to refer bills to committees is so circumscribed as to be nominal.

As a result, his impact on Senate decisions and state policy as developed through the legislative process is slight. In addition the Senate majority group honors one of its own senior members by electing him President pro tempore in which role he presides in the absence of the President of the Senate (the Lieutenant Governor). Usually the President pro tem acquires no distinctive power as a result of his selection although in the event of vacancies in the offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the President pro tem shall become Governor.

Senate standing committees since 1931 are determined by a majority group committee (composed of one member from each congressional district). Referral of important bills to committees is controlled by the majority group through the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense.

STANDING COMMITTEES—Standing committees do much of the work of the legislature. The volume of proposals is so great that consideration of each by the entire legislature would be impossible. Also much legislation being complex and technical requires examination in the light of existing statutes, as well as estimates and decisions regarding its constitutionality, purpose and effect and requirements for passage. This means for many legislators committee work, namely, studying, sifting, sorting, consulting, drafting and reporting. Such work requires a certain degree of specialization and expertise which long committee service is depended on to develop and insure while avoiding the tendency of merely preserving what is familiar and comfortable.

In the 1967 regular session, the House had 32 committees which varied in size from 15 to 33 members. The Senate had 19 committees, ranging in size from 6 to 27 members.

One of the most important and powerful committees in the legislature is the Rules Committee. It directs legislative procedures in each house. The state constitution, the rules adopted by each body, and the joint rules of the Senate and House govern the proceedings. Adopted rules cannot be altered, amended, or suspended except by a two-thirds vote of the entire body involved.

The Senate includes all of its committee chairmen on the Rules Committee. The House includes some chairmen on its rules council, too, but congressional district distribution as well as seniority is also considered.

Standing committee chairmen are generally the most influential members of the majority group. Chairmanships usually hold over from session to session through seniority. Each member of the House and Senate seeks to be assigned to committees which will give him the opportunity to deal with legislation in which he is especially interested.

REGULAR SESSIONS—Regular sessions of the legislature convene every two years in odd-numbered years. Each session opens on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January, with the length of the session limited by the Constitution to 120 legislative days.

Growth of the state and a parallel increase in the number and complexity of the problems facing each legislature has made it increasingly difficult for the legislature to finish its work within the prescribed time limit.

The Constitution gives the Governor three days after adjournment of the legislature to sign bills. By covering the clock, a device to extend the time, the legislature in cooperation with the Governor can use three days to pass bills. When this is done the Journals of the House and Senate—the official records of their proceedings—show all actions which took place after the legal bill-passing deadline as having taken place on the "last day."

SPECIAL SESSIONS—The Governor may call the legislature into special or extra session to meet emergencies or to enable the legislature to finish what it could not do in regular session. Although the governor is the only person empowered to call a special session, he has no power to limit the scope of activities during the special session. However, the legislators usually adopt special rules restricting the subjects to be considered during a special session.

CONVENING THE LEGISLATURE—At noon on the day the legislature convenes, the Secretary of State calls the House to order and the Lieutenant Governor performs the same function in the Senate. Each designates a member as temporary clerk who calls the roll. A Justice of the Supreme Court then administers the oath of office to the members of each house in a body.

The House then elects its Speaker, the Senate its President Pro Tempore. At the 1967 regular session, candidates for Speaker were Lloyd L. Duxbury of Caledonia, Conservative, and Richard W. O'Dea of Mahtomedi, Liberal. Representative Duxbury was elected. Candidates for President Pro Tempore were Senator Ernest J. Anderson of Frost, Conservative, and Senator Norman W. Hanson of Cromwell, Liberal. Senator Anderson was elected.

Both houses then elect staff members. Chief of the Senate staff is the secretary. The chief clerk is the top staff member in the House.

When standing committees have been named and permanent rules adopted, each house formally notifies the other house and the Governor that it is ready for business—the consideration and passing of bills.

A Bill Becomes a Law

The formal steps in lawmaking are few and simple. They include drafting the idea for a new law in the form of a bill, introducing the bill in the legislature and obtaining committee approval, passage by majority vote in both houses, and signature of the Governor.

Despite the formal simplicity of the legislative process some measures have been presented in as many as 15 sessions of the legislature before being enacted into law. Others have become law the same day they were introduced because the normally slow legislative procedures were suspended. Such suspension of the rules requires a two-thirds vote of each house.

Every new law starts with an idea. These ideas come from many sources. The members of the legislature themselves are the principal source. Other sources include: the Governor, who usually presents his ideas for new laws in his inaugural address or in special messages to the legislature; state departments, villages, cities and counties which must come to the legislature for permission to do certain things; lobbyists representing special interest groups; political parties; and interested citizen groups and individuals.

Interim commissions established by the legislature to study specific problems also usually make recommendations for legislation as the result of their findings.

DRAFTING BILLS—The first step in making an idea into law is drafting a bill for an act. Drafting bills is a specialized field within the practice of law.

The Attorney General and the Revisor of Statutes provide bill-drafting services for members of the legislature and state departments. Usually a member of the Attorney General's staff prepares bills to carry out the Governor's recommendations. Lay groups often employ private attorneys to draw bills for them.

Each bill may deal with only one subject, which must be clearly expressed in its title. A bill may be as short as a single line—in the case of a repealer—or it may run more than 100 pages as was true of the 1959 Election Code. Where an existing law is to be amended, the bill must include both existing language in the law and the proposed new language.

INTRODUCTION—Only members of the legislature may introduce bills. The Governor may recommend measures but he must find a member or members of the legislature to introduce and sponsor them.

House rules limit the number of authors on each bill to five; the Senate limit is three. Any member of either House may introduce a bill, with the exception of bills to raise revenue which must be originated in the House of Representatives.

Persons experienced in the legislative process have found that it is wise to select as authors of a bill influential legislators (of the majority group in each house) who are interested in and willing to work hard for the bill.

Bills prepared for introduction in the House are deposited each day in the office of the Speaker and those for presentation in the Senate are delivered to the Lieutenant Governor's office.

Actual introduction takes place when the Lieutenant Governor hands a bill to the Secretary of the Senate or when the Speaker of the House hands one to the Chief Clerk of the House and the proposal is given its first reading and a Senate File or House File number. It is thereafter referred to by number. Both House and Senate maintain index departments which record the progress of bills and can tell the location of any given bill at any time. Anyone may secure this information about a bill by inquiring as to its subject or number.

FIRST READING—REFERRAL TO COMMITTEE—At the time of introduction a bill is given the first of the three readings required by the Constitution. After the first reading, the presiding officer refers the bill to an appropriate standing committee for consideration.

It is advantageous to have a bill one is interested in referred to the committee whose members are known to be friendly to it. Therefore, persons working for the passage of a certain piece of legislation often enlist the support of committee leaders before the bill is introduced.

The chief author of a bill is permitted to indicate to which committee he would prefer to have his bill assigned. If the request is reasonable and logical the presiding officer will very likely follow it. However, the Speaker in the House and the Lieutenant Governor in the Senate are generally supreme in deciding to which committee a bill will be assigned.

IN COMMITTEE—This is the first stage where a bill may be amended or killed and is the most important stage of all. Most committees meet regularly but they are also subject to call for special meetings. Interested persons check the bulletin boards near the entrance to the House and Senate chambers for announcements of regular and special meetings. Announcements are posted each day of the session.

No committee attempts to study all bills referred to it, since some are unimportant and the time for consideration of bills is limited. Common practice is to set up subcommittees to study controversial or complicated bills as well as to study a subject on which several bills have been submitted. After studying the bill or bills before it, the subcommittee makes its report to the committee proper.

Committees in both houses are very powerful. They may recommend that a bill pass in the form in which it was drafted, pass as amended in committee, be indefinitely postponed (which means it is killed), be ignored (commonly referred to as pigeon-holing), be returned to its author (which politely kills the bill), be passed out without any recommendation, or be reported unfavorably. Out of every 100 bills submitted to Senate committees in the 1965 regular session approximately 66 were not reported out, that is they died in committee. In the House about 61 percent died in committee.

The most favorable action a committee can take, of course, is to send a bill to the floor of its house as a committee bill. This means that the bill is a measure of some importance on which there is unanimous agreement in committee. Many legislators vote according to the committee's recommendation, since it is impossible for them to study in detail the numerous bills before them. Approximately 71 percent of all bills reported favorably by committees in both houses during the 1965 regular session were passed.

When a committee does not agree unanimously on a bill, each side brings in a recommendation (a majority and a minority report). A split committee, of course, means divided committee action on the floor, a fact which poses danger for a bill's prospects.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS—Everyone is entitled to be heard at a committee hearing. Each committee sets a day and sets aside a certain amount of time for the hearing. Authorities and interested lay people are gathered to explain and speak for the bill at that time. Opponents of the bill also line up persons to speak against it. Most prominent among those who appear before committees are the legislative lobbyists, or representatives of special interest groups.

All committee sessions are open to the public and where proposals are of sufficiently general interest public hearings are held.

The committee generally takes no action at the hearing. Therefore, supporters of a bill usually attempt to have the bill taken up again at the next committee meeting. They interview members of the committee in order to determine their positions on the measure and keep a record of each member's inclination.

It is at this stage of the legislative process that supporters of a particular bill make their greatest attempts to convince legislators of the rightness of their bill.

When a bill stalls in committee in either house, a member may move that it be recalled. If a majority of the members vote to recall the bill, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE—SECOND READING—Reports of committee actions are subject to approval by the full Senate or House. Usually such approval is routine, but where considerable opposition has developed an attempt may be made at this stage to reject the committee report, if it is favorable, and so kill the bill.

When a bill is reported favorably by a committee, and that report has been accepted, the bill is given its second reading. The bill is then printed and placed on a list known as General Orders.

At some time on most days, each house resolves itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider bills on the General Orders list. At this time a member other than the regular presiding officer usually serves as chairman.

The meeting of the Committee of the Whole is a less formal proceeding than regular sessions. It is intended to give all members an opportunity to become familiar with a bill's provisions, to offer amendments and to debate it. No record is kept of the debate nor of the numerical results of any voting that may take place except in the House when voting on amendments appropriating money or increasing appropriations. The report of the Committee of the Whole shows only which proposals have been approved and those which have been rejected.

This is another crucial stage in the life of a bill. The Committee of the Whole has the same options and powers in connection with a bill as do the standing committees. Members in favor of a particular bill must be prepared to speak for it. A bill can be so amended at this time as to have the effect of killing it. The bill may also be sent back to committee for further study, a move which late in the session also has the effect of killing the measure.

At the end of a session of the Committee of the Whole, a report on its decision is submitted to the entire House or Senate for acceptance or rejection. The report may be either a recommendation that the bill "advance to the Calendar," which indicates that it is ready for its third reading and final action, or "progress." When the committee ends its session before the consideration of a bill is concluded, "progress' is reported. If this occurs for three days the bill goes to the foot of General Orders, unless otherwise ordered by a majority vote. A motion that "progress" be reported is generally made when opposition develops in the Committee of the Whole and the bill's sponsors want time to try to win over the opposition, or when friends of the measure are not present.

The house then votes on whether to accept the committee's report in its entirety or in part. Acceptance or rejection requires only a majority vote.

SUSPENSION OF THE RULES—When a bill has had its first or second reading, the rules may be suspended to secure its immediate consideration. This may dispense with consideration by the Committee of the Whole and speeds up the passage of many noncontroversial and local bills, or important bills that require immediate passage. In the House of Representatives, it is done by obtaining the unanimous consent of the members to entertain a motion to suspend the rules and approval of that motion requires a two-thirds vote of the whole House. In the Senate, unanimous consent is not required. As in the House, the motion to suspend requires a two-thirds vote of the whole body.

THE CALENDAR—THIRD READING—Successfully past the Committee of the Whole, the bill is given a place on the Calendar and is ready for final action.

In the House bills usually are debated both in Committee of the Whole and when they come up for final passage. Most Senate debate usually takes place in Committee of the Whole and a final vote often is taken, except on major bills, without discussion.

A bill is given its third reading, just before the final vote. Every bill requires a majority vote of the full membership to pass, regardless of how many members may be absent when the vote is taken. The minimum favorable vote to pass a bill in the House is 68, in the Senate 34.

When a major bill is up for final vote, it is customary for its sponsor to move for a Call of the House or a Call of the Senate. Such a move requires all present to vote and, in extreme cases, the mover may require the body to wait until all absent members, unless excused prior to call, have been called in, wherever they may be.

The first house to pass a bill sends it to the other. There it is referred to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment, unless other action is taken, where it is checked to find if there is a companion bill.

If there is no companion bill, or if the original companion is amended, the measure is referred to the proper standing committee for amendment or whatever other action may be necessary. If there is an identical bill in the committee, it generally substitutes the bill which has already passed the other house for the one it is considering. This is done in order to speed up the bill's progress. Furthermore, if an identical bill is already on General Orders or on Special Order in the house receiving the bill, that house may, by a majority vote, substitute the bill that has already passed the other house. A substituted bill comes up for discussion at the same time as the original bill would have.

CONSENT CALENDAR—SPECIAL ORDERS—Besides General Orders and the Calendar, each body has another calendar on which noncontroversial and local bills are listed when they are reported out by committees. In the House this is called the Consent Calendar, in the Senate the Calendar of Ordinary Matters.

Bills on this calendar, since they are presumed to be non-controversial, are considered and passed, after brief explanation but without debate, in rapid fire order. Any which provoke debate are shifted to General Orders.

As the session progresses, as many as 200 or more bills may be listed on General Orders. This means that those near the end of the list may never be reached.

To make sure no important bill not otherwise entitled to priority dies because it cannot be reached by normal procedures, legislative rules provide a device known as the Special Order, in addition to the provision for suspension of the rules.

Under this rule the sponsor of a bill may, after two days' notice, move that the bill be made a Special Order of Business for a certain time. A motion for a Special Order requires a two-thirds vote.

When a bill is made a Special Order, it is taken up for debate and passage at the time specified regardless of what other business may be before the body at the time. In this procedure a bill skips the Committee of the Whole.

Placing a bill on Special Order assures its consideration and gives ample notice of the time it will come up for debate to both its proponents and opponents.

Because of their special importance, bills coming from the Finance and Appropriations Committees and from the Rules Committees receive special priority without Special Orders.

Tax bills providing for raising revenue must originate in the House. The logic of this requirement is that House members are elected every two years and therefore presumably represent the most recent expression of the voters' thoughts and wishes.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES—Often the two houses pass major controversial bills in very different forms. This is especially true when Liberals control one body and the Conservatives the other, in which case appropriations and tax bills almost always are passed in different forms.

When this occurs a conference committee of from three to five Senators and an equal number of Representatives is named. This group meets and tries to compromise the differences in the two bills.

If the members of the committee can reach a successful compromise, they bring their report back in identical form to each house, and the house either accepts it without amendment or rejects it. If the report is accepted by both houses, the bill is ready for engrossing and the Governor's signature. If either house rejects the report and then does not ask for a new conference committee, the bill dies.

TO THE GOVERNOR—When a bill has been passed by both houses in the same form, it is enrolled—that is, copied carefully and accurately—by members of the staff of the Engrossment and Enrollment Committee of the house in which it is originated, signed by presiding officers of both the house and Senate, and sent to the Governor.

The Governor has several courses open to him. He signs the bill, if he wants the bill to become law. If he objects to a bill as passed, he may refer it back to the house in which it originated along with his objections. If he does not sign a bill within three days or fails to return it to the house in which it originated, it becomes a law, unless the legislature prevents its return (by adjournment). If the legislature has adjourned before the three days expire, the Governor may "pocket veto" a bill simply by refusing to sign it within three days after adjournment of the legislature.

In the case of veto, the Governor sends a message to the legislature explaining his reasons for refusing to approve the bill. The message and the bill are returned to the house in which the measure originated.

The bill may be passed over the Governor's veto by a two-thirds vote in each house.

Some bills include a provision stating the date on which they will become effective. If there is no such provision, they become effective the day next following their signature by the Governor. However, an appropriation act, or an act having appropriation items, takes effect on the following first day of July, unless a different date is specified.

THE LAST STEP—All measures written into law by the joint action of the House, the Senate and the Governor are filed with the Secretary of State, who is designated as permanent custodian.

4. In the absence of the President the President Pro Tem shall preside over the Senate and in the absence of both the President and President Pro Tem, the Chairman of the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense or in his absence a member may be selected by the Senate to perform the duties of the chair: but substitutions shall not extend beyond adjournment.

11. Third reading of House bills.
12. Calendar of ordinary matters.
13. General Orders of the day.
14. Announcements of Senate Interest.

CALENDAR

8. The Secretary shall make a list of all bills, resolutions and other matters coming before the Senate for final action and place the same upon the calendar in the order in which they have been acted upon in Committee of the Whole, and such calendar shall be printed and placed upon the members' desks at least one day before the matters included therein shall be considered.

CALENDAR OF ORDINARY MATTERS

9. If a committee determines that a bill it recommends to pass is of a routine nature or otherwise of a nature which likely will not be opposed, it may in its report, recommend that the bill be placed on the Calendar of Ordinary Matters. If such report is adopted, the bill will be printed and placed on the Calendar of Ordinary Matters after its second reading. On the question of adoption of such report the question of accepting the recommendation that the bill be placed on the Calendar of Ordinary Matters may be divided from the question of adopting the report in other respects.

The Calendar of Ordinary Matters shall consist of bills so placed on it; Rule 8 will govern it except that such bills will not be first considered in the Committee of the Whole and except as inconsistent with this rule.

If a member objects to consideration of a bill on the Calendar of Ordinary Matters at any time during its consideration in the Senate before the question on final passage is put, and that objection is supported by at least two other members, the bill will thereby and without further action be referred to the Committee of the Whole, and shall be placed at the bottom of General Orders subject to Rule 11, except that it need not lie over one day before consideration in the Committee of the Whole.

SPECIAL ORDER

10. On two days' notice it shall require a two-thirds vote of the whole Senate to designate a Special Order and when a time has been designated by the Senate, whether by adoption of a report of the committee or otherwise, for a particular or Special Order, the Senate shall at such time proceed to the consideration of such order, and shall at such time so designated, after considering the bill, resolution, or measure included therein, unless the same shall be otherwise disposed of or the Special Order postponed to a day certain, immediately proceed to the third reading and final passage of the same and during the consideration of such Special Order Rule 21 shall be suspended, and the debate thereon and all proceedings, thereunder, including amendments and substitutions, shall be, as nearly as applicable, that of the Committee of the Whole, except that it shall be competent for any member when a question is being taken, to call for the ayes and nays which shall be entered on the Journal.

After a time designated by resolution adopted by the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense the chairman of the Committee on Finance and Taxes and Tax Laws, as authorized by their respective committees, shall have the right to have any bill favorably reported by their respective committees, placed at the head of the General Orders Calendar for consideration without lay over, and when favorably reported by adoption of the report of the Committee of the Whole, may on or after the next legislative day call said bill for third reading and final passage; or, in lieu of consideration by the Committee of the Whole, the respective committee chairman may designate that such a bill be a Special Order to be heard at a time designated.

GENERAL ORDERS

11. The Secretary shall make a list of all bills, resolutions, reports of committees, and other proceedings of the Senate, which are referred to the Committee of the Whole, and which are not made the order of the day, for any particular day, and to number the same, which lists shall be called the "General Orders of the Day" and they shall be taken up in the order in which they are numbered unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the committee.

Such general orders, together with all bills included therein required to be printed under the rules or orders of the Senate, shall be printed and placed upon the members' desks at least one day before the same shall be considered in Committee of the Whole.

MOTIONS

12. When a motion is made it shall be stated by the presiding officer; or, being in writing it shall be handed to the Secretary and read to the members.

13. A motion or amendment shall be written if the presiding officer or any member so requests. In such case it must be signed by the member or committee offering it.

14. After a motion is stated by the presiding officer, or read by the Secretary, it shall be deemed to be in possession of the Senate, but may be withdrawn by the author at any time before decision or amendment.

PRECEDENCE OF MOTIONS

15. When a question is under debate no motion shall be received, but

To adjourn.
To lay on the table.
For the previous question.

Which three motions shall be decided without debate.

To commit.
To postpone to a day certain.
To amend, or
To postpone indefinitely.

These several motions shall have precedence in the foregoing order; but a motion for the previous question having been seconded, or the main question ordered, a motion to lay on the table shall not be in order.

A motion to postpone to a day certain to commit, to postpone indefinitely, or to amend, having been decided, shall not again be put on the same day, nor at the same stage of the bill or proposition.

MOTION TO ADJOURN

16. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, and also a motion to adjourn to a time certain. The latter motion is debatable. When either motion is rejected it shall not be renewed until further business has been transacted.

AMENDMENTS, RULES AND SUSPENSION OF RULES

17. Every proposition to amend any rule of the Senate shall be referred to the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense, and shall not be acted upon until the report of such committee is received by the Senate; nor shall any rule be suspended except by at least two-thirds vote of the whole Senate; provided that a motion to suspend the rules for the purpose of advancing a bill shall be made only under the order of business, "Motions and Resolutions."

ORDER IN DEBATE

18. When any member is about to speak in debate, or deliver any matter to the Senate, he shall rise to his feet and respectfully address himself to "Mr. President," but shall not proceed to speak further until recognized by the Chair. He shall confine himself to the question under debate, and avoid personality. In discussing any resolution, senators shall be limited to five minutes each.

19. When any member is called to order he shall sit down until it is determined whether he is in order or not, and if a member is called to order for words spoken in debate, the words excepted to shall be taken down in writing by the Secretary immediately.

20. When two or more members shall rise simultaneously, the President shall name the member who is to speak.

21. No member shall speak more than twice on the same question on the same day without leave of the Senate.

22. Every member of the Senate who has not been excused who shall be in the Senate when the question is put shall give his vote unless the Senate for special reasons shall excuse him. All motions to excuse a member from voting shall be made before the Senate divides or before he gives his vote upon a call of the ayes and nays. Any member wishing to be excused from voting or any other member for him, may make a brief statement of the reasons for making such request, and the question shall then be taken without further debate.

CALL OF THE SENATE

23. Any member may make a call of the Senate, and require absent members to be sent for, but a call of the Senate cannot be made after the voting has commenced; and the call of the Senate being ordered and the absentees noted, the doors shall be closed, and no member permitted to leave the room until further proceedings under the call be dispensed with by a majority vote of all the members of the Senate and the matter or question, if any, under consideration at the time of the call be disposed of, or the Senate adjourns.

QUESTIONS—HOW STATED AND DECIDED

24. Questions shall be distinctly put in this form, to-wit: "As many as are of the opinion that (as the question may be) say Aye," and after the affirmative voice is expressed, "As many as are of the contrary opinion say No." The President shall declare all votes but if any member rise to doubt a vote, he shall order a division.

ONLY MEMBERS PRESENT TO VOTE

25. Upon a division and count of the Senate on any question, only members present in the Senate chamber shall be counted.

ANY SENATOR MAY DEMAND AYES AND NAYS

26. When a question is being taken, any member may call for the ayes and nays, which shall be entered in the Journal. A call for the ayes and nays cannot be interrupted except as provided in Rule No. 22.

AUTHORIZED ELECTRICAL VOTING DEVICE

27. Unless otherwise ordered, any vote, except upon elections and upon the overriding of a Governor's veto, may be taken by means of the electrical voting system which shall be under the control of the President of the Senate.

CERTIFICATE FOR MONEY

28. No certificate authorizing the payment of any money appropriated by the Legislature shall be issued by the Secretary, by virtue of any motion or resolution, unless such a motion or resolution shall be voted for by a majority of all members of the Senate. All motions or resolutions authorizing the issuing of certificates by the Secretary for the payment of money shall be upon a call of the ayes and nays.

THE PREVIOUS QUESTION

29. The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Senate to a direct vote upon amendments reported by a committee, if any, then upon all pending amendments in their order and then upon the main question. On a motion for the previous question, and prior to the ordering of the same, a call of the Senate shall be in order, but after a majority shall have ordered such motion, no call shall be in order prior to the decision of the main question.

On a previous question there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

DIVISION OF QUESTION

30. Any member may call for a division of the question when the same will admit of it. A motion to strike out and insert is indivisible. A motion to strike out being lost shall not preclude an amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

RECONSIDERATION

31. When a motion or question has been once put and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the prevailing side to move for reconsideration thereof, on the same day on which the vote was taken or within the next two days of actual session of the Senate thereafter; and such motion shall take precedence over all other questions except a motion to adjourn. When a motion to adjourn is adopted prior to the disposition of the motion for reconsideration, a motion for reconsideration shall lie over until the next succeeding day except as hereinafter provided. During the last five legislative days of the session a notice of intention to move for reconsideration shall not be in order, but a motion to reconsider may be made and have priority over other business except a motion to adjourn.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

32. Bills, memorials, concurrent or joint resolutions may be introduced by any member or by order of the Senate on a report of a committee. An original and three copies so identified shall be required for introduction. The number of authors shall not exceed three.

FORM OF BILLS

33. The name of the author or authors shall be prefixed to each bill, memorial or resolution and the name of a committee reporting a bill, memorial or resolution for introduction shall be endorsed thereon.

A committee report or a proposed amendment to a bill, memorial or resolution shall be in triplicate and written only on one side of the paper.

A bill for an amendment of a statute shall contain the full text of the chapter, section, or subdivision to be amended. The words and characters constituting the amending matter shall be inserted in the proper place in the text and underscored. When the bill is printed, the amending matter shall be inserted in italics. The words and characters to be eliminated by the Amendment shall be stricken by drawing a line through them. A printed bill shall capitalize words and characters to be stricken and enclose them in brackets. The text of the new section or subdivision shall also be underscored when a bill amends an existing chapter, section, or subdivision, by adding a new section or subdivision. When such bill is printed the amending matter, including the new section or subdivision shall appear in italics. Before a committee favorably reports upon such a bill, the chairman of the committee shall see that the bill conforms to this rule. A bill drafted by the Revisor of Statutes for the purpose of correcting errors in Minnesota Statutes need not comply with the provisions of this paragraph if the bill is labeled, immediately below the title '(REVISOR'S BILL)' and if there is attached thereto a memorandum of information explaining the reasons for the bill.

Bills shall refer to the session laws as follows: "Laws....., Chapter....., Section ....."

Bills shall refer to Minnesota Statutes as follows:

"Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section . . .".

Reference shall be made to Minnesota Statutes 1965 for the provisions appearing therein, unless reference to previous session laws is required for some special reason.

If the bill is for an original law and not for an amendment of an existing law the sections and subdivisions shall be arranged, subdivided, and numbered in like manner as Minnesota Statutes 1965. If such bill assigns to the sections thereof headnotes or identification by the decimal system of numbering used in Minnesota Statutes, such headnotes and decimal identification may be submitted by standing committee chairmen to the Revisor of Statutes for his examination. Any such headnotes shall be in capital letters enclosed in brackets, and shall be subject to the provisions of Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 648.36.

If the bill is for an amendment of a statute, all statutory references shall be to Minnesota Statutes 1965, and it shall contain the full text of the section or subdivision to be amended as it appears in Minnesota Statutes 1965.

The title of each bill shall state its subject and briefly state its purpose.

When a law is sought to be amended or repealed the title of the amendatory act shall contain a proper reference to the law to be amended or repealed and briefly express its subject matter.

All numbers in titles shall be expressed in figures. All numbers of section or chapter of laws shall be in figures. In the body of a bill numbers in excess of ten shall be in figures, except for a special reason they may be written, but when written they should not be followed by numbers in parentheses.

READING OF BILLS

34. Every bill, memorial, order, resolution or vote requiring the approval of the Governor shall receive three separate readings previous to its passage; the first and third readings shall be at length; and no such bill, memorial, order or resolution shall be read twice on the same day.

REFERRING OF BILLS

35. All bills shall be referred by the President of the Senate without motion to the proper standing committee, on the first reading, unless otherwise referred by the Senate; provided that when any question shall arise on first reading or at the time of report of any standing committee to which the bill was first referred concerning the proper reference of a bill, the bill shall be referred without debate to the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense to report the proper reference thereof, and upon adoption of such report it shall be referred accordingly.

All bills appropriating money, or obligating the State to pay or expend money, or establishing a policy which to be effective will require expenditure of money, when referred to and reported by any other than the Committee on Finance, shall, before passage, be referred to the Committee on Finance.

COMMITMENT OF BILLS

36. No bill or resolution shall be committed or amended until it has been once read at length. No bill or resolution shall be objected to on its introduction.

REPORT ON AMENDED BILLS

37. No committee nor any member thereof shall report any substitute for any bill or bills referred to such committee, which substitute relates to a different subject, or is intended to accomplish a different purpose than that of the original bill for which it is reported, or which, if adopted and passed, would require a title essentially different from the title of the original bill; and every substitute bill so reported shall be rejected whenever the Senate is advised that the same is in violation of this rule.

AMENDMENTS TO BILLS

38. In drawing any amendment to any bill or resolution reference shall be made therein, first to the number of the bill, then to the section, and then to the line or lines from which matter is to be stricken or in which new matter is to be inserted.

AMENDMENTS TO TITLE

39. The title to any bill may be amended at any time during its pendency in the Senate.

RECALL FROM COMMITTEE

40. A majority of the Senate may at any time recall a bill from any committee or take a bill from the table and place such bill on General Orders.

41. Unless otherwise ordered by the Senate in respect to a bill, all bills which have been reported upon favorably or without recommendation by the committee to whom the same shall have been referred shall be printed; and any bill shall be printed when ordered by a majority vote of the Senate.

ALL BILLS TO GO TO COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

42. All bills, memorials, orders, resolutions and votes requiring the approval of the Governor shall, after a second reading, be considered in Committee of the Whole before they shall be finally acted upon by the Senate, except as provided for in Rules 9 and 10.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

43. The President shall call some member to the chair when the Senate goes into Committee of the Whole. The rules observed in the Senate shall govern, as far as practicable, the proceedings of the Committee of the Whole, except that a member may speak more than twice on the same subject, and that a call for the ayes and nays, or for the previous question cannot be made.

44. The recommendations of the Committee of the Whole shall be reported to the Senate by the chairman standing in his place. If the recommendation contains a proposed amendment of any bill, that amendment shall be noted on a separate piece of paper but when reported need not be read by the President unless required by one or more of the members. The question shall be on the adoption or rejection of the report, and no other question shall be admitted. The question may be divided to permit separate Senate action on the report as to any bill. On adoption of the report of the Committee of the Whole all bills recommended to pass shall be placed upon the calendar.

AMENDMENT ON THIRD READING

45. Except as provided for in Rule 39 and to fill blanks, no amendment shall be received on third reading without the unanimous consent of the Senate. In filling blanks, the largest sum, the longest time and the greatest distance shall be first taken.

46. A bill or resolution may be committed at any time prior to its passage, and if any amendment be reported on such commitment to any other than a Committee of the Whole, it shall be again read the second time, considered in Committee of the Whole, and the question for third reading and passage again put. If the commitment be to the Committee of the Whole it shall be placed at the head of the general orders, except when the commitment is under Rule 9.

FINAL PASSAGE

47. The final question upon a bill or other paper requiring action by both Houses after the first and second reading thereof, and after the consideration in Committee of the Whole, shall be upon its final passage.

TRANSMITTING OF BILLS TO THE HOUSE

48. Immediately after the passage of any bill or other paper to which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is to be asked it shall be the duty of the Secretary to transmit the same to the House, unless some member of the Senate shall make a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Senate passed the said bill or other paper; in which case the Secretary shall not transmit said bill or other paper until a motion to reconsider has been put; and on the concurrence of any bill or other paper of the House of Representatives by the Senate, or on the concurrence or disagreement in any vote of the House it shall also be the duty of the Senate to notify the House thereof.

COMPARISON AND SUBSTITUTION OF BILLS

49. Unless there is a motion or objection, a House bill shall be referred to the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense or to its Subcommittee on Engrossing and Enrolling after its first reading. That committee will promptly make its report thereon. If there is a Senate bill identical to the House bill so referred which has had its second reading and which is on General Orders of the Day, Calendar of Ordinary Matters, or which is a Special Order, or on the Senate Calendar, the report of that committee will so state, identifying such companion bill by Senate file and recommend substitution of the House bill for its companion Senate bill in the Senate bill's place on the General Orders of the Day, the Calendar of Ordinary Matters, the Special Order, or the Calendar as the case may be, and indefinite postponement of the companion Senate bill; and upon adoption of such report the substitution and postponement recommended therein will be made without further motion, provided, a House bill when placed on the Calendar by substitution shall not be given its third reading on the same day as the substitution is effected, and in all cases a House bill shall have three readings in the Senate. Senate bills in the temporary custody of the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense or its Subcommittee on Engrossing and Enrolling for comparison purposes shall be deemed in the possession of the Senate for all legislative purposes. If there is no Senate bill identical with the House bill so referred which has had its second reading in the Senate on the General Orders of the Day, the Calendar of Ordinary Matters, Special Orders, or the Calendar, the report of the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense or its Subcommittee on Engrossing and Enrolling on such House bill will so state and recommend that the House bill be referred to the proper committee of the Senate unless special circumstance requires a different recommendation.

ENGROSSMENT

50. Every bill, memorial, order or resolution originating in the Senate shall be carefully engrossed before being transmitted to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

ENROLLMENT

51. All bills shall be carefully enrolled under the supervision of the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense, which committee may report to the Senate at any time on the enrollment of bills.

ENROLLING AND ENGROSSING OF BILLS

52. All enrolling and engrossing of bills shall be done at the direction and under authority of the Senate.

APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEES

53. After the organization of the Senate, all committees of the Senate and members of commissions to be appointed by the Senate authorized by rule, statute, resolution or otherwise, shall be appointed by a Committee on Committees, unless otherwise provided, subject to confirmation by the Senate. In the appointment of members of conference committees between the two houses, the Committee on Committees of the Senate shall appoint those who are in accord with the position of the Senate, and whenever practical, give preference to authors of bills in dispute and to members of standing committees in which the bills were considered.

STANDING COMMITTEES

54. The Standing Committees of the Senate are as follows:

Agriculture, 26
Civil Administration and Metropolitan Affairs, 27
  Metropolitan Problems, Division of Civil Administration and Metropolitan Affairs, 18

56. Upon the request of any member of a committee to which a bill has been referred, or upon the request of the author of any such bill, a record shall be made of the vote on such bill in any standing committee, including the vote on any amendment or proposed amendment thereto, in the committee to which the bill was referred.

Every such nomination shall, upon request of any senator, be referred to a committee, and if a question shall arise as to the proper committee, the same shall be referred without debate to the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense to report the proper reference thereof and upon adoption of the report of such committee it shall be referred accordingly.

60. Memorials or petitions to the President or the Congress of the United States, or any branch or member thereof, or any department or officer of the United States, or any state or foreign government, including all motions, resolutions, joint or concurrent resolutions in relation thereto, shall follow the same procedure as bills before being adopted.

RESOLUTIONS

61. Except as provided in Rule 60, resolutions not requiring the signature of the Governor need not take the regular course of bills and memorials, but may be acted upon in the same manner as other resolutions.

NOTICE TO DEBATE

62. Upon any member giving notice of his intention to debate any resolution, the same shall lie over one day without debate or other action, except that upon the request of any Senator, any resolution shall be referred to the proper committee, provided that whenever any question shall arise concerning the proper reference thereof the procedure provided by Rule No. 35 shall apply. This rule shall not apply to any resolution offered by the Committee on Rules and Legislative Expense.

PETITIONS AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

63. In presenting a petition, memorial, remonstrance or other communication addressed to the Senate, a member shall only state the general purpose of it.

He shall permit no Journal records, accounts or papers to be taken from the table or out of his custody, other than in the regular mode of business. If any paper in his charge shall be missing, he shall report the fact to the President, that inquiry may be made. No such bill assigning to the sections thereof headnotes or identification by the decimal system of numbering used in Minnesota Statues shall be introduced, unless there is attached thereto a written authorization by the Revisor of Statutes for such headnotes or for such identification.

If the bill is for an amendment of a statute, all statutory references shall be to the latest edition Minnesota Statutes, and it shall contain the full text of the section or subdivision to be amended as it appears in the latest edition Minnesota Statutes, unless it has been amended at a later session, in which event it shall contain the full text as amended.

He shall have general supervision of all clerical duties appertaining to the business of the House; shall perform under the direction of the Speaker, all the duties pertaining to his office, and shall keep a book showing the situation and progress of bills, memorials, and joint resolutions.

CLERICAL CORRECTIONS TO BILLS

22. (a) Minor clerical errors in any bill, memorial or resolution, such as errors in orthography or grammar, or the incorrect use of one word for another (as "affect" for "effect"), or wrong numbering of references, whether such errors occur in the original bill or any amendment thereto, shall be corrected by the Chief Clerk, as a matter of course, upon the approval of the Chairman of any committee to which the bill was referred.

(b) The Chief Clerk shall insert the enacting clause in any bill before its passage if the same shall have been omitted.

(c) Webster's New International Dictionary shall be the standard authority in matters falling under the above rules.

NO ONE TO REMAIN BY THE CLERK'S DESK

23. No member, or other person, shall remain by the Clerk's desk when the yeas and nays are being called.

DUTIES OF THE SERGEANT-AT-ARMS

24. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to execute all orders of the House or of its presiding officer; to perform all duties that may, from time to time, be assigned to him connected with the policing and good order of the House; to exercise supervision over the ingress and egress of all persons to and from the Chamber; to see that all messages, etc., are promptly executed; and that the hall is properly ventilated and open for the use of the members; and to perform all other services pertaining to the office of Sergeant-at-Arms.

MOTION TO RECESS

25. All motions to recess for the purpose of granting the privilege to any person or persons to appear before the House during said recess shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, and no such motion shall be acted upon without a favorable report from said committee

ORDER IN DEBATE

26. No member shall speak more than twice on the same subject without leave of the House, nor more than once until every other member wishing to speak on the pending question shall have spoken.

MOTIONS

27. No motion shall be debated until put by the Speaker before debate, and any such motion shall be reduced to writing if required by the Speaker.

After a motion has been stated by the Speaker, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the House, but may be withdrawn by the mover at any time before amendment or decision; but all motions, resolution or amendments shall be entered in the Journal unless withdrawn the same day.

MOTION TO ADJOURN

28. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order except during roll call.

When a motion to adjourn is made it shall be in order for the Speaker, before putting the question, to permit any member to state any facts to the House, relative to the condition of the business of the House, which would seem to render it improper to adjourn at that time. Such statement, however, shall not be debatable and shall not, in any case, occupy more than two minutes.

PRECEDENCE OF MOTIONS

29. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but:

1. Fix time to which to adjourn.
2. To adjourn.
3. To lay on the table.
4. For the previous question.
   (Which four motions shall be decided without debate.)
5. To commit.
6. To postpone to a day certain.
7. To amend.
8. To postpone indefinitely.

These several motions shall have precedence in the foregoing order; but the previous question having been seconded, and the main question ordered, a motion to lay on the table shall not be in order.

THE PREVIOUS QUESTION

30. (a) The previous question shall be in this form: "The Gentleman from ..... moves the previous question. Do fifteen members second the motion?" If the motion be properly seconded, the question shall be stated as follows: "As many as are in favor of ordering the previous question will say 'aye'; as many as are opposed will say 'no'." There shall be a motion for the previous question, which, being ordered by a majority of all members present, shall have the effect to cut off all debate and bring the House to a direct vote upon the immediate question or questions upon which it has been ordered.

The previous question may be asked and ordered upon a single motion, a series of motions allowable under the rules or an amendment or amendments; or it may be made to embrace all authorized motions or amendments and include the bill to its passage or rejection.

(b) On a motion for the previous question, and prior to the ordering of the same, a call of the House shall be in order, but after a majority shall have ordered the previous question, no call shall be in order prior to the decision of the main question.

(c) When the previous question is decided in the negative it shall leave the main question under debate for the residue of the sitting, unless sooner disposed of by taking a vote, on the question or in some other manner.

INCIDENTAL QUESTIONS OF ORDER

31. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, during the pendency of such motion, or after the House shall have determined that the main question now be put, shall be decided whether on appeal or otherwise without debate.

PETITIONS, ETC. — HOW PRESENTED

32. Petitions, memorials and other papers presented to the House shall be presented by the Speaker or member in his place, and a brief statement of the contents thereof shall be made verbally and endorsed thereon, together with the name of the member introducing the same.

EVERY MEMBER TO VOTE UNLESS EXCUSED

33. Every member who shall be present before the vote is declared from the chair, shall vote for or against the matter before the House, unless the House shall excuse him, or unless he is immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote.

PROCEDURE IN EXCUSING MEMBER FROM VOTING

34. When a member declines to vote on a call of his name, he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor; and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the House, "Shall the member, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the vote has been taken and before the chair has announced the vote, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement.

ORDER DURING SESSION

35. When the Speaker is putting the question, no member shall walk out of or across the House, nor when a member is speaking shall any other member entertain any private discourse or pass between the speaking member and the chair.

ORDER OF PUTTING QUESTION

36. All questions, whether in committee or in the House, shall be put in the order in which they are moved, except in the case of privileged questions, and in filling up blanks the largest sum and the longest time shall be put first.

DIVISION OF A QUESTION

37. If the question in debate contains several points, any member may have the question divided. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost shall preclude neither amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

QUESTIONS OF ORDER

38. If any member of the House, in speaking or otherwise, transgress the rules, the Speaker shall (or any member may) call him to order, in which case he shall immediately sit down unless permitted on motion of another member to explain, and the House, if appealed to, shall decide in either case without debate. If the decision be in favor of the member called to order, he shall be at liberty to proceed, but not otherwise; and if the case require it, he shall be liable to censure or such punishment as the House may deem proper.

CALLED TO ORDER FOR OFFENSIVE WORDS IN DEBATE

39. If any member be called to order for offensive words in debate, the person calling him to order shall report the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the clerk's desk and no member shall be held to answer, or be subjected to the censure of the House, for language used in debate if any other member has spoken or other business has intervened after the words spoken and before exception to them shall have been taken.

MEMBERS MAY DEMAND YEAS AND NAYS

40. The yeas and nays shall not be ordered unless demanded by 15 members, except upon final passage of bills, joint resolutions, and motions directing the payment of money. In these cases yeas and nays shall be ordered without demand.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO DEBATE

41. Upon any member giving notice of his intention to debate any resolution, the same shall lie over one day without debate or any other action. This notice of intention to debate may be given at any time before the vote is taken on the resolution.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

42. Ten members may demand a call of the House and require absent members to be sent for; but a call of the House cannot be made after the voting has commenced, and such call being ordered, the doors shall be closed and no member permitted to leave the chamber until the call is suspended. And, pending the call, no motion shall be in order except it pertains to matters incidental to the call or motion to suspend further proceedings under the same, provided that the call shall not be suspended until a record of those present has been completed. Thereafter the call may be suspended by majority vote of the whole House only when all members are present or at any time by a two-thirds vote of the whole House. After the call of the House has been ordered and proceedings thereunder are suspended, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall not permit any member to leave the chamber unless excused by the Speaker.

SUSPENSION OF THE RULES TO HASTEN A BILL

43. Every bill shall be read on three different days, unless, in case of urgency, two-thirds of the whole House deem it expedient to dispense with this rule; and no bill shall be passed until it shall have been read at length twice, provided that no motion for suspension of the rules to advance a bill for consideration out of its regular order shall be made or entertained unless presented to the Speaker in writing stating the present position of the bill and then only under the order of business "Motions and Resolutions", as such order of business is reached under Rule 3. Unanimous consent must be first obtained by the member making the motion before the Speaker can entertain the motion to suspend the rules at any other time.

A motion to suspend the rules together with the subject matter to which it pertains shall be open to debate but the previous question may be applied thereto.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO MAKE A MOTION

44. Whenever unanimous consent to make a motion is requested by a member, the member as a part of such request shall state briefly the purpose of such motion and the subject matter involved.

PROCEEDINGS ON THE PASSAGE OF RESOLUTIONS INVOLVING THE EXPENDITURE OF MONEY, AND OF JOINT RESOLUTIONS

MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

47. When a question has once been made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the prevailing party to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for reconsideration of any vote shall be in order after a bill, resolution, message, report, or other official action upon which the vote was taken shall have gone out of the possession of the House, announcing their decision. Nor shall any motion for reconsideration be in order unless made on the same day upon which the vote was taken, or within the next two days of actual session of the House thereafter.

Such motion shall take precedence over all other questions, except the motion to adjourn; provided that when notice of intention to move such reconsideration of the final action of the House on any bill, resolution, message, report, or other final action of the House shall be given by a member, the Clerk of the House shall retain the said bill, resolution, message, report, or other final official action, until after the expiration of the time during which such motion can be made, as hereinbefore provided, unless the same is previously disposed of. Such notice of intention to move reconsideration of the final action of the House on any bill, resolution, message, report or other final action shall have precedence over the motion to reconsider, except that it shall be in order for any member who voted on the prevailing side to make the motion to reconsider on the last day allowed for the making thereof, unless the same has been previously disposed of. A motion for reconsideration having been put and lost shall not be renewed.

THE MOTION TO RESCIND

48. The motion to rescind shall not be in order at any time in any proceeding in the House or of any committee thereof.

PERMANENT AND INTERIM COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS OF THE LEGISLATURE

The committee system is the legislature's way of delegating responsibility and of maintaining a continuous, smooth functioning operation in the face of manifold and complex problems. Not all legislative responsibilities can be efficiently carried out by a legislative body acting as a whole, nor can all the duties be properly performed during the 120-day regular sessions. This has given rise to Permanent Committees and Interim Committees in addition to the Standing Committees previously listed in this chapter.

Permanent Committees and Commissions

Committees having a permanent status, as distinguished from those operating only during sessions or the interim between sessions, are established to deal with problems of a continuous and recurring nature.

Office Staff

12 State Capitol

Director of Research: Louis C. Dorweiler, Jr.—Salary $15,500.
Research Analysts: Philip M. Snyder, John F. Ebner.

Functions and Services

The members of the Legislative Research Committee consist of one Senator and one Representative from each of Minnesota's congressional districts. The committee was first established in 1947.

The prime purpose of this committee is to gather information and material to be used by the Legislature in its work while in session. Thus, it has power to study, and compile information on any subject upon which the Legislature may legislate.

Committee projects and research studies are generally initiated in two ways. The Legislature by resolution may direct or authorize the committee to study certain problems. Individual legislators may initiate studies by making a written request to the committee, stating the reasons why such study would be desirable. If the committee approves of the request the study is undertaken.

Much of the work of assembling facts, conducting research, and preparing reports is done by a staff of permanent employees, consisting of a director of research, three research analysts, and clerks.

The Legislatice Research Committee has become a vital clearing house for legislative information. It serves to provide much of the facts upon which important legislative decisions are made.

Legislative Advisory Committee

(Minnesota Statutes 1965, Sec. 3.30)

MEMBERS:

Senate	House
Donald Sinclair, Chairman, Finance Committee	Richard Fitzsimons, Chairman Appropriations Committee
Donald O. Wright, Chairman, Taxes and Tax Laws Committee	John Hartle, Chairman, Committee on Taxes

Governor Harold LeVander, President
Rolland F. Hatfield, Commissioner of Administration, Secretary

Functions and Services

The Legislative Advisory Committee was established in 1941 to advise the Governor on the allocation of funds from several contingent funds authorized by the Legislature. The general purpose of the contingent funds is to supplement existing appropriations of the Legislature which, because of certain emergencies or unforseen circumstances, must be supplemented by additional funds in order for the administrative agency to fulfill its responsibilities.

The committee meets quarterly. The Governor serves as presiding officer, but is not a member of the committee. The Commissioner of Administration is the secretary of the committee.

In its capacity as advisor to the governor on the allocation of public relief funds, the committee is designated as the Minnesota Public Relief Advisory Committee. Public relief is defined to include direct relief, farm relief, veterans' relief, unemployment relief.

The committee consists of the chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance and Committee on Taxes and Tax Laws, and the chairmen of the House Committee on Appropriations and Committee on Taxes.

Legislative Building Commission

(Minnesota Statutes 1965, Sec. 3.421)

Functions and Services

This commission was established for the purpose of maintaining a continuous study of the building needs of the state government. The need for such a permanent commission grew out of the experience of the 1955 interim commission of state building. The 1955 commission made the first comprehensive study of state building and building needs.

The commission will study current and future requirements for new buildings, for maintenance of existing buildings, for remodeling of old buildings, and will explore methods of financing the building program.

State Claims Commission

(Minnesota Statutes 1965, Sec. 3.66)

Functions and Services

The state cannot be sued unless it gives its consent. This rule is an outgrowth of the ancient doctrine that "the king can do not wrong." In certain cases the legislature by law has permitted the state to be sued in law or equity. The purpose of the State Claims Commission is to hear and consider claims against the state which may not be heard in a court of law or equity.

The object of having this commission operate during the interim between sessions is to avoid the accumulation of an excessive number of claims which would have to be heard by the standing committees of the legislature during the regular session.

Claims may be instituted by filing a statement of claim with the Commission Clerk at 109 State Capitol, St. Paul. The statement should set forth in detail the basis and amount of the claim, and should specify the state agency concerned.

A copy of each claim is transmitted by the Commission Clerk to the agency concerned and to the attorney general. The clerk examines the claim to determine whether it is within the jurisdiction of the commission, and if it is, is placed upon the agenda to be heard by the full commission. If the claim is not within the jurisdiction of the commission, the claimant is so notified and he may appear before the commission to show cause why the commission should assume jurisdiction.

The commission meets at least four times during the legislative interim. No liability is imposed upon the state by commission approval of a claim, unless the Legislature has previously made an appropriation for the payment of a claim subject only to the determination of the commission.

On or before the first day of October preceding the regular session of the Legislature, the commission must certify to the Commissioner of Administration the claims approved and awards recommended. This permits such claims to be included in budget estimates to be submitted to the Governor-elect.

Great Lakes Commission

(Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 1.22)

Functions and Services

The Great Lakes Basin Compact, adopted by the Legislature in 1955, provides for the establishment of a commission composed of not less than three and no more than five commissioners from each party state. The commission is to carry out the objectives of the compact which are: (1) To promote the orderly integrated development and use of the water resources of the Great Lakes Basin; (2) to make it possible for the states of the basin to derive the maximum benefit from the utilization of public works, such as navigational aids, which may exist or be constructed from time to time; (3) to advise in securing a proper balance of water supply for commercial, agricultural, residential and recreational uses.

The commission is created as an agency of the party states, with the ability to acquire and hold property, to sue and be sued. The following states are members of the Great Lakes Commission: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

CONSTITUTIONAL OFFICERS

Governor
Lieutenant Governor
Secretary of State
State Auditor
State Treasurer
Attorney General

The executive department is established by Article V of the Minnesota Constitution. It provides for a six-member executive department consisting of a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and attorney general. These officers are commonly known as the "constitutional officers" to distinguish them from the administrative department heads who are provided for by legislative enactments. Each of these "constitutional officers" is elected by the people and, therefore, is ultimately responsible to them.

Legal Basis

Minnesota Constitution, Article V.

Qualifications and Term

According to the Minnesota Constitution, Article V, Section 3, to qualify for the office of Governor a person must have attained the age of 25 years; shall have been a bonafide resident of the state for one year next preceding his election; and shall be a citizen of the United States. The Governor is elected by the people for a term of four years beginning with the first Monday in January of an odd numbered year.

Functions and Services

A. Responsibility for Legislative Program: The Governor has the responsibility of informing the Legislature of the general condition of the state. This is done by means of his inaugural message delivered personally by the Governor to a joint legislative session immediately after he takes his oath of office.

The financial needs of the state government for the next four fiscal years are presented to the Legislature in the Governor's proposed budget, submitted in printed form, within three weeks after the Governor's inauguration. In addition, he submits special messages to the Legislature from time to time on such subjects as he feels warrants particular emphasis and specific attention.

The Governor must review all laws passed by the Legislature. He may approve by signing a bill, or he may veto a bill by returning it to the Legislature stating his objections. A two-thirds vote in each legislative body is required to pass a bill over the Governor's veto.

On extraordinary occasions the Governor may call a special session of the Legislature—to enable the Legislature to complete the unfinished business of the regular session; or to consider emergencies that must be decided between regular sessions.

B. State Department and Agency Appointments: The Governor appoints the majority of the heads of the state departments and a majority of the members of most boards and commissions. Such appointments are submitted to the Senate for confirmation.

In order to develop his legislative proposals and plans for executive action, the Governor may require written reports of these agency heads. The terms of the heads of state government vary from two to six years.

Pursuant to the legal authorization invested in him the Governor makes over 240 appointments including department heads, boards and commissions.

In the event of a vacancy on the Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota occurring between legislative sessions, the Governor makes an interim appointment.

C. Advisory Committee Appointments: To assist the Governor and department heads in the preparation of programs for legislative and/or executive action, the Governor may establish advisory committees. These committees study state problems and make necessary recommendations.

D. Judicial Appointments: The Governor fills vacancies which occur in municipal, district, and supreme court judgeships. These appointments do not require confirmation by the Senate.

E. Extradition, and Civil Rights Power: The Governor issues extradition papers and restores civil rights to felons.

Governor Levander with capitol visitors

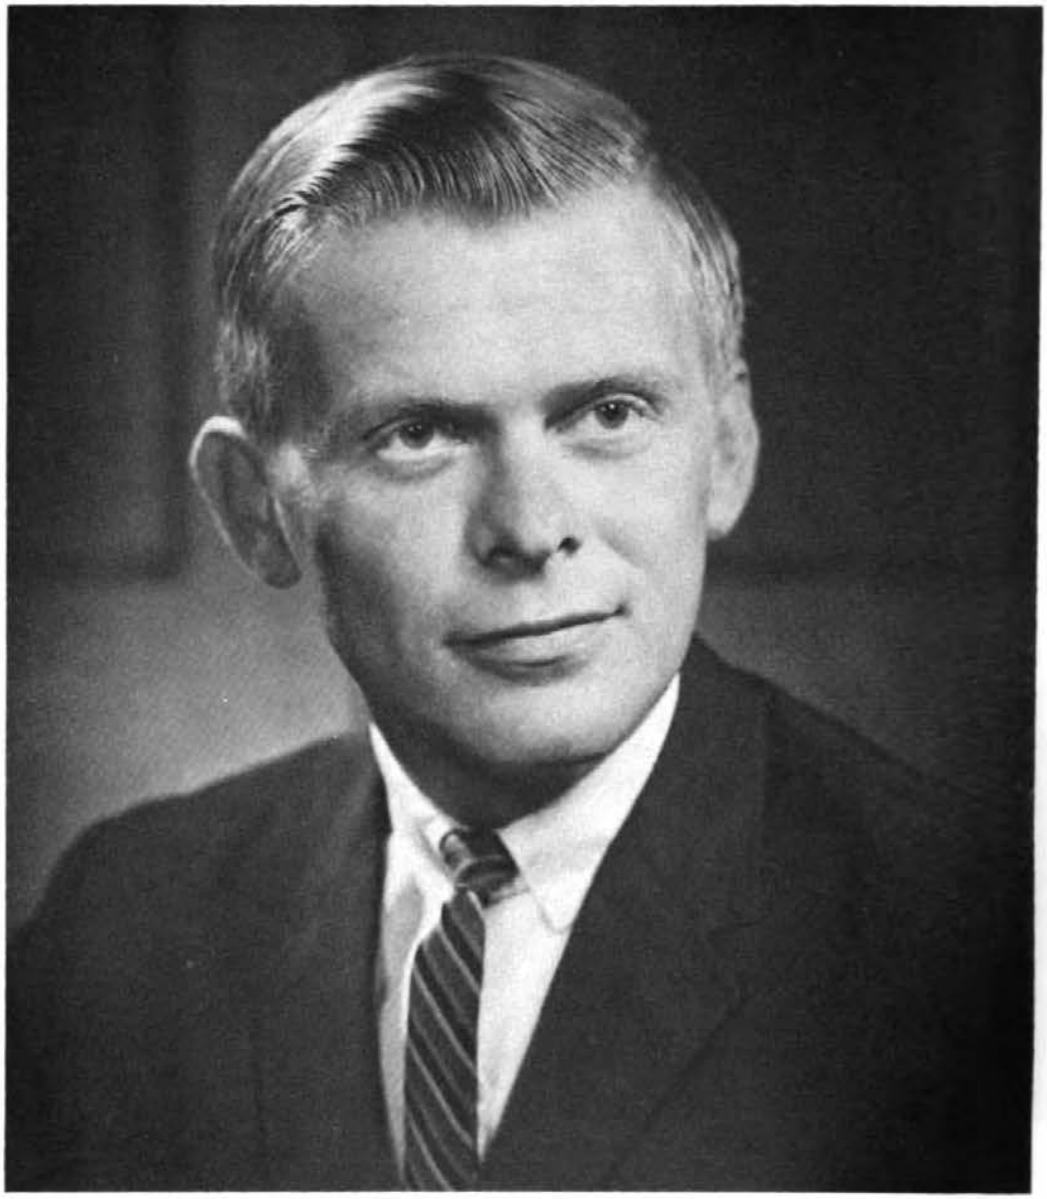

F. Commissioning Notaries Public: The Governor commissions notaries public. Approximately 5,500 commissions are issued during each fiscal year.

G. Commander-in-Chief of Military Forces: The Governor is commander-in-chief of the military forces in Minnesota. He may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress insurrections, and repel invasion, and for such other emergencies as he may determine.

H. Planning: The Governor as state planning officer prepares comprehensive long range plans for the orderly coordinated growth of the state. He reports with recommendations to the legislature for the implementation of such plans.

I. Ex Officio Membership: The Governor is an ex officio member of the State Pardon Board, the Executive Council, the State Board of Investment, and the Land Exchange Commission. He presides over the Legislative Advisory Committee.

Functions and Services

One of the first duties of the Secretary of State upon assuming office is to call the House of Representatives to order when the legislature convenes. The Secretary of State is keeper of the Great Seal of the State of Minnesota, and certifies records, documents and legislative acts.

During the past eight years the number of new corporations organized under these acts has increased by 50 per cent.

The Secretary of State is responsible for many functions in the state election machinery including the filing of candidates for certain elective offices, the collection of filing fees, preparation of forms, printing the state and constitutional amendment ballots, certifying names of candidates to county auditors, and serving as chairman of the state canvassing board.

Beginning July 1, 1966 financing statements evidencing indebtedness secured by personal property mortgage, lien or conditional sales are filed under the Uniform Commercial Code for certain debtors and types of property.

Other duties of the Secretary of State cover registration of trade marks, issuance of detective licenses, conducting special censuses, preparation of the Legislative Manual, and registration of charitable organizations, private trade schools, and legal newspapers. A duplicate record of each auctioneer's license issued by a county auditor is filed with the Secretary of State.

The Secretary of State also is registrar of motor vehicles. He issues license plates and collects fees for more than two and one quarter million vehicles each year. The license plates are issued by deputy registrars located throughout the state, or at the Highway Building for those who prefer to mail or bring their tax registration to the main office.

The Secretary of State must also license new and used auto dealers, chauffeurs and school bus drivers. In 1966, in addition to registering 2,212,000 motor vehicles and executing 825,000 transfers of title, the Secretary of State issued 2,200 auto dealers' licenses and 210,000 chauffeurs' and school bus drivers' licenses.

From the 2,212,000 motor vehicle registrations in 1966 the state collected 52 million dollars.

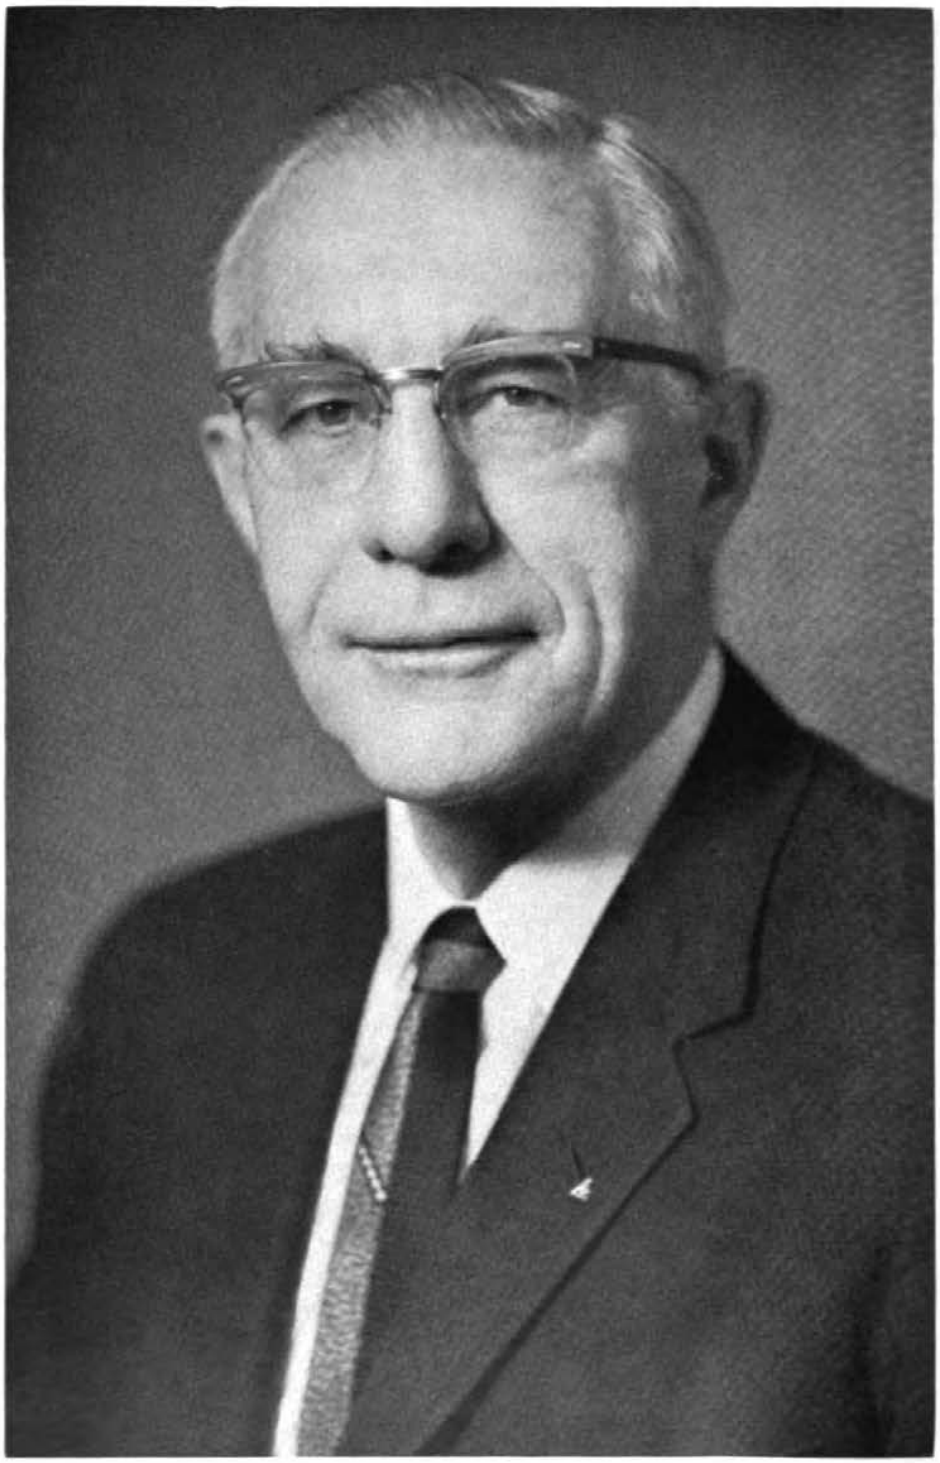

The volume of registrations in the motor vehicle division has increased over 135 per cent since 1947. The impact of this growth on service of the division has led to a program for mechanizing the processing and procedures of the motor vehicle division, operating since 1958.

Legal Basis

Minnesota Constitution, Article V

Qualifications and Term

The Constitution, Article VII, Section 7, requires only that the Attorney General be a citizen of the United States, a resident of the State of Minnesota, and be entitled to vote. The Attorney General serves a four year term.

Functions and Services

The Attorney General is the chief legal officer for the state and is the legal advisor to the Governor and all of the constitutional officers. He is the legal advisor for the state legislature and all of its committees. Every board, commission and agency of the state receives its legal advice from the Attorney General. His opinions have the force and effect of law as they apply to tax and education matters. In addition thereto, his opinions are generally sought and followed by the attorneys for the cities, villages, counties, towns and townships of the state. The Attorney General's duties stem from the constitution, statutes, and the common law.

The Attorney General assists in the legislative process. He and the members of his staff assist members of the legislature in drafting new legislation or amendments to existing laws. Often the Governor, before signing or vetoing bills, consults with the Attorney General and is provided with his analysis and advice with respect to the effect of a given bill. Administrative rules and regulations must be submitted to the Attorney General for approval as to form and legality.

The Attorney General appears for the state in all cases in the Supreme and Federal Courts, in all civil cases in the District Courts, and upon request of the Governor or any county attorney in any criminal case in the District Courts.

The Attorney General prosecutes all actions against persons who claim an interest adverse to the state, as well as claims of the state against the Federal government. He may institute, conduct and maintain any action or proceeding he deems necessary for the enforcement of the laws of the state, the preservation of order, and the protection of public rights. The Attorney General may inquire into the affairs of charitable corporations and, if necessary, may take action to terminate their corporate existence where it appears that they are not operating in the public interest. He may also apply for injunctions against violators of the law governing solicitation of charitable funds.

The Attorney General possesses authority to enforce compliance with the state's anti-trust laws and to protect the Minnesota consumer.

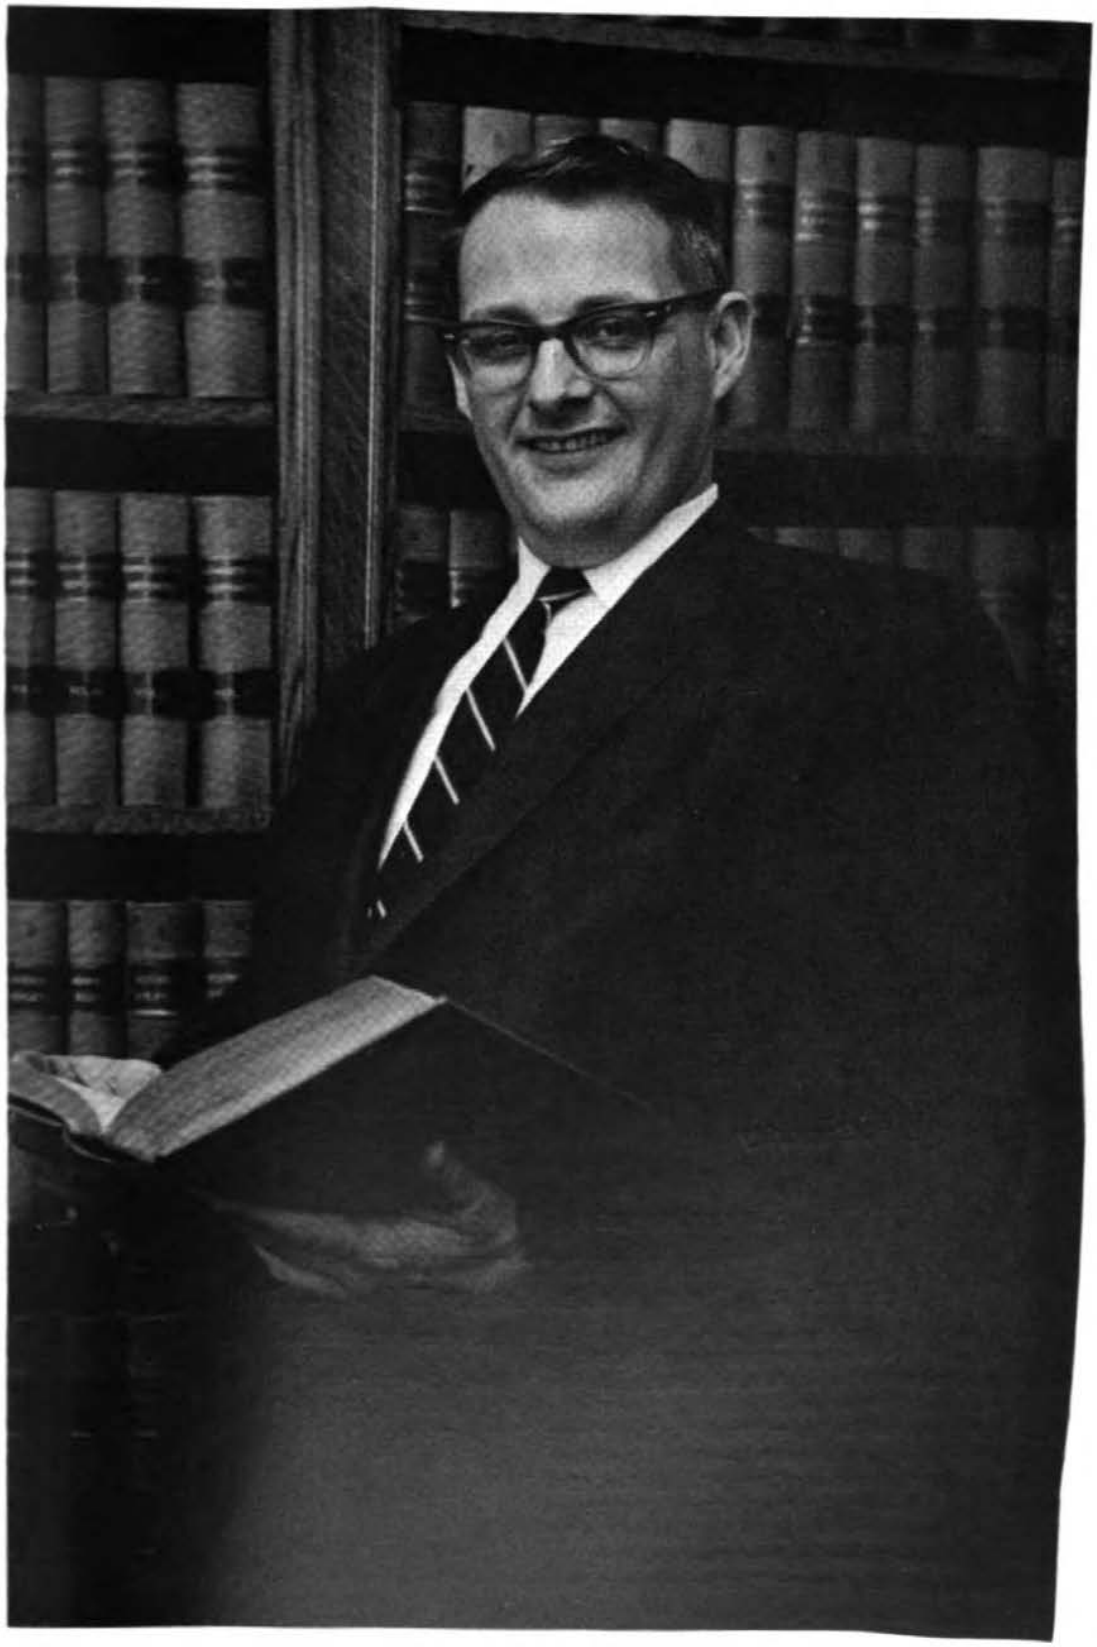

The Attorney General selects opinions of general interest and submits a compilation of them to the Governor biennially. This report deals with cases in which the Attorney General has appeared for the state. The Attorney General's report also contains tables of criminal offenses reported by the county attorneys as well as recommendations for the amendment of laws in the State of Minnesota.

The Attorney General supervises the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension and provides legal services to the Banking, Conservation, Corrections, Employment Security, Highway, Insurance, Securities, Taxation and other divisions of state government.

The Attorney General is a member of the State Executive Council, the State Board of Investment and the Board of Pardons, as well as the State Archives Commission, the Land Exchange Commission, the State Publication Board and other boards and commissions.

ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCIES*

In this section of Chapter 3 as listed below are gathered the departments, boards, and commissions whose principal functions appear to be administrative, as distinguished from agencies and commissions whose functions are primarily policy forming, advisory, or examining and licensing. Retirement boards are also set forth in a separate section.

During the past one hundred years the legislature has enacted laws which have expanded the role of the state government and increased the duties of the executive branch of government. In order that these duties may be properly executed the legislature has provided for many new administrative departments and agencies within the executive branch. The governing bodies and administrative heads of most of these departments are appointed by the governor and are responsible to him for the proper operation of their agency.

The various laws assigned to the department for enforcement give the commissioner his basic regulatory powers. In addition, the legislature has given to the commissioner the power to enact rules, regulations, definitions, and standards to explain and clarify the law and to cope with changing conditions.

The commissioner is the administrative official in charge of the department. He sets the policy to be followed by the personnel of the department and makes the final decisions on prosecutions and special investigations. His deputy has authority to act in his behalf during the commissioner's absence. The deputy is also empowered by law to sit on certain committees and boards in the commissioner's place, and to have a vote on such board when this is authorized by the commissioner.

It is also the duty of the Department of Agriculture and the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota to cooperate in all ways that may be beneficial to the agricultural interests of the state.

There are nine major divisions in the Department of Agriculture. These are the Divisions of Administrative Services, Agronomy Services, Economic Practices, Food Inspection, Laboratory Services, Marketing Services, Plant Industry, Poultry Industries and State-Federal Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES DIVISION'S director acts as the head administrative officer under the commissioner, consults with the commissioner and deputy commissioner and suggests and plans with them a department program designed to meet the needs of agriculture, industry and consumers in Minnesota. The Section for Cooperatives renders assistance to cooperatives as required by law and performs cooperative auditing services according to requests made to the department. The Section of Dairy Trade Practices administers the laws and regulations, 1) which require manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors of milk and selected dairy products to file schedules of prices at which sales will be made wholesale to retailers, and 2) which govern unfair trade practices in the dairy industry.

FOOD INSPECTION DIVISION enforces all food laws relating to meat and fish, food in general and dairy products including Grade A milk. Standards enforced include composition of foods, labeling, sanitation, grading and pricing. Inspectors in this division submit samples of foods, anti-freeze, paint and hazardous substances to the Laboratory Division for analyses and inspect food for freedom from adulteration. Samples of food products are checked for sanitary qualities including freedom from certain disease producing organisms.

LABORATORY SERVICES DIVISION functions as a service division to other regulatory and administrative divisions, essentially those which have field inspection responsibilities requiring official samples for chemical, bacteriological, microscopic and special analyses and assays to determine if they meet specific standards established by law, regulation or guarantees for safety and quality.

MARKETING SERVICES DIVISION performs services which fall into two areas; the promotion of Minnesota's agricultural and food products, and the inspection at shipping points and terminals of fresh vegetables and fruits having state and federal standards. Joint projects with the Market News Service of the USDA includes fruit and vegetable, livestock, dairy and poultry reporting. The monthly news letter, Minnesota Marketing Messenger is published by this division.

PLANT INDUSTRY DIVISION carries on apiary inspection and disease control, insect and plant disease survey for agriculture and forestry as basis for control, and eradication programs on barberry and Ribes Species to control stem rust of cereals and blister rust of pine. Nursery inspections reduce spread of new and injurious plant pests as do quarantine enforcement on commodity shipments. Rodent and predator control is done cooperatively with USDI. State seed laboratory aids in planting pure, clean seed. Seed potato certification is important and of national renown.

POULTRY INDUSTRIES DIVISION supervises hatcheries and breeder flocks participating in the National Poultry and Turkey Improvement Plans and conducts random sample performance tests to guide producers in selecting stocks of chicks and poults. The state department is organized into four major divisions: administration, instruction, rehabilitation and special education, and vocational and technical education.

Due to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, and Title V of that act in particular, which authorized aid to state departments of education, new personnel and units are being added to the staff. In 1965-66 new units included the Data Processing, Publications and Federal Programs Sections. The Midwestern States Education Information Project, an attempt to disseminate computerized information through 13 participating states, and the Roles and Practices of State Boards of Education Study Project were also initiated during this period.

Purposes and Functions

The Department of Education is the operating agency through which the education-oriented laws of the legislature and the policies of the State Board of Education are administered. Functions of the department may be classified as follows:

Leadership: The department assists local school authorities to meet and improve minimum requirements of state laws through initiative and experimentation. This function is divided further into six smaller categories: planning, research, consultation, coordination, public information and in-service education.

Regulation: The department uses its authority to insure the basic needs of the instruction program and to protect the lives and educational health of the state's children. It aims at efficiency in administration, safety and economy in the use of public school funds, and an educated citizenry.

Operation: These functions refer to the department's direct responsibilities for establishing and maintaining classes conducted by field instructors for services to individuals and services provided by the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

There are no specific qualifications prescribed by statute or the constitution for the Commissioner of Highways. However, Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 161.03, provides that "there will be one Assistant Commissioner in the Classified Service who shall be a registered professional highway or civil engineer".

Organization

The Commissioner of Highways is appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate for a four year term. The Commissioner may appoint a confidential secretary who shall be in the unclassified service and shall serve at the pleasure of the Commissioner. All other officers and employees of the Department are appointed under the provisions of civil service. Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 161.03, provides that "subject to other applicable laws, the Commissioner may organize the Department and employ such assistants, officers, employees, and agents as he deems necessary to carry out the duties of his office and the functions of the Department". The present organization of the Department can be ascertained from an examination of the divisions listed above.

Purposes and Functions

The purpose and functions of the Highway Department fall into the following three broad program areas:

A. Construction and maintenance of state trunk highways which include the Federal-aid Interstate highways. In fulfilling this purpose the department: (1) determines present and future needs to provide adequate and safe trunk highway facilities, and develops long and short range programs to satisfy these needs; (2) acquire land and right of way needed for highway purposes, in cooperation with the Office of the Attorney General; (3) designs, constructs and maintains highways, bridges and related structures on 12,000 miles of regular trunk highways and Interstate routes. Construction and maintenance activities are carried on through a Central Office in St. Paul and nine District headquarters located throughout the State; these nine geographical districts being further subdivided into a total of sixteen maintenance areas.

B. Administration of state and federal aid to counties and state aid to municipalities. This requires approval and designation of the eligible local routes, proper distribution of available funds, review and approval of all plans for construction projects that meet design standards, inspection and acceptance of participating maintenance and construction operations. It is also necessary to provide needed engineering and technical assistance to the extent available, to act for the counties in all matters pertaining to the use of federal aid funds and to provide liaison services between local officials and those of the state and federal government.

C. Highway Traffic Safety. In carrying out this function the department: (1) examines and licenses drivers of motor vehicles and maintains records of accidents and law violations; (2) enforces state laws on all regular and interstate highways in the state; (3) conducts safety education programs for both drivers and pedestrians.

Minnesota Historical Society

The Minnesota Historical Society is unique among state organizations —it appears to be both a state agency, and a private non-state society.

In addition to the fact that sections of Minnesota Statutes refer to the society as an agency of the state government, the legislature has placed upon the Historical Society certain duties which would characterize it as a state agency. It serves as secretariat for the State Geographic Board. The director of the society serves on this board and the Minnesota State Archives Commission, which boards are entirely composed of state officials. The society is a repository for state documents and the primary library for books on the State of Minnesota.

Approximately 70 per cent of the society's funds are received from legislative appropriations. The funds donated from private sources are used primarily to finance special projects. In the disposition of these private funds the society is deemed a private corporation.

In conformity with past practice the membership, department staff, and functions and services of the commission are set forth in this chapter under the section Semi-State Societies.

The commissioner of human rights is responsible for formulating policies which will effectuate the purposes of the Minnesota State Act Against Discrimination and for exercising leadership in the development of human rights policies and practices.

The commissioner has the statutory obligation for issuing complaints and receiving and investigating charges alleging unfair discriminatory practices and for attempting to eliminate unfair discriminatory practices as being contrary to the public policy of the state by means of education, conference, conciliation, and persuasion.

The commissioner is responsible for the conducting, publishing, and distribution of research studies; for developing and conducting programs of formal and informal education; for creating such local and statewide advisory committees as will effectuate the purposes of the department; for disseminating technical assistance to persons subject to the Minnesota State Act Against Discrimination, and for providing specific assistance in planning and programming to effectively serve the needs of Indians and women in the state of Minnesota.

Within the Department of Human Rights a state board of human rights of 15 members, appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, serves in an advisory capacity to the commissioner. Members of the board are to be appointed with due regard to their fitness for the effective dispatch of the functions, powers, and duties vested in and imposed upon the board, with at least three members lawyers admitted to practice law within the state of Minnesota. The board members are appointed for terms of three years and recommend programs and policies to the commissioner so as to enable him to better carry out the terms and provisions of Minnesota Statutes, Chapter 363.

Within the department there is a division of women's affairs, and a 15-member advisory committee on women's affairs appointed by the commissioner to assist and advise him. The advisory committee members are appointed for two-year terms.

The State Department of Human Rights is responsible for securing compliance with the Minnesota State Act Against Discrimination, which makes it an unlawful act to discriminate against anyone in employment, housing, public accommodations, public services, or education because of his race, color, creed, religion, or national origin.

In the case of specific charges of unfair discriminatory practices, the commissioner is responsible for inquiring into the facts in order to determine if probable cause exists, in which case a hearing examiner, or a three-man panel of the board, holds a public hearing on the complaint. Prior to the hearing, the commissioner endeavors to eliminate the unfair discriminatory practices through education, conference, conciliation, and persuasion.

The hearing examiner makes findings of fact, conclusions of law, and issues an order which is subject to judicial review in district court, or which may be enforced by the commissioner in district court by requesting the court to order the respondent to comply with the order of the department.

Organization and Functions

The Workmen's Compensation Commission is the administrative agency of the Department of Labor and Industry. It is supervised by three commissioners appointed by the Governor for six year terms. A term of one commissioner expires every two years on June 30. The last two years of his appointment he serves as chairman of the Commission. All staff members other than the commissioners are under Civil Service.

Matters directly affecting workers and employers, with a strong emphasis on safety, are handled by the Department of Labor and Industry. This agency is commonly referred to as the Industrial Commission, which is the administrative body of the department.

There are eight divisions in the department—accident prevention, boiler inspection, statistics, steamfitting standards, voluntary apprenticeship, workmen's compensation, women and children and general administration. In addition to running the department, the Industrial Commission decides appeals from its referees' findings in workmen's compensation cases and establishes minimum wages for women and minors. Determinations of the Commission may be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The department is charged with eliminating hazardous conditions and promoting safe working standards in industry and the trades. Places of employment are checked to determine safety of equipment and general working conditions. Correction orders are issued where warranted. Enforcement of laws pertaining to working women and children is handled by the Division of Women and Children.

Boiler operators, steamfitters and fee employment agencies are licensed by the department. Supervision and promotion of the state's apprenticeship program in trades and industries and enforcement of compensation laws in connection with industrial accidents are department activities. The commission administers workmen's compensation for state employees.

Qualifications for Conciliator

No statutory qualifications are prescribed; however, the Labor Conciliator has always had extensive experience in employer-employee relations and collective bargaining.

Organization

The Minnesota Labor Relations Act of 1939 established the Division of Conciliation in charge of the State Labor Conciliator. Although the Division was established in the Department of Labor and Industry, it is in no way subject to the control of that department. The Division has since become known as the Division of Labor Conciliation. The State Labor Conciliator is appointed by the Governor for a four year term, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Other employees of the Division, known as assistant labor conciliators, are selected through the civil service process. One of the assistants is designated as deputy by the Labor Conciliator. Clerical personnel also are employed through civil service.

Purpose and Functions

The purpose of the Minnesota Labor Relations Act and the policies of the Division of Labor Conciliation is the maintenance and promotion of industrial peace within Minnesota. Tempered with this desire for industrial peace is the protection of the rights and interests of the public, employers, representatives of employees, and the employees. This basic purpose finds the Division attempting to meet two objectives; the first being the settlement of work stoppages before they occur, and the second, the reduction of man days lost due to a work stoppage when it occurs.

By holding conciliation meetings, acting as bargaining agent hearings officers, conducting bargaining agent elections, and by maintaining a list of qualified labor-management arbitrators, the Division seeks to meet the above mentioned objectives.

The Division of Labor Conciliation administers certain sections of Minnesota Statutes 179. Basically, the Division provides four functions: The holding of conciliation meetings; the holding of bargaining unit hearings; conducting bargaining unit elections; and maintaining a list of qualified labor-management arbitrators.

Found in Minnesota Statutes 179 is statutory language covering three distinct industries or areas of employment. The first is that language covering the private employment situation. The second involves employment in the public sector—state, county or municipal employment. And the third, employment situations involving charitable hospitals. In each of these three employment areas, the Division provides the same four duties: Conciliation, bargaining unit hearings, bargaining unit elections, and the maintenance of a qualified arbitration list.

Each of the four basic functions of the Division does not receive equal proportions of the Division's manpower. Approximately 85% of the total manpower available is assigned to the conciliation function. Conciliation is the process by which a third party acts as a catalyst for two parties having opposite or differing viewpoints. The conciliator attempts, through a variety of techniques, to bring the parties to a point of mutual agreement on a particular item or items. When a staff member acts as a conciliator, it is his responsibility to bring the parties together through the use of reason, suggestions, and information. He in no way makes a ruling or a decision, but rather must bring the parties into agreement through persuasion. It is only when a staff member acts as a hearings officer that he possesses certain binding authority.

Commissioner: Gale F. Lindsey—Salary $14,500. Appointed by Governor for four years. Term expires January 1, 1971.
Executive Secretary: John A. Muer. Civil Service.
Chief of Enforcement: Walter E. Perlt. Civil Service.
Superintendent of Import: Leroy V. Cusick. Civil Service.

Legal Basis

Minnesota Statutes 1965, Sections 340.08, 340.09.

Qualifications for Commissioner

The Commissioner must be a resident of Minnesota for at least five years before appointment and have no direct or indirect financial interest in the manufacture, transportation, or sale of intoxicating liquor, malt or vinous beverages (intoxicating or not intoxicating), or commercial or industrial alcohol (Section 340.08, Minnesota Statutes 1961).

Organization and Functions

This department was established in 1934 after repeal of the National Prohibition Act and passage of the Minnesota Liquor Control Act, and is supervised by a Commissioner, who is appointed by the Governor for a four year term. All other employees of the department are under Civil Service.

The department oversees and enforces the collection of all excise taxes on distilled liquor, wine and beer, which annually totals approximately $23,000,000. This supervision is accomplished through inspections, by agents of the Commissioner, of all distilled liquor and wine at the time of arrival in the state. The monthly report required from distillers, vintners, brewers and wholesalers, whether located in state or out of state are checked and audited for the purpose of establishing tax liability. Periodic inspections are made of all retail beverage dealers in the state. Thus the channels of all branches of the alcoholic beverage industry are regulated from the manufacturer down to the consumer

The Commissioner approves all licenses and bonds for manufacturers, importers, wholesalers and off-sale liquor licensees, and checks all certifications for on-sale and club liquor licenses issued by municipal authorities. The commissioner also must approve the standards of quality and brands of all alcoholic beverages sold in the state. The department controls all advertising of alcoholic beverages and registers all brand labels. In addition, the Commissioner issues permits to private clubs and public places allowing the consumption and display of intoxicating liquor.

Liquor Control Inspectors assist local offiicals in the enforcement of the Liquor Control Act. Over a period of a year such assistance will include approximately two-thirds of the counties of the state. Recent emphasis has been directed at unlicensed sale of liquor and violations involving persons under 21 years of age.

Organization and Functions

The Adjutant General is the head of the Department of Military Affairs and is appointed by the Governor for an indefinite term. Other department officials are appointed by the Adjutant General for indefinite terms and are placed on state military duty. Each official of the department receives the same pay and allowances of his grade as is authorized officers of similar rank and length of service in the Regular Army of the United States.

The Adjutant General is charged with the recruitment, organization, administration, training, discipline, and supply of the military force of the state, designated as the Minnesota National Guard, which is equipped and, to a very large extent, maintained by the federal government. This force has a dual status in that it is the Minnesota National Guard when in the service of the state and the National Guard of the United States when it is ordered into active military service. When the Guard is in active federal service and the security and welfare of the state is endangered because of the absence from the state of this military force, the Military Code of Minnesota prescribes that the military force of the state will consist of the Minnesota State Guard, organized from those of the Militia of the state who are not likely to be called to federal service during the war or emergency.

The Adjutant General, on appointment by the Executive Council, is the Disaster Relief Coordinator and is responsible for coordinating the use of state agencies and of state and federal emergency funds allocated by the Executive Council or by the federal government.

The Minnesota National Guard has served in active federal service in all of our nation's wars, beginning with the Civil War. The 47th Infantry Division, which was first activated in Minnesota following World War II, was ordered into active service for the Korean Incident and served for two years at Camp Rucker, Alabama. Thousands of members of this division were sent overseas to serve in combat units on the Korean Front. Other units of the Army National Guard and all of our Air National Guard units also served for two years during the Korean Conflict. In October 1961, the 133rd Military Airlift Wing and its subordinate units at Wold-Chamberlain Field were ordered into active federal service in connection with the Berlin Crisis and served for one year, flying strategic transport missions in support of our global military operations.

During the period while the Minnesota National Guard was on active duty for World War II and the Korean War, the department organized and maintained a Minnesota State Guard. Whereas the National Guard is armed, uniformed, equipped, and paid for armory drill and field training by the federal government, the State Guard receives no pay while in service in the state by the federal government, and the state must pay for supplying arms and equipment for this force. Plans have been prepared for reactivation of the State Guard should a national emergency again require federal mobilization of our National Guard units.

At the present time the Minnesota National Guard has a strength of over 12,300 officers and men. Approximately 10,000 are assigned to the 47th Infantry Division of the Army National Guard, and the remainder are assigned to the 133rd Military Airlift Wing, Minneapolis, and the 148th Fighter Group, Duluth.

Army National Guard units are stationed in 67 state-owned armories situated throughout the state and at an Army Aviation base at the Saint Paul Downtown Airport. Air National Guard units are located at a state-owned base at Duluth International Airport, Duluth, and at a federally owned airbase under license to the state at Minneapolis-Saint Paul International Airport, Minneapolis.

The Military Department also has control over Camp Ripley Military Reservation, located seven miles north of Little Falls, Minnesota. Owned by the State of Minnesota, the camp has more than 53,000 acres of ranges and training areas and can provide housing and training facilities for up to 10,000 troops at one time. National Guardsmen from seven states, totaling more than 35,000 men, conduct summer training there each year. In addition, certain Minnesota units conduct cold-weather training there during winter months and weekend training on a year-round basis. Although the land was purchased and is owned by the state, most of the buildings have been constructed from federal funds and most of the funds for support of the camp come from federal sources.

The law requires it to work closely with public accountants for the purpose of raising auditing standards in the field of local government.

In addition to his duties as head of the department, the Public Examiner serves as a member of the Archives Commission. The Public Service Commission consists of the three members of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission who shall serve out the term for which elected and shall be eligible for re-election for one six-year term. Not more than two commissioners shall belong to the same political party.

Division is headed by a Drector appointed in the same manner as Commissioners but for a four-year term to run concurrently with the Governor's term. All other employees of the commission are under Civil Service, except the personal secretaries to the commissioners. Chapter 864 Laws of 1967 left the Commission Secretary under Civil Service but provided that any new Secretary shall be appointed by the Commission and shall be in the unclassified service.

The commission has jurisdiction over the regulation of railroads, bus and truck companies, telephone companies, grain inspection and weighing, public terminal grain warehouses, public local grain warehouses, livestock weighing, livestock buyers or dealers, weights and measures and warehouses (other than cold storage). The railroad laws include the regulation of rail freight rates, clearances, crossings, abandonment of agency and custodian service and passenger trains, but not including passenger train fares.

The commission regulates the fares and express rates of bus companies. It regulates and fixes the rates to be charged by regular route common carriers and petroleum carriers. It does not regulate the rates of irregular route common carriers, contract carriers, charter carriers, livestock carriers, and household goods carriers. The bus and truck division prepares commission orders covering bus and truck operations, including the issuance of certificates of public convenience and necessity, in the transportation of passengers and property as common carriers. All other types of carriers by motor vehicle are also required to have public hearings, except the livestock carrier.

The commission conducts hearings in a semi-judicial capacity when considering applications for certificates of public convenience and necessity, amendments thereto, applications for change in rates and charges for the carriage of passengers and property. All testimony taken at public hearings is reported and the commission renders formal decisions either denying or granting the application in whole or in part. Its decision may be appealed to the district courts within thirty days of service of the orders.

The secretary of the commission is custodian of the property and records of the commission, is required to sign all notices and orders of the commission, and acts as attorney for various divisions. He also acts as consultant to the three commissioners and as hearing officer or counsel in the more important cases.

The Engineering Division, under the direction of the Chief Engineer, maintains records of valuation of the physical properties of the 22 railroads operating in the state, investigates and conducts hearings on application for changes in railroad services such as trackage abandonments, agency service, passenger train abandonments, crossings and crossing protection, and train speeds, and makes such other studies and investigations on engineering matters and railroad operations as directed by the Commission.

The telephone division supervises all telephone companies doing business in the state. It audits annual reports of all companies and makes recommendations to the commission on rate matters.

The rate division is charged with the duty and responsibility of studying, preparing and recommending data on transportation rates, fares and charges. Statistical data is prepared for submission to the Minnesota and Interstate Commerce Commissions at hearings affecting the establishment of reasonable rates for the transportation of property.

The livestock buyers or dealers division supervises buyers of livestock for resale. Such buyers must obtain a license and keep on file a surety bond to cover their operations.

The livestock weighing division operates a weighing center at the South St. Paul stockyards and maintains stations at Winona, Austin and Albert Lea. The purpose of weighing livestock is to assure the producers of accurate weights when their animals are sold.

The law requires the grain inspection division to inspect and weigh all grain received at or shipped from any terminal warehouse in the state in carload or boatload lots. There are inspection stations, weighing stations, grain registration sections and grain protein laboratories both in Minneapolis and Duluth.

The weights and measures division is charged with the supervision and control over all weights, weighing devices, and measures in the state. It serves as a bureau of standards for the state and makes periodic inspections of scales and other weighing devices.

The public storage division has general supervision over all warehousemen (other than grain or cold storage) doing business in cities and villages having a population of 5,000 or more. Storage rates must be approved by the commission.

Organization and Functions

The Department of Public Welfare has been made responsible by the legislature for the prevention and treatment of a wide array of social problems. In terms of numbers of cases and costs, the most significant of these problems are those of dependency (the need for food, clothing, and shelter) and medical indigency. The aged contribute the largest number of cases and the highest costs in these two problem areas.

The next problem in numbers of cases is that of mental deficiency or mental retardation. While this is a chronic, lifetime, handicap, much can be done to assist retarded individuals to develop to their maximum potential through institutional programs aimed at meeting physical, educational, and social needs. Significant improvements have also been made in recent years in noninstitutional care and programming.

Less outstanding in terms of numbers but highly important because of their impact on children who have many years of living ahead of them are the problems of care of children separated from their parents, neglected, illegitimate, or defective. Because of continuing high birth rates and other factors, the caseloads of these problems have stayed high and many of them have been increasing.

In the fiscal year 1965-66, 187,191 Minnesotans, which included 13,245 persons under institutional care, received benefits from the Department's services and programs designed to treat and ameliorate the foregoing problems.

The Department is headed by a Commissioner, appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the State Senate. An Assistant Commissioner helps him in heading up the administration of the Department.

The Department's work is supervised through six divisions, each headed by a director: Administrative Services, Child Welfare, Field Services, Medical Services, Public Assistance, and Rehabilitative Services.

In addition to the central office organization, there are 20 state institutions that provide care for adults or children; and there are 87 county welfare departments that administer the welfare programs locally. To keep this largest department of state government operating efficiently requires more than 6,000 state and 1,900 county employees.

Service and Aid Programs

MEDICAL SERVICES

Mental Health—The objectives of the state mental program are to reduce the number of patients requiring admission to state hospitals, to shorten the stay of those who are admitted through intensive care and treatment and to plan and execute community programs for early detection and treatment and follow-up care that will facilitate the first two objectives.

For those who are mentally ill or disturbed enough to require care and treatment in a psychiatric hospital, the seven state institutions offer a complete medical program, including the many kinds of psychiatric treatments and the adjunctive therapies, such as occupational and recreational therapy. The seven state hospitals for the mentally ill are located at Anoka, Fergus Falls, Hastings, Moose Lake, Rochester, St. Peter, and Willmar. An eighth state hospital, the Minnesota Security hospital, serves the entire state as a place for the care and rehabilitation of unusually difficult problem cases. In 1963, the Minnesota Residential Treatment Center was opened for the treatment of emotionally-disturbed boys and girls. This facility has a capacity for 64 patients.

An important new development in the mental health program has occurred since the enactment of the Community Mental Health Act, in 1957. Out-patient psychiatric services are now available to some 94% of the state's population. At present, 22 community mental health centers, serving residents of 81 counties, receive matching state funds. Some state financial support also is given to the Hamm, Washburn and Wilder clinics in Minneapolis-St. Paul which are private facilities and not under the Community Mental Health Services Act.

Mentally Retarded and Epileptic—Nearly 11,000 mentally retarded and/or epileptic children and adults are under the guardianship of the Commissioner of Public Welfare. Slightly more than half of these are receiving care in a state school and hospital; the balance of the wards live in communities, under supervision of the county welfare departments.

Institutional care is offered at the Brainerd, Cambridge and Faribault state schools and hospitals. Other facilities are the Shakopee Home for Children and the Lake Owasso unit. In addition, the Owatonna state school offers a residential academic educational and vocational training for retarded children, and an intensive treatment program for the more seriously disturbed students.

Another important development taking place at the community level is the establishment of daytime activity centers for the retarded. Minnesota has 40 state-supported centers.

Tuberculosis Control Program—All patients and employees in the state institutions are given screening x-rays at least annually and whenever else needed, followed periodically by special examinations and laboratory studies. One state sanatorium (at Glen Lake) is maintained, plus a special unit for the tuberculous mentally ill. In addition, state aid is administered to county sanatoria.

CHILD WELFARE

The purpose of the child welfare program is to identify, treat, and prevent problems of child neglect, illegitimate parenthood, delinquency (paired with the responsibility of the Department of Corrections), and the educational and social breakdowns that tend to accompany physical and mental handicaps. Major emphasis of welfare services for children is to strengthen and preserve the child's own family and prevent the family from being broken apart. Public and voluntary social agencies provide casework as well as homemaker and day care services toward this end. In some instances, it is necessary to remove the child from his parental home and place him in temporary foster care. Efforts are then made to help the parents improve their child-rearing functioning so that the child can return. When parents are unable to improve their ability to provide adequate care, then — in the child's best interest — juvenile court action is taken to terminate parental rights and to commit the child to the guardianship of either a voluntary child-placing agency or the Commissioner of Public Welfare. Attempt is then made to provide the child with a permanent home, through adoption.

In Minnesota, the number of children receiving welfare services has been increasing. In 1966, 37,820 children received some type of child welfare services; 88.2% were helped by public agencies, and 11.8% by voluntary agencies. Of these children, 66.7% were living with their own parents; 11.8% were living in boarding homes; 8.9% were in institutions; 6.0% were in adoptive homes; 4.3% were living with relatives; and 2.3% had other living arrangements.

There has been an increase in the number of children placed for adoption in Minnesota: in 1966, 1,957 were placed, 1,658 by voluntary child-placing agencies, 268 by public agencies, and 31 by out-of-state agencies.

Another major function of Minnesota's child welfare program is the development of and standard setting and licensing of all foster care facilities (homes, institutions) and agencies for children operated under voluntary auspices.

REHABILITATIVE SERVICES

This Division is designed to draw together the Department's responsibilities for the deaf, the blind, and otherwise physically-handicapped persons. Its primary goals are the designing of methods to permit the earliest prevention and treatment of handicaps in order to lessen social breakdown and to establish effective cooperation with other public and private rehabilitation agencies toward the achievement of that end.

The Division includes: Crippled Children's Services and Gillette state hospital for crippled children; Services for the Blind, Minnesota Braille and Sight Saving School, Services for the Deaf, and the School for the Deaf.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The five major financial aid programs handled by the Department of Public Welfare are Old Age Assistance, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Aid to the Disabled, Medical Assistance, and Aid to the Blind. In all these forms of public assistance, costs are shared by the federal-state-county units of government.

Old Age Assistance is financial aid based on need, to persons 65 years of age and older who are eligible. This is not a pension but consists of monthly payments based on an individual's financial need. Two state nursing homes—the Ah-Gwah-Ching geriatric facility at Walker (capacity 473), and the Oak Terrace Nursing Home at Glen Lake (capacity 294) — are vital adjuncts to OAA and MA, since recipients are in the age group which particularly requires hospital and/or nursing home care.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children is financial help to dependent children whose father may be dead, absent from home, or unable to work because of a disability. This assistance enables children to be cared for in their own homes — to live as family units.

Organization and Functions

The State Soil Conservation Commission was established in 1937 to promote the organization of soil and water conservation districts throughout the state wherever desirable, to administer funds appropriated for use of these districts and to assist them in their programs through advice and consultation.

The Commission, upon petition from local groups, organizes soil and water conservation districts, coordinates the programs of the soil and water conservation districts, obtains assistance from various governmental agencies, and generally disseminates information throughout the state concerning the activities and programs of the soil and water conservation districts.

There are now 89 soil and water conservation districts in Minnesota. In organizing a district, the Commission conducts hearings to determine the need of soil and water conservation in the area. If it decides that a need exists, a referendum is conducted among the land occupiers affected. If a majority approves, the district is authorized.

All of the Governors of Minnesota since 1954 have designated the State Commission to accept applications for watershed projects (Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act, Public Law 566) for the state. The Commission's function has been to approve or disapprove said applications and place eligible watersheds on priority for planning by the Soil Conservation Service.

Qualifications for Board Members

No statutory or constitutional qualifications are prescribed.

Organization and Functions

The State Colleges in Minnesota are under the management of the Minnesota State College Board consisting of nine members. Eight of the members are appointed by the Governor subject to confirmation by the Senate. These board members are currently serving four-year terms. By action of the 1963 Legislature the terms will be progressively changed to six years. Historically, five members of the Board have been appointed from the counties in which colleges are located, and three members are appointed at large. The 1963 Legislature, however, eliminated the provision for appointing members from the counties in which colleges are located and the only limitation in force is that no more than one member may be from the same county at time of appointment.

The ninth member of the board is the Commissioner of Education who also serves as the secretary of the board. All board members serve without compensation although expenses of attending meetings are reimbursed in the same manner as for state employees. Regular board meetings are held quarterly, although it is commonly found necessary to hold meetings more frequently.

The five operating colleges are located at Bemidji, Mankato, Moorhead, St. Cloud and Winona. The new college at Marshall will open in the fall of 1967.

The State College Board maintains a central administrative office at 1276 University Avenue in St. Paul, Minnesota. The purpose of this office is to coordinate the activities of the State Colleges, to provide certain accounting and budgeting services, to provide the State College Board with

Qualifications for Commissioner

The qualifications of the Commissioner of Taxation are prescribed in Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 270.02 which provides that the commissioner shall be selected on the basis of ability and experience in the field of taxation and tax administration and without regard to political affiliations.

Organization and Functions

All of the powers and duties of the Department of Taxation are vested in the Commissioner of Taxation. The commissioner is appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commissioner has the authority to organize the department as he deems necessary, to appoint the department officers and employees, and to define their duties. All of such appointments by the commissioner are made under civil service laws and regulations.

The Department of Taxation is the agency of the State of Minnesota which administers the laws relating to the major sources of state and local revenue. All of the principal state taxes are administered by the department with the exception of those on motor vehicles, liquor, and insurance premiums. The department is under the direction of the Commissioner of Taxation who has the power and authority to exercise general supervision over the assessment of all real and personal property in the state and to administer the particular laws that relate to the taxation of gross earnings, public utilities, air carriers, iron ore mining and royalties, mortgage registry, individual and corporate net incomes, motor vehicle fuels, inheritances, gifts, deeds, and tobacco products.

department has the responsibility for determining the value of all taxable property in the school districts of the state for the purpose of the distribution of school aids.

The Administrative Services Division has the responsibility for carrying on the activities relating to budgets and intradepartmental services such as the handling of mail, the receiving of money, the accounting of revenues and the provision of supplies and equipment.

The Collection Division is responsible for the administration of laws relating to past due taxes payable to the Commissioner of Taxation. These include delinquent income and inheritance taxes and amounts past due on employer withheld and estimated taxes. The Division also gives administrative assistance to the legal staff.

The Income Tax Division conducts the administration of the laws relating to the taxation of incomes, the bank excise tax law and the various surtaxes relating to such laws. All of the income tax returns are examined and audited; tax liabilities are adjusted and all other provisions of the income tax law enforced.

The Inheritance and Gift Tax Division supervises the administration of the inheritance and gift tax laws, audits all inheritance tax returns, adjusts liabilities where necessary and approves the transfer of non-probate property upon payment of any tax which may be due. The division also administers the gift tax.

The Petroleum Division carries on the administration of the taxes on motor vehicle fuels and enforces the petroleum inspection laws of the state. This involves the collection of the taxes on gasoline and petroleum products at terminals, refineries and bulk plants, the licensing of distributors and dealers, the issuing of permits to service stations and transporters of petroleum products and the refunding of taxes on fuels used for non-highway purposes.

The Property Tax Division is concerned with the assessment of all real and personal property in the state including the property of public utilities. The division directs the commissioner's assessments of electric transmission and distribution lines, pipelines, and property at metropolitan airports. The division makes the determinations of the assessments of mined and unmined iron ore and administers the occupation tax on the business of mining and the taxes on taconite, semi-taconite, and ore royalties.

The Property Appraisal Division provides general administration and supervision of matters pertaining to the valuation of real and personal property for ad valorem taxation. The division investigates grievances of real and personal property taxpayers and assists local assessors with the valuation of unusual and complex properties. It also provides information and material for instruction of assessors, supervises and assists in the reassessments ordered by the Commissioner and assists the State Board of Equalization in its activities of equalizing values state wide.

The Special Tax Division supervises the administration and enforcement of the gross earnings taxes on transportation and communication utilities; the taconite railroad tax; the air flight tax on airlines; and the taxes on cigarettes and tobacco products. Other taxes administered include the deed stamp tax, mortgage registry tax, vessel tonnage tax and cooperative electric tax.

Extra Session Laws 1967, Chapter 32 providing for the imposition of a sales tax as well as relief for real and personal property tax payers will be administered by a new subdivision within the department. The Sales and Use Tax Division is being created to administer and supervise enforcement of this new law (the Excise and Use Tax Law). The new law, effective August 1, 1967, provides for the taxation of retail sales with the exception of food products, drugs and medicine, clothing and gasoline. The taxes collected by the vendor, at the rate of 3%, are periodically paid to the Commissioner of Taxation.

Functions and Services

Metropolitan Airports Commissions were authorized in 1943, as public corporations in and for any two contiguous cities of the first class. The objectives of the commissions are to promote the public interest in the development of air transportation; to increase air commerce and promote the efficient, safe and economical handling of such commerce; to assure inclusion of this state in national and international programs of air transportation, and to those ends to develop the full potentialities of the metropolitan areas in this state as aviation centers; and to correlate the metropolitan facilities with all aviation facilities within the state so as to provide for the most efficient and economical use of such services.

The Minneapolis-St. Paul Metropolitan Airports Commission originally had jurisdiction over the construction, operation and maintenance of all airports within a 25-mile radius of the cities involved—(Minneapolis and St. Paul). Subsequent legislation in 1947 took from the Commission jurisdiction over airports within the metropolitan area unless owned and operated by the Commission. Membership of the Commission consists of the Mayor of each city, or a qualified voter appointed by him; a member of the Council of each city, chosen by the Council; a member of the Board of Commissioners having jurisdiction over airports of each of the respective cities at the time of passage of the original legislation, or a second Council member should the Council previously have had airport jurisdiction; one additional Citizen Commissioner from each city, appointed by the Mayor and one member appointed by the Governor from outside the metropolitan area, who is the Chairman. The term of each commissioner, except that of a mayor or his appointee, and of one appointed to fill a vacancy, is six years. Each mayor or his appointee serves for the term of office of the mayor. Even though the term of a commissioner has expired he continues to serve until replaced or reappointed

The Commission has power to issue bonds and levy taxes for payment of the bonds, expenditures for acquisition of property, construction, payments on bonded indebtedness, if any. Maintenance and operation are financed by the two cities. The law requires that the Commission submit an annual budget to each city council on or before July 1, and each city must provide the amount necessary to meet its proportionate share of the total cost.

The following airports are owned and operated by this Commission: (1) Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport—Wold Chamberlain Field (2)Saint Paul Downtown Airport (Holman Field) (3) Anoka County Field (4) Crystal Field (5) Flying Cloud Field (6) Lake Elmo Field.

Highway Patrolmen's Retirement Association

107 State Highway Building, St. Paul

Officers of Association: John J. Harbinson, Chief of State Highway Patrol, St. Paul, President; Val Bjornson, State Treasurer, ex officio Treasurer; Bert W. Johnson, Secretary.

Functions and Services

The Highway Patrolmen's Retirement Association was established in 1943 (M.S. 172) to provide retirement benefits for all patrolmen in service of the State Highway Patrol on and after July 1, 1943.

Benefits are in proportion to length of service. After 20 years of service, at age 55, a member is entitled to a life annuity, upon separation from state service, of $250 per month. In addition, those serving in excess of 20 years and beyond age 55 are entitled to an additional $5 per month for every year in excess of 20 served. With less than 20 but more than 10 years of service at age 55, a member may retire with a lifetime annuity of that percentage of $250 per month which the years of his service bear to 20 years.

No patrolman may continue as such beyond the age of 60 years, notwithstanding the Veteran's Preference Law, except that a patrolman may continue as a patrolman for a partial year after attaining the age of 60 years to complete a full year of employment.

Former members of the Association who were retired on pension prior to the above increase in annuities will not receive the benefit of these revised payments.

Disabilities arising in line of duty and inflicted on a member less than 55 years of age make the member eligible to receive benefits during the period of disability of $250 per month, less workmen's compensation paid or any other income earned from employment.

A member with not less than 10 years of service who retires before reaching the age of 55 because of sickness of injury rendering him unable to perform patrol duties, occurring while not on duty, is entitled to receive an annuity of that percentage of $250 which the years of his service in the highway patrol bear to 20 years less any income earned from employment.

In the event any patrolman who is a member of the association shall die from any cause, the association shall grant annuities or benefit payments from the retirement fund to any widow who was his legally married wife, residing with him at the time of his death and who was married to him while or prior to the time he was an active member of the association, for a period of at least one year, and to a child or children under the age of 18 years who were living while the deceased patrolman was an active member of the association. The widow and child or children shall be entitled to annuity as follows: (a) To the widow a sum not to exceed $75 per month for her natural life; but if she remarries the annuity shall cease; (b) to each child the amount of $45 per month until the child reaches the age of 18 years, not to exceed the aggregate sum of $250 per month.

Functions and Services

Established 1931, the Public Employees Retirement Association provides annuity protection to public employees throughout the state, including 87 counties, 111 cities, 484 villages, 116 townships, and 650 school districts, totaling 1448 political subdivisions with a membership as of June 30, 1966 of 44,460 active members and 6,705 former members or their beneficiaries receiving annuities, disability benefits or survivor benefits.

The minimum retirement age is 58 with at least 20 years of allowable service, but benefits at any age earlier than 65 are reduced one-half of one percent for each month under age 65. Except as limited by the number of years of service credits and by the maximum in any one year on which deductions may be taken, there is no maximum annuity provided. The board is charged under the law with establishing optional annuities which shall take the form of annuities payable for a certain period, and for life thereafter, or as a joint and survivor annuity. These optional forms shall be "actuarial equivalents" of the normal annuity provided for age 65.

The law also contains a provision for a survivor benefit. When a member with 18 months or more allowable service dies before retirement and whose average salary was not less than $75 per month, the surviving dependent spouse is entitled to a benefit equal to 30% of the member's monthly average salary not to exceed $65 per month until her remarriage. If the spouse has dependent children under age 18, the allowance for each child is 20% of the member's monthly average salary not to exceed $45 per month; and in addition thereto 10% of the member's monthly average salary not to exceed $20 per month shall be paid, to be divided equally among the dependent children. The maximum monthly survivor benefit shall not exceed the monthly average salary of the deceased member.

After 10 years of allowable service or after age 50, with 5 years of allowable service, whichever is sooner, a benefit is paid for total and permanent disability equal to the retirement annuity to which the member is entitled at time of disability plus a supplemental monthly annuity of $5.00 for each year under age 65 not to exceed $50.00.

Laws 1967, provides that PERA members will have an opportunity to vote, on an individual choice basis, on the question of whether or not they wish to remain in the PERA basic fund or become members of the PERA-OASDHI coordinated fund. The responsibility for conducting the balloting whereby persons in positions covered by PERA may, at their option, select Social Security coverage is exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Administration of the state of Minnesota, appointed by the Governor as the state agency.

Functions and Services

The Minnesota Retirement System was established effective July 1, 1967 as a continuation of the State Employees Retirement Association which was established in 1929 to provide retirement benefits for state employees.

Benefits are in proportion to length of service and earnings, payable at age 65, or over, after 10 years membership service. After 20 years' service credit, benefits are available for employees betwen the ages of 58 and 65.

Years of allowable service:	Percentage at the rate of:
First ten years	1 per cent per year of service.
Second ten years or completed months of service less than such period	1 per cent per year of service.
Third ten years of completed months of service less than such period	1.66 per cent per year of service.
Subsequent years or completed months of service less than such period	1.75 per cent per year of service.

Optional forms of annuity may be elected at time of retirement in order to provide benefits for a beneficiary. After not less than ten year's service credit provision is made for total permanent disability benefits for members under age 65.

If a member dies, his beneficiary or estate receives the sum to his credit in the Retirement Fund plus interest at two per cent per annum compounded annually to date of death.

Survivor benefits are available under Social Security.

Members contribute three per cent of earnings figured on full salary earned in a calendar year, and departments and state agencies contribute an amount equal to the total amount deducted from the member's salary, plus an additional two thirds of that amount. In addition to the amount paid into the Retirement Fund by members and the state, members pay the employees' tax to the Social Security Contribution Fund and the state pays the matching employer tax. Beginning January 1, 1967, this tax is 4.4 per cent of the first $6,600 of salary received in a calendar year.

Management is vested in the Executive Director. The Board of Directors establishes rules, regulations and policy, and exercises judicial review over all matters pertaining to the administration and operation of the system.

Retirement benefits are granted in proportion to length of service and earnings. At age 58 or older any warden or crime bureau officer with 10 years of service is entitled to a retirement annuity. The normal annuity is computed by multiplying the individual's average salary over his years of service times 2 per cent. The average salary, however, cannot exceed $7,200 per year.

A person permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty is entitled to benefits equal to 55 per cent of his average salary. If he is so disabled not in the line of duty, he is to receive an annuity computed in the same manner as the normal annuity for retirement is computed together with a supplementary monthly benefit based upon age.

The fund is financed by a 6 per cent deduction from the monthly salary of each member and an employer contribution of 12½ per cent.

The Teacher Retirement Association was established in 1931, replacing the Teachers Insurance and Retirement Fund which operated under a 1915 Law. The Association is managed by a Board of Trustees.

Primary function of the Association is to provide various benefits for its members and their beneficiaries. Benefits are provided for retirement, disability, survivors and death.

The Association is a divided system consisting of (1) a basic system which is without social security coverage and closed to new teachers; (2) a coordinated system which is with social security coverage including members who elected social security coverage, and all new teachers after December 31, 1959.

The Association is financed by member contributions, employer contributions and interest on investments. Members in the basic system pay to the Association percent on full salary earned per school year; and in the coordinated system on full salary earned per school year. Members in the coordinated system also pay for social security. The State as employer matches the employee contributions to the fund and, in addition, contributes an additional 1% in the basic plan and 1½% in the coordinated plan for amortization of a deficit.

Investments for the Fund are made by the State Board of Investment.

Membership in the Association does not include teachers in the cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, or at the University of Minnesota, where separate retirement systems are maintained.

The principal function of the Society is the presentation of an annual State Fair, which provides exhibits to encourage agriculture, horticulture, stock breeding, manufacturing, mining and industrial arts and sciences. Towards this end, the Society each year distributes over a quarter of a million dollars to the public through its 20 competitive departments. Minnesota has the largest ten-day exposition on the North American Continent. Since 1951 the Society has successfully operated the State Fair and, in addition, has maintained its highly regarded plant without benefit of a single penny of legislative appropriation.

Functions and Services

The Minnesota Historical Society, incorporated less than two months after the convening of the territorial legislature in 1849, is the oldest institution in the state and the official custodian of the state's history. It is unique among institutions of its kind in that it is older than the state it serves. The Society is supported mainly by legislative appropriation.

The four-fold purpose of the Society is to collect, preserve, disseminate, and interpret the history of Minnesota. Its collections comprise one of the largest historical libraries in the Northwest, including 300,000 books, pamphlets, periodicals, and state and federal documents; 10,000,000 manuscripts; 500,000 paintings, photographs and prints; and a vast collection of newspapers published in the state since the initial issue of the first newspaper, the Minnesota Pioneer, in 1849. The Society's museum, with its four large galleries of varied and colorful displays, depicts the story of the Minnesota country from prehistoric times to the present.

The Society publishes a quarterly magazine, MINNESOTA HISTORY, a magazine for school children, THE GOPHER HISTORIAN, a bi-monthly newsletter, MINNESOTA HISTORY NEWS, and books on various aspects of the state's history, the most recent of which are a guide to Minnesota's major historic sites, a volume on Minnesotans who explored the Montana gold fields and a recently issued history of newspapers in Minnesota's territorial period.

The Society holds an annual meeting in the spring and conducts several tours to places of historic interest each summer. It promotes the organization of local history work, co-operating with and assisting the state's county historical societies, and gives reference and information service on all aspects of Minnesota and its history. In addition to the many who wrote, 240,000 persons visited the Society in 1964, many of them school children to whom guided tours of the museum were given.

Since 1958 the Society has been active in acquiring, preserving, and developing major historic sites in Minnesota. Nine important landmarks have been acquired by gift and state purchase the William G. Le Duc Home in Hastings, the Mille Lacs Indian Museum, situated on the site of historic Kathio on the west shore of Mille Lacs Lake, the Oliver Hudson Kelley Homestead near Elk River, the Governor Alexander Ramsey House in St. Paul and the Minnehaha Depot in Minneapolis, the Petroglyphs near Jeffers, the Lower Sioux Agency near Morton, the Comstock House in Moorhead and Connor's Fur Post near Pine City. In co-operation with the Division of State Parks and other federal, state, and local agencies, the Society has undertaken the restoration and refurbishing of other historic sites. The full-scale restoration of old Fort Snelling State Park, the Charles A. DIVISIONS OF THE STATE JUDICIARY

The judicial branch of the government of Minnesota is divided into a Supreme Court, a District Court, a Probate Court, Municipal Courts, and Justices of the Peace.

Supreme Court

The Minnesota judicial system is headed by the supreme court, the state's court of last resort. To it may be taken appeals from decisions of the state's district court and certain municipal courts. In some cases, matters may be presented directly to the supreme court without having been heard previously by a lower court.

Under a 1957 law the chief justice of the supreme court is required to supervise and coordinate the work of the state's district courts. In order that he may carry out his additional duties, the supreme court may provide by rule that the chief justice not be required to write opinions as a member of the court. This same law permits the court to provide by rule for it to hear cases in divisions, rather than have all members present at the hearing of a case.

Under a 1963 law the office of Administrative Assistant to the Supreme Court was established. Under the direction of the Chief Justice such Administrative Assistant is required to make statistical studies to coordinate the assignment of both regular and retired District Court Judges, and to make recommendations of policies for the improvement of the judicial system.

SUPREME COURT TERMS

The supreme court has one court term each year beginning the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January. This term generally continues until the end of the calendar year, with recesses at the discretion of the court.

MEMBERS—SALARY

The 1956 judiciary amendment to the Minnesota Constitution changed the name of supreme court members from "justice" to "judge." The 1957 Legislature provided that the term justice shall be equivalent to judge.

The court consists of one chief justice and six associate justices. Vacancies on the court are filled by governor's appointment.

The chief justice of the supreme court receives an annual salary of $27,000; the associate justices receive $26,000 annually.

ELECTION OF JUSTICES

Under the law a new candidate seeking election to the supreme court must specify (when he files) which justice (whose term will expire) he is filing against. The term is six years.

At the primary election candidates for supreme court appear on the ballot of candidates without party designation. At the general election the supreme court candidates appear on the state white ballot, without a political party designation.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE COURT

The Administrative Assistant to the Supreme Court, Revisor of Statutes, Clerk of Supreme Court, Supreme Court Reporter and State Law Librarian are appointed by the court to serve at its pleasure.

District Court

There is one District Court for the State of Minnesota, divided into Ten Judicial Districts. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court has the power to assign Judges from one district to serve in another district.

JURISDICTION

The constitution provides that the district court shall have original jurisdiction in all civil and criminal cases, and shall have such appellate jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law. At present the law provides for appeals from the probate court, municipal courts and justices of the peace.

JUDGES—TERMS—SALARY

There are three or more judges for each of the judicial districts. The judges are elected by the voters of their respective districts for six-year terms. All district judges are paid a yearly salary of $22,000 (effective July 1, 1967) by the state. St. Louis County in the sixth district, Ramsey County in the second district, and Hennepin County in the fourth district pay their district judges an additional $1,500.

CHIEF JUDGE OF DISTRICT COURT

The 1957 Legislature provided that annually the judges of each judicial district shall meet to elect a chief judge. In the case of a tie vote the judge who is senior in terms of length of service becomes chief judge (Chapter 533, Laws of 1963). The chief judge has the administrative responsibility of coordinating the business of the court in his judicial district. The chief judges of the judicial districts are required to attend all meetings of such judges called by the chief justice of the supreme court. The chief justice of the supreme court has the responsibility of supervising and coordinating the work of the judicial districts. This administrative structure in the court system is designed to provide for a more efficient administration of justice.

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS

The Ten Judicial Districts, the counties included in each, and the number of Judges in each District are as follows:

Probate Court

There is one probate court for the state of Minnesota and, until otherwise provided by law, each county constitutes one probate court district.

Probate judges serve a term of six years and there is at least one probate judge for each district, elected by the voters. All new probate judges after 1956 must be learned in the law.

The probate court has unlimited original jurisdiction in law and equity for the administration of the estates of deceased persons and all guardianship and incompetency proceedings.

Minnesota Statutes 1961, section 525.011 adds to the powers and duties of probate courts in all counties having less than 30,000 population by the 1950 census all the powers and duties of municipal courts. These probate courts may consider civil disputes and minor criminal cases in addition to their historic jurisdiction over estates, guardianships and incompetent persons.

Excepted from this law are the probate courts of the following counties:

Anoka	Freeborn	Olmsted	St. Louis
Blue Earth	Goodhue	Otter Tail	Stearns
Clay	Hennepin	Polk	Washington
Crow Wing	Itasca	Ramsey	Winona
Dakota	Mower	Rice

Salaries of Probate Judges are set forth in Sec. 525.081, ranging by population of the county from $6,000 to $16,000. Excepted from these salary limits are Hennepin, Ramsey, St. Louis, and Stearns Counties, wherein the salary of the Probate Judge is set by special laws.

Brief mention of the adjudication of juvenile cases must be made here. Jurisdiction over juveniles is vested in the probate court of each county, except in Hennepin, Ramsey, and St. Louis Counties where it is vested in the District Court. In Ramsey and St. Louis Counties the District Court Judges assign a specific District Judge to the Juvenile Division for a period of one year during which time the judge gives priority to juvenile cases over his other work. In Hennepin County a judge is elected by the voters to the specific office of "District Court Judge, Juvenile Division", whose duty also is to give priority to juvenile cases.

Municipal Courts

Formerly the general law relating to municipal courts authorized the establishment of such courts in municipalities having 1000 inhabitants or more. However, Chapter 630, Laws of 1963 establishes municipal courts in each city, village, and borough which is a county seat or which has a population of 1000 or more persons and was formerly without a municipal court. The courts so established become organized for business upon a resolution adopted by ⅘ of the members of the municipality's governing body.

A municipal judge, who is elected for a six-year term, presides over such a court. The municipal court has jurisdiction in civil cases involving not more than $1,000, and in criminal cases not exceeding $100 fine or three months' imprisonment. The jurisdiction of the court is coextensive with the county in which it is located.

The 1959 Legislature adopted a comprehensive code applicable to municipal courts, and repealed numerous special acts for individual courts. Newly chosen municipal judges must be lawyers. A municipal court may be abolished by popular vote in any city. Salaries are set by Sec. 488.21.

A municipal judge may be assigned by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to assist temporarily in another city.

Special provisions cover the municipal courts of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth.

THE HENNEPIN COUNTY MUNICIPAL COURT

On January 1, 1965, the municipal court of Minneapolis was expanded into a county-wide court serving all of Hennepin County. The number of judges was increased from 10 to 14 and all other municipal and justice courts in the county were abolished. Judges salaries of $17,000 are paid by the county.

Traffic and criminal trials are held in Minneapolis, Bloomington, Golden Valley, Richfield, St. Louis Park, Minnetonka, Hopkins, Wayzata, Crystal, Brooklyn Center, St. Anthony, and Eden Prairie. Jury trials and all civil trials are held at Minneapolis, Crystal, St. Louis Park, Wayzata, and Bloomington. In addition, the court includes a conciliation court division.

Civil jurisdiction of the court extends to cases involving $4,000 or less. Criminal jurisdiction includes misdemeanors under state criminal law; violations of ordinances, charter provisions or rules and regulations of any governmental subdivision in Hennepin County, ordinances of the Metropolitan Airports Commission; and preliminary hearings on any criminal charge allegedly committed in Hennepin County. In 1966, the Hennepin County Municipal Court handled a total of 74,876 civil and criminal cases of all types including traffic and ordinance violations.

A clerk and deputies, a probation officer, court reporters, bailiffs and jury panels are provided by the Act.

A traffic violations bureau is created.

A conciliation court with jurisdiction in civil actions involving $250 or less, with the county-wide territorial jurisdicton formerly granted to the Minneapolis Municipal Court is created to be held in rotation by the Hennepin County Municipal Court judges.

Justices of the Peace

Justices of the peace are elected for two-year terms in townships and in cities and villages which do not have municipal courts. Justices of the peace have jurisdiction over actions arising within a county when the amount involved does not exceed $100 for civil cases, and when the punishment or fine does not exceed $100 or three months' imprisonment in criminal cases. Under constitutional amendment the Legislature may alter or abolish the office of justice of the peace.

IMPROVING THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Since the establishment of the state judicial system in 1858, new problems in commerce, industry, government and the relationships between people have resulted from an increased population, urbanization and industrialization. As a result, the District Courts in the Metropolitan area of Hennepin, Ramsey, Anoka, Washington, and Dakota Counties have developed a considerable backlog of cases. This condition has led to a movement for judicial reform to provide an improved and more efficient system for the administration of justice.

Some of these reforms have been the adoption of new rules of civil procedure and the extensive use of pre-trial and settlement conferences to induce an early disposition of cases. An increased volume of litigation requires additional judicial manpower. Laws have been enacted to increase the efficient use of existing judges by authorizing the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to assign judges from one district to serve in another district. The services of retired judges has also been authorized and used extensively. Despite these efforts, the backlog of cases continued to increase during 1965 and 1966.

In 1959, new and uniform acts, with respect to Juvenile Courts and Municipal Courts, were adopted, and municipal court jurisdiction was conferred upon probate courts in counties under 30,000 population. In 1963, all municipal courts in Hennepin County were consolidated in one county-wide court and justices of the peace were abolished in that county. Further court reorganization to eliminate the justice of the peace system was recommended by the 1957 Legislative Interim Commission on Lower Courts.

To aid the Chief Justice in fulfilling his responsibility to supervise and coordinate the work of the district courts, the 1963 Legislature created the office of Administrative Assistant to the Supreme Court. Minnesota thus became the 27th state to provide an administrative office for the judicial branch of government.

The supreme court may extend the provisions of the act creating the administrative assistant's office to courts of record other than the supreme court itself and the district courts. The act also authorizes the supreme court to call an annual conference of judges for the consideration of matters relating to judicial business, the improvement of the judicial system and the administration of justice.

State Public School System

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

The Constitution

The Minnesota State Constitution requires the Legislature "to establish a general and uniform system of public schools" and to "make such provisions, by taxation or otherwise as, with the income arising from the school fund, will secure a thorough and efficient system of public schools in each township in the State."

The Constitution provides for permanent school funds which are known as the Permanent School Fund, the Swamp Land Fund and the Endowment Fund. Monies accrue to these funds from the sale of school and state lands, from royalties on natural resources that are consumed and from interest on investments.

The Legislature

DISTRICTS. The Legislature has authorized the formation of school districts, which are public corporations with legal responsibilities for maintaining educational programs for all eligible resident pupils.

THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION. Created by the legislature, the state board forms educational policies for the state within the framework of statutes relating to education. It also acts as the State Board of Vocational Education, administering federal programs for vocational education and vocational rehabilitation. The board consists of seven citizens appointed for seven-year terms by the Governor with the consent of the senate.

Minnesota Statues 1957, Chapter 120 provides that; "The State Board of Education shall exercise general supervision over public schools and public educational agencies in the state, classify and standardize public elementary and secondary schools, and prepare for them outlines and suggested courses of study. The board shall establish rules relating to examinations, reports, acceptances of schools, courses of study, and other proceedings in connection with elementary and secondary schools applying for special state aid."

Finances—Sources of Support

The schools of the state derive support from local, county, state and federal sources. The state's share approximates 47 per cent of the cost of school maintenance. The following state funds contribute to the support of schools.

(1) The Endowment Fund—income from the Permanent School Fund.

(2) Elementary-Secondary School Occupation Tax Fund—income from 40 per cent of the occupation tax on iron ore. Began July 1, 1957).

(3) The Income Tax School Fund—income tax receipts dedicated to school aids.

(3a) The Special State Aid Fund—an amount appropriated biennially by the Legislature and transferred from the Income Tax Fund and the Elementary-Secondary School Occupation Tax Fund.

State Aids

According to a provision in the State Constitution, the Endowment Fund is apportioned to school districts on the basis of school attendance.

All other state aids are paid from the Special State Aid Fund according to laws enacted by the Legislature.

The 1957 Legislature established a formula for paying "foundation program" aid. This formula includes the Income Tax School Aid which is paid out of the receipts of the state income tax at $10 per year for each child six to sixteen years of age residing in the district and for each child sixteen to seventeen years of age attending school. The "foundation program" aid constitutes the major source of aids for the school districts.

Additional aids are granted for the following purposes:

Special Classes or other instruction established for pupils handicapped by blindness, deafness, defective speech, mental retardation, emotional disturbance or by being crippled.

Emergency Aid to districts unable to maintain schools with reasonable local effort, granted at the discretion of the State Board of Education.

Vocational Aid to encourage teaching of vocational courses in the secondary schools.

Transportation or board for certain pupils in consolidated districts, secondary school pupils and area vocational school pupils residing in districts not maintaining secondary or vocational schools. Handicapped and isolated pupils are also eligible for aid for transportation or board, and elementary pupils in closed school districts receive transportation aid.

School Lunch Aid to assist in the financing of this program in the public schools.

State Junior College System

The state junior colleges, and their dates of original founding are: Rochester, 1915; Hibbing, 1916; Ely, 1922; Itasca, 1922; Worthington, 1936; Brainerd, 1938; Austin, 1940; Fergus Falls, 1960; Willmar, 1962; Anoka-Ramsey, 1965; Metropolitan, 1965; Thief River Falls, 1965; Mesabi, 1966 (formed by combining Eveleth, 1918, and Virginia, 1921); and North Hennepin 1966. The Legislature has also authorized the establishment of the following state junior colleges, with the estimated opening dates: International Falls, 1967; Northeast Metropolitan, 1967; Southwest Metropolitan, 1968; and Southeast Metropolitan, 1969.

All junior colleges in the state system are now operated by the Minnesota State Junior College Board, which was created by the 1963 Legislature. Until 1957 the colleges were supported entirely from local resources and student tuition. The 1957 Legislature provided the first state aid in the amount of $200 per full-time equivalent student. The aid was increased to $250 in 1959, $300 in 1961, and $350 in 1963. The 1963 Legislature also passed the law, previously referred to, establishing the Minnesota Junior College Board. The law provided for a total of fifteen colleges, with three to be in the metropolitan area and consideration to be given to the needs of northwestern Minnesota.

The 1965 Legislature approved changes in the law to permit five junior colleges in the metropolitan area and the designation of International Falls as a new site, for a total of 17 colleges. Metropolitan State Junior College in Minneapolis remains a temporary operation until final resolution of site designation.

The first phase of a building program was also approved by the 1965 Legislature. The intent of the program is to put all junior colleges in separate facilities as soon as possible and provide expansion as enrollments increase through 1975. A proposed schedule has been presented to the Legislative Building Commission. The present status is that Brainerd, Austin and Worthington are now housed in separate campus facilities. These were built by the local school districts. The state will buy the Brainerd building and has a lease-for-purchase plan with Austin and Worthington. The Anoka-Ramsey campus is under construction in Coon Rapids and will be ready in the fall of 1967. Itasca will move in April, 1967 to remodeled and new quarters at the University of Minnesota North Central School of Agriculture in Grand Rapids. Facilities are under construction at Hibbing and Rochester and soon will be at Fergus Falls and Virginia. Plans are also being readied for Southwest Metropolitan in Bloomington. Additional facilities were requested in the 1965 Legislature as part of the scheduled program.

The state system has reported substantial gains since state takeover and anticipates continued rapid growth, particularly as the metropolitan colleges develop complete campus facilities. The estimated full-time equivalent student enrollment for 1966-67 is 8,507, or a 115.9 per cent increase since the year before state takeover. Estimates for 1967-68 and 1968-69 are for 11,330 and 13,650. Estimates for 1975 are for 27,600, or seven times the 1963-64 enrollment, the year before takeover.

Minnesota junior colleges have had a long history of providing transfer education for those students seeking the baccalaureate degree. In recent years there has been increasing concern for the development of two-year general and technical-vocational education programs for those students who need and desire additional post-high school education. This concern was also encouraged by the 1963 law which described the comprehensive nature of the programs to be offered. Adult education and community service activities are also increasing.

Minnesota State Colleges

There are six Minnesota State Colleges. Five are in operation at Bemidji, Mankato, Moorhead, St. Cloud and Winona. The sixth, authorized by the legislature in 1963 for southwestern Minnesota, is in the planning stage for Marshall. Initially, it will be a technical institute and a two year liberal arts institution. All six colleges are under the direction and control of the Minnesota State College Board. All have been created by an act of the legislature and are financed by the tuition and fees paid by the students and by direct appropriation of the legislature.

Originally created as Normal Schools for preparation of elementary school teachers, Winona opened in 1860, Mankato in 1868, St. Cloud in 1869, Moorhead in 1888, and Bemidji in 1919. The normal school at Duluth opened in 1902, but in 1947 this institution became part of the University of Minnesota. In the early years much of the program of instruction was subcollegiate in nature. By 1921 this lower level work was discontinued and the institutions became State Teachers Colleges, authorized to prepare elementary and high school teachers and to offer the baccalureate degree in Education. The first class to receive the four year degree was in 1926, and programs in teacher preparation of less than four years were eliminated in 1960.

The student demand for more programs than teacher preparation led to the creation by the legislature of the State Colleges in 1956. Since that time strong liberal arts programs and some additional professional programs have been developed as part of the mission of the State Colleges to offer educational opportunity to all the citizens of the state. While teacher preparation remains one of the major missions of the State College system, other programs are rapidly achieving stature and recognition equivalent to that earned in teacher preparation.

In 1953 the State Teachers Colleges received legislative authorization to offer a fifth year of teacher education leading to a Master of Science Degree in Education. The 1963 legislature extended the authorization to include fifth year preparation in fields other than education. A limited number of fields now have been approved by the State College Board for Master of Arts programs.

The State Colleges have been growing rapidly in recent years. From the fall quarter of 1954 to the fall quarter of 1966 the enrollment at all five colleges grew from 5,687 to 23,778 which represents an increase of 300%. The following tabulation shows the total on-campus enrollment for each college in the fall of 1954 and in the fall of 1966.

Quarter	Bemidji	Mankato	Moorhead	St. Cloud	Winona	Total
1954	600	2,085	718	1,661	623	5,687
1966	3,326	7,791	3,320	6,678	2,663	23,778

In the fall of 1966 24.8 per cent of all college students in Minnesota were enrolled in the State Colleges, whereas in 1954 only 13.8 per cent were enrolled in State Colleges.

The State Colleges serve five major functions. By far, the largest of these functions is that of teacher education. Approximately one-half of the new teachers in Minnesota coming from all Minnesota colleges are graduated from State Colleges.

A second important function is that of providing a liberal arts degree.

A third important function is that of serving the transfer student who enrolls for one, two or three years in a State College taking pre-professional work in preparation for transferring to a professional school such as medicine, law, or engineering. This has been a rapidly expanding purpose of the State Colleges.

The fourth major function is that of providing terminal courses of less than four years' duration. Some students who do not intend to complete a bachelor's degree find it desirable to take one or two years of college work in liberal arts or some vocational area. The State Colleges are developing technical programs which are planned to be of assistance to students who are interested in going into industry with a specialized technical training.

The fifth major function of the State Colleges is that of providing graduate education both in professional education and in the liberal arts.

All State Colleges, with the exception of Southwest State College, are accredited by the North Central Association, by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, and by the Minnesota State Department of Education for both the bachelor's degree and the master's degree programs.

The State Colleges serve the regions in which they are located in a number of ways. For many years a program of off-campus evening instruction has been conducted through which many teachers in the elementary and secondary schools have been able to become or to remain certificated and to continue their work toward a degree. The teacher shortage, particularly in the elementary and secondary schools in the rural areas, has been alleviated by this program. Public schools often turn to the State College facilities for assistance with special school problems. School psychologists and other specialists have been made available to public schools seeking specialized professional assistance. Numerous conferences and seminars are held at the State Colleges for the benefit of elementary and secondary school teachers and administrators.

In several instances, particularly where State Colleges are located close to other private or public colleges, programs of inter-institutional cooperation are in operation. Such programs tend to be of value to the students of all colleges involved in these cooperative programs.

Continual efforts are made by the State Colleges to improve the articulation of programs between Minnesota Junior Colleges and the State Colleges and between the State Colleges and the University of Minnesota. This is done in order to ease the problems of transfer of credits from one institution to the other.

The campuses of the State Colleges have been expanded in recent years both by the addition of land and by the construction of new buildings, under state appropriations. During the same period the State College Board was authorized by the legislature to issue revenue bonds for the construction of dormitories, food service facilities and student unions. The revenue bonds will be retired from the revenue producing capabilities of the facilities which are constructed from the bond proceeds.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The University of Minnesota was founded in February, 1851, by an act of the Minnesota Territorial Legislature which provided "That there shall be established in this territory an institution under the name and style of the University of Minnesota." At first it functioned in the Village of St. Anthony, now a part of Minneapolis, as the "preparatory department of the University of Minnesota," an academy giving classes at the high school level.

Twenty-five and one-third acres of the present site were purchased in 1854, and the first campus building, Old Main, was completed in 1858. Depression, financial difficulty, Indian uprisings and the Civil War forced the University to lie dormant from 1860 to 1867. On September 15, 1869, the reorganized University of Minnesota opened as an institution of higher learning. William Watts Folwell was the first president, and 18 students were in attendance.

From that second beginning, the University has grown steadily. In the fall of 1966 student registration on the six campuses in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Rochester, Morris and Crookston totalled 43,997. Degrees are awarded each year to about 7,000 students, in contrast to the first graduating class of two in 1873.

The University serves not only its students but all residents of Minnesota through the services of its extension division, information services, radio station, and agricultural experiment stations and its sponsorship of exhibits, concerts, lectures and publications.

The nation also is served by the University through its contributions in research, Medicine, agriculture, engineering and social welfare benefit from its experiments and surveys. The conquest of brucellosis, the development of taconite processing, utilization of the state's mineral resources, increasing understanding of the mysteries of cosmic rays and new developments in life-saving heart and cancer surgery are some of the significant results of University research projects.

- Supervision and program planning for the mentally retarded, both within the six state institutions and in the community.
- A statewide mental health research program.
- Community mental health services—including consultation and administration of state funds to the community mental health centers located throughout the state.

HOSPITALS FOR THE MENTALLY ILL

Care and treatment of the mentally ill is provided at 8 state hospitals. They are located at Anoka, Fergus Falls, Hastings, Moose Lake, Rochester, St. Peter (2) and Willmar. In addition, the state-operated Ah-Gwah-Ching and Oak Terrace Nursing Homes provide nursing care for elderly persons who do not require psychiatric hospital treatment.

The treatment program at each of the state hospitals for the mentally ill is geared to the rehabilitation of the patient and his return to the community in the shortest period of time. With the newer advances in treatment methods and better understanding of mental illness, the length of hospitalization has been dramatically shortened, and many of the patients return to their homes in six months time or less. For those patients, who because of advanced age or severity of illness cannot readily be returned to their home community or placed in nursing homes, every effort is made to help them lead useful and productive lives.

All forms of psychiatric treatment are available in each of the hospitals. A wide variety of social, recreational, occupational, and industrial therapy activities are offered. These play an important role in preparing the patient for his return to the community as an active and useful citizen. Hundreds of volunteers come regularly to the hospitals from communities all over the state. Their contributions of time, service and personal interest are an important addition to the hospital treatment program.

In addition to the psychiatric services, the state hospitals for the mentally ill also provide diagnostic and treatment services for physical illness and the majority are equipped to do major surgical procedures. Specialized treatment such as the Alcoholic programs at Moose Lake and Willmar, the Tuberculosis unit at Anoka, the Minnesota Security Hospital at St. Peter, and the medical and surgical services at Rochester and Anoka are also offered.

INSTITUTIONS FOR THE MENTALLY RETARDED

State schools and hospitals for mentally retarded children and adults are maintained by the Department of Public Welfare at Brainerd, Cambridge, and Faribault. In the residential treatment program, increasing emphasis is placed on educational classes, training programs, and a wide variety of activities to help each mentally retarded patient develop to his maximum ability.

A specialized academic and vocational training program for mildly retarded boys and girls ages 8 to 21 years is provided at Owatonna State School. Many of these students successfully return to the community as self-supporting or partially self-supporting citizens after completing their schooling.

Additional institutional care is provided at the Lake Owasso Annex (Cambridge), and at the Shakopee Home for Children.

SPECIAL HOSPITALS

Two special hospitals, Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children (St. Paul) and the Minnesota State Sanatorium at Glen Lake (Minnetonka) are under Department of Public Welfare supervision.

Objective of the treatment program at Gillette State Hospital is to provide maximum rehabilitation for children who have a handicap resulting from illness, injury, or a congenital condition.

Department of Corrections Institutions

The Department of Corrections operates through two major Divisions, the Division of Adult Corrections and the Division of Youth Conservation.

Division of Adult Corrections

State Prison	Stillwater	Ralph H. Tahash, Warden
State Reformatory for Men	St. Cloud	Jack G. Young, Supt.

The Division of Adult Corrections administers a program for the custody, treatment and training of offenders committed by the courts to the State Prison at Stillwater, the State Reformatory for Men at St. Cloud and the Reformatory for Women at Shaopee. It is the responsibility of the correctional institutions to provide custodial control of offenders committed to them, and to provide the training and treatment necessary to enable them to adjust more readily to community standards of behavior upon release.

STATE PRISON AT STILLWATER

This institution is a maximum security walled prison established for convicted felons 25 years of age and older. An industry program is carried on at the prison, of which twine rope and farm machinery are the principle items manufactured. The average daily population is approximately 975.

STATE REFORMATORY FOR MEN AT ST. CLOUD

The Reformatory for Men is a walled institution of maximum security for convicted felons under 25 years of age. This institution emphasizes vocational training, which is available in a wide variety of shops in the industries program, and academic education. The average daily population is approximately 770.

STATE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN AT SHAKOPEE

The Reformatory for Women is a minimum to medium security, cottage style institution for convicted felons sentenced by the District Courts. The inmates are given an opportunity to develop housekeeping skills and participate in a varied program of gardening or caring for mentally retarded girls in the nearby Children's Home operated by the Welfare Department. The average daily population is approximately 48.

The Division of Youth Conservation maintains a program for the diagnosis, custody and rehabilitation of juveniles under 18 committed through Juvenile Court, and youthful offenders apprehended prior to their 21st birthday and sentenced to the Youth Conservation Commission through District Court. To carry out this program the Division of Youth Conservation operates a Reception and Diagnostic Center, 2 training schools, three forestry camps and a Youth Vocational Center.

Minnesota Reception and Diagnostic Center—Lino Lakes

The Reception and Diagnostic Center was opened in 1963 to receive the above youth together with information on the youth, his or her family, and community.

Through a team approach of intensive examination, observation and interview a diagnosis is arrived at and a recommended treatment program is presented to the Youth Conservation Commission for review and disposition. The dispositions include probation with parents, individual or group foster care, transfer to appropriate private treatment facilities, Department of Public Welfare institutions or Department of Corrections institutions.

The Department of Corrections institutions for youthful offenders is either the State Reformatory for Men or Women or the Willow River Forestry Camp.

Willow River Forestry Camp—Willow River

This camp was established in July, 1951 as an honor, work, treatment camp for either the unsophisticated youthful offender from the Reception and Diagnostic Center, who does not need the security of the Reformatory, or youthful offenders from the Reformatory as a trial step toward return to society. The camp provides a full time work training experience in forestry conservation work under a cooperative arrangement with the General Andrews Nursery along with an opportunity for individual and group counseling of personal and social problems. Capacity is 60 boys.

The Department of Corrections juvenile institutions include the following:

Minnesota Home School—Sauk Centre

The Minnesota Home School, established in 1911 is the only institution for juvenile girls and therefore has an extremely heterogenous population of girls. In the summer of 1966 the institution added a selected group of juvenile boys. The Minnesota Home School comfortably houses approximately 175 boys and girls in a treatment program offering individual and group treatment, accredited academic and limited vocational education, work programs and development of personal, social and work skills.

St. Croix Forestry Camp—St. Croix State Forest, Pine County

The St. Croix Forestry Camp was opened in 1960. The camp offers a ½ day accredited academic program for 9th and 10th grade boys, a half day of work in forestry development and conservation and a treatment program of individual and intensive group counseling. Current capacity is 50 boys.

Thistledew Forestry Camp—Itasca County

The Thistledew Camp was established in 1955 as a full time forestry work program for 60 boys over 16 years of age who have dropped out of school and who do not have the ability, stability or interest in regular academic school. In addition to the forestry work, the camp offers a program of counseling, driver education and basic education.

Youth Vocational Center—Rochester

This abandoned Air Force Radar site was taken over by the State in 1960 and offers accredited vocational training in auto mechanics, small engine repair and cooking and baking for 50 boys whose main interest and ability lies in vocational education rather than academic education. Tutoring and self study is offered in most subjects at the 10th, 11th and 12th grade level. Each boy at the Center is involved in intensive group treatment emphasizing boys helping each other with personal problems under the guidance of trained staff.

State Training School for Boys—Red Wing

The Training School for Boys has a comfortable capacity of 272 boys who vary tremendously in age, emotional and intellectual ability, socio-economic background and degree of sophistication in delinquency. The program consequently is an extremely varied one of basic education, elementary and secondary education, pre-vocational and vocational training, on the job training and work experiences. Treatment resources include limited intensive individual therapy and extensive and intensive group treatment directed toward changing attitudes of the delinquent toward self and others.

The academic and vocational education emphasizes attitude changes, vocational exploration, job skills and basic education.

Fifty-seven of the eighty-seven counties in Minnesota were established during the Territorial period before May 11, 1858. Fourteen were established between that date and 1869. Seven, namely, Swift, Lac qui Parle, Yellow Medicine, Lincoln, Cook, Kittson and Marshall Counties, during the next ten years. Nine, Norman, Hubbard, Roseau, Red Lake, Clearwater, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Pennington, and Lake of the Woods, have since been added to the list by proclamation.

MINNESOTA CITIES, VILLAGES AND POST OFFICES*

Column 1

□ Cities
✳ Villages
○ Post Offices
County seats shown in capital letters

Column 3

Population as of 1960

Column 4

The symbols used in this column have the following meaning:
SM: Strong mayor-council plan
CM: City manager plan
Com: Commission plan
MC: (Weak) Mayor-council plan—in the case of villages, the standard plan
A: Plan A village
B: Council-manager village

Column 5

Where only a date is given opposite the name of a city, the city operates under a home rule charter adopted, amended or revised in the year specified. In the case of the other cities, the reference is to the general or special act under which the city operates. In the case of villages, the date is that of incorporation or adoption of an optional plan whichever is latter.

Column 6

In this column, a 1 appearing after the election date or letter means that the city holds its regular election in the odd numbered year, and 2 means that the election is held in the even numbered year. N indicates an election on the 1st Tuesday after the 1st Monday in November, and D indicates an election on the first Tuesday after the 1st Monday in December. All elections are annual unless otherwise noted. T indicates Tuesday and Th indicates Thursday.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any state the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

*SEC. 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year. *When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the Senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their own officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments.

When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment according to law.

SEC. 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall, by law, appoint a different day.

SEC. 5. Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same; excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

SEC. 6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

SEC.7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States, and,

*Amendments ratified 1913. See Amendment No. 17.

Salaries and Compensation of Legislators 306

THE AUTONOMY OF STATES

The fifty states appear to be autonomous and self-governing but not sovereign units within the Union. Their autonomy lies in their prerogative to exercise on their own initiative and responsibility whatever powers and functions they have under the United States Constitution. They do not need to obtain enabling legislation from Congress or executive approval from the President to utilize the powers that they possess.

Under the United States Constitution each state may pass any law and undertake any function that the proper authorities of the state think best. State powers and functions include all those powers of government that are left after the constitutional grant of certain powers to the national government. Therefore, the powers and functions of the fifty states are residual and largely undefined. A state may adopt any system of taxation that is consistent with ordinary due process, except that it may not tax imports, exports, and instrumentalities of the federal government. Staying within the rule that its government must be republican in form, a state may change its government in any way it chooses and may set up any system of local government that it desires.

In short, the power of each state is considerable. Each possesses a wide range of choices with respect to what it shall do, how its government shall be organized, and how it shall finance its services. Furthermore, only by a constitutional amendment that would require a three-fourths vote of the states could the states be deprived of their present autonomy.

LEGISLATIVE AND CAPITOL NEWS CORRESPONDENTS

A battery of reporters, photographers and radio and television newsmen converge on the capitol every two years to report the actions of the Minnesota Legislature. Because of the dedication of these professional journalists, coverage of the state's legislative process is rated among the best in the United States.

Center of the news operation during the session is a pair of adjoining second floor press rooms, located between the senate and the house chambers. Several teletype machines are in almost continuous operation, carrying legislative news to the offices of every newspaper, TV and radio station in the state. Major stories are dispatched nationwide on the wires of the Associated Press and United Press International.

During the interim, four Twin Cities newspapers and the two wire services—Associated Press and United Press International—provide full-time or near full-time reporters to focus attention on state government developments. A "breaking" story often brings reporters from out-state papers and TV and radio newsmen.

Full-time statehouse reporters are: Gerry Nelson, Associated Press; William Fox, United Press International; Robert J. O'Keefe and David Planting, St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press. Near full-time reporters are: Robert Weber, Minneapolis Star; and Frank Premack, Minneapolis Tribune.

Constitution; Fundamental Laws

Contents

Northwest Ordinance 1787 317
Organic Act 320
Enabling Act 325
Minnesota Constitution 327
Congressional Act of Admission 344

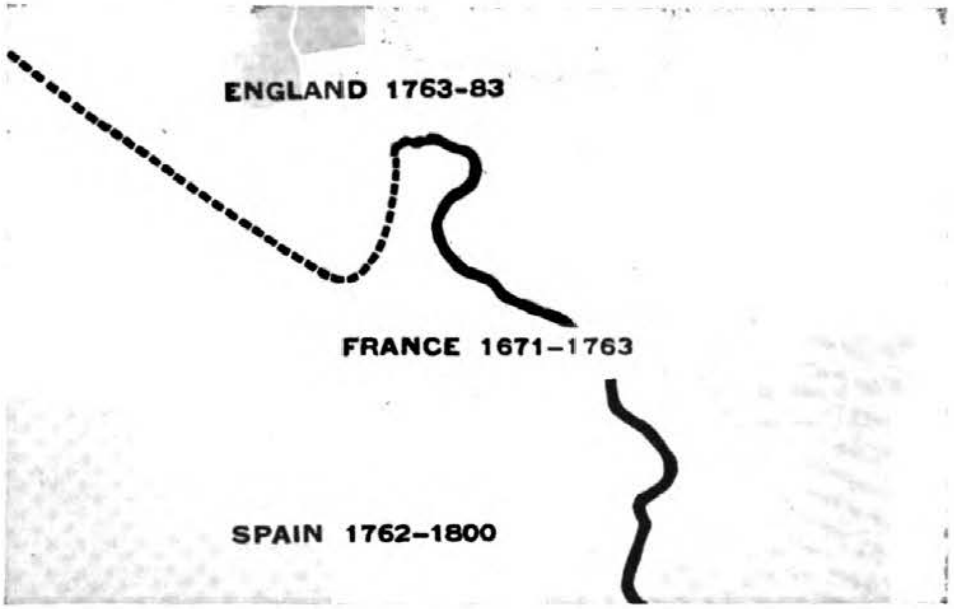

This section of the Legislative Manual sets forth five fundamental charters and laws which effect the State of Minnesota. They are presented with explanatory material and in the chronological order of their effect upon the establishment of the land area and the formation of the fundamental governmental principles of this state. They are: (1) The Northwest Ordinance of 1787 which established the Northwest Territory; (2) The Organic Act which created the Territory of Minnesota; (3) The Enabling Act which authorized a state constitution preparatory to admission into the union; (4) The Minnesota Constitution; (5) The Congressional Act of Admission whereby Minnesota was admitted as a state.

MINNESOTA—UNDER FOUR NATIONS

The land area of Minnesota has at various times been under the governments of four nations—France, Spain, England and the United States. The early territorial claims of France, Spain and England were vague and overlapping. Formal government was nonexistent.

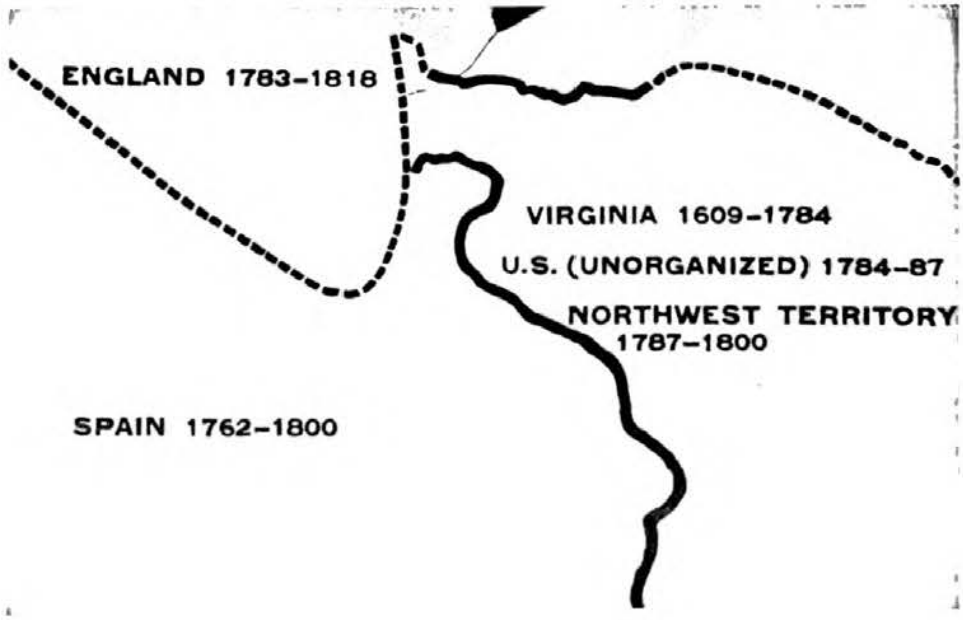

Formal dominion over this area was probably first expressed by the French when in 1671 the Sieur de Lusson, in a picturesque ceremony held at the Sault de Ste. Marie, claimed for France the vast northwest area of North America.

However, British dominion over northeastern Minnesota appears to have provided the first written constitution nominally in effect in the land area of Minnesota. This occurred when Minnesota was made a part of the Province of Quebec under the Quebec Act of 1774. But England's claim to this area was not exclusive inasmuch as Virginia maintained a claim to the same area.

Of Minnesota's land area the portion east of the Mississippi River was the first to come under the jurisdiction of the United States. This was established by the treaty of peace between England and the United States in 1783. Four years later, under the Ordinance of 1787, the first genuine government was extended to this area, and the Minnesota country began its march to statehood.

THE NORTHWEST ORDINANCE OF 1787

One of the great fundamental charters of our history was the Northwest Ordinance passed by the Congress of the Confederation on July 13, 1787. The Ordinance of 1787 was made possible when several states, including Massachusetts, New York, Virginia and Connecticut released their claims to the land area west of the Appalachian Mountains extending to the Mississippi River. This area became known as the Northwest Territory.

The Ordinance of 1787 followed the fundamentals of Thomas Jefferson's Ordinance of 1784 and established a government over the Northwest Territory and gave impetus to the westward expansion of this nation. It was an outstanding governmental document. It gave first national recognition to the Bill of Rights, abolished primogeniture, provided for the encouragement of education, prohibited slavery, and established the great new principle that new states should be admitted to the federal government on equal footing with the original states.

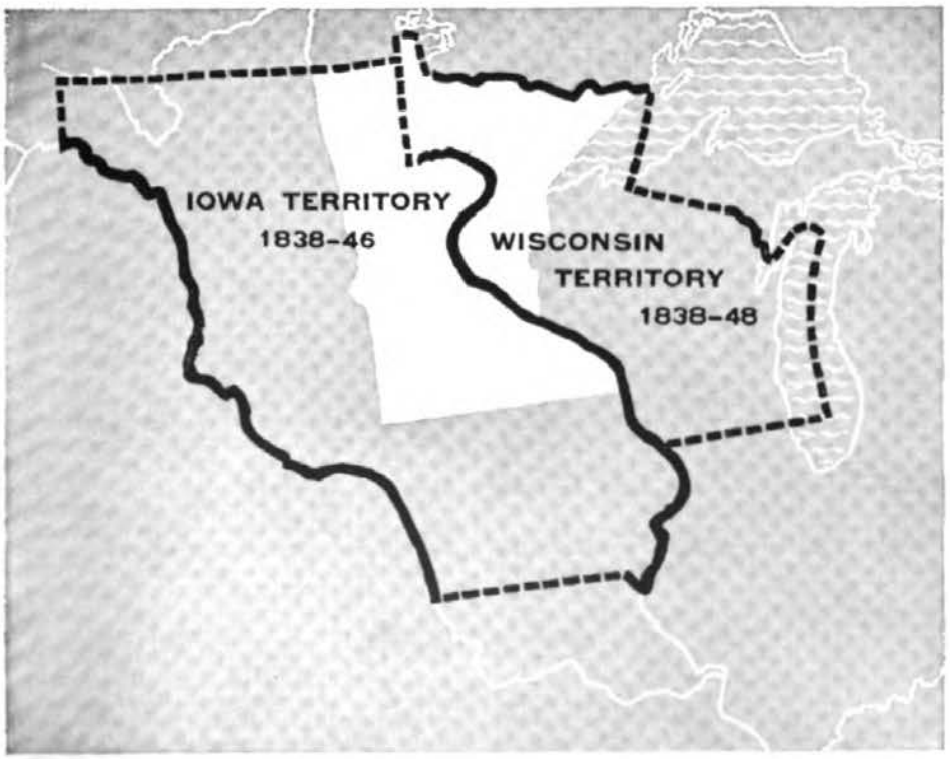

The full effect of the Northwest Ordinance upon Minnesota law has yet to be determined. For example, the question of whether common law in Minnesota dates from the Revolution or from the Ordinance of 1787 has been left open by decisions of the Minnesota courts.

The Ordinance provided for the formation out of the Northwest Territory of not less than three nor more than five states. These states were to be admitted to the federal government on an equal footing with the original states.

By May of 1848 five states had been formed out of the Northwest Territory—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The State of Wisconsin was organized out of the Territory of Wisconsin, the last remnant of the Northwest Territory. Although in 1848 the Territory of Wisconsin extended to the Mississippi River, the State of Wisconsin voluntarily limited its western boundary to the St. Croix River. This boundary limitation by the State of Wisconsin left the land area between the St. Croix and the Mississippi available for eventual inclusion in the State of Minnesota.

Thus it is that the State of Minnesota can trace much of its fundamental governmental principles, and a substantial portion of its territory, back to the Northwest Ordinance of 1787.

Northwest Ordinance 1787

Act of Congress, July 13, 1787

An Ordinance for the government of the territory of the United States northwest of the river Ohio.

1. Be it ordained by the United States, in Congress assembled, That the said territory, for the purpose of temporary government, be one district, subject, however, to be divided into two districts, as future circumstances may, in the opinion of Congress, make it expedient.

2. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That the estates both of resident and non-resident proprietors in the said territory, dying intestate, shall descend to, and be distributed among, their children and the descendants of a deceased child in equal parts, the descendants of a deceased child or grandchild to take the share of their deceased parent in equal parts among them; and where there shall be no children or descendants, then in equal parts to the next of kin, in equal degree; and among collaterals, the children of a deceased brother or sister of the intestate shall have, in equal parts among them, their deceased parent's share; and there shall, in no case, be a distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood; saving in all cases to the widow of the intestate her third part of the real estate for life, and one-third part of the personal estate; and this law, relative to descents and dower, shall remain in full force until altered by the Legislature of the district. And until the Governor and judges shall adopt laws, as hereinafter mentioned, estates in the said territory may be devised or bequeathed by wills in writing, signed and sealed by him or her in whom the estate may be, (being of full age), and attested by three witnesses; and real estates may be conveyed by lease and release, or bargain and sale, signed, sealed and delivered by the person, being of full age, in whom the estate may be, and attested by two witnesses, provided such wills be duly proved, and such conveyances be acknowledged, or the execution thereof duly proved, and be recorded within one year after proper magistrates, courts, and registers, shall be appointed for that purpose; and personal property may be transferred by delivery, saving, however, to the French and Canadian inhabitants, and other settlers of the Kaskaskies, Saint Vincents, and the neighboring villages, who have heretofore professed themselves citizens of Virginia, their laws and customs now in force among them, relative to the descent and conveyance of property.

3. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be appointed, from time to time, by Congress, a Governor, whose commission shall continue in force for the term of three years, unless sooner revoked by Congress; he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in 1,000 acres of land, while in the exercise of his office.

4. There shall be appointed from time to time, by Congress, a Secretary, whose commission shall continue in force for four years, unless sooner revoked; he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of his office. It shall be his duty to keep and preserve the Acts and laws passed by the Legislature, and the public records of the district, and the proceedings of the Governor in his executive department, and transmit authentic copies of such Acts and proceedings every six months, to the Secretary of Congress. There shall also be appointed a court, to consist of three judges, any two of whom to form a court, who shall have a common law jurisdiction and reside in the district, and have each therein a freehold estate in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of their offices; and their commissions shall continue in force during good behavior.

5. The Governor and judges, or a majority of them, shall adopt and publish in the district such laws of the original States, criminal and civil, as may be necessary, and best suited to the circumstances of the district, and report them to Congress from time to time, which laws shall be in force in the district until the organization of the General Assembly therein, unless disapproved of by Congress; but afterwards the Legislature shall have authority to alter them as they shall think fit.

6. The Governor, for the time being, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia, appoint and commission all officers in the same below the rank of general officers; all general officers shall be appointed and commissioned by Congress.

7. Previous to the organization of the general assembly, the Governor shall appoint such magistrates, and other civil officers, in each county or township, as he shall find necessary for the preservation of the peace and good order in the same. After the General Assembly shall be organized the powers and duties of magistrates and other civil officers shall be regulated and defined by the said assembly; but all magistrates and other civil officers, not herein otherwise directed, shall, during the continuance of this temporary government, be appointed by the Governor.

8. The Legislative Council shall consist of five members, to continue in office five years, unless sooner removed by Congress; any three of whom to be a quorum; and the members of the council shall be nominated and appointed in the following manner, to wit: As soon as Representatives shall be elected the Governor shall appoint a time and place for them to meet together, and when met they shall nominate ten persons, resident in the district, and each possessed of a freehold in five hundred acres of land, and return their names to Congress, five of whom Congress shall appoint and commission to serve as aforesaid; and whenever a vacancy shall happen in the Council, by death or removal from office, the House of Representatives shall nominate two persons, qualified as aforesaid, for each vacancy, and return their names to Congress, one of whom Congress shall appoint and commission for the residue of the term; and every five years, four months at least before the expiration of the time of service of the members of the Council, the said House shall nominate ten persons, qualified as aforesaid, and return their names to Congress, five of whom Congress shall appoint and commission to serve as members of the Council five years, unless sooner removed. 12. The Governor, judges, Legislative Council, Secretary, and such other officers as Congress shall appoint in the district, shall take an oath or affirmation of fidelity, and of office; the Governor before the President of Congress, and all other officers before the Governor. 14. It is hereby ordained and declared, by the authority aforesaid, that the following articles shall be considered as articles of compact, between the original States and the people and States in the said territory, and forever remain unalterable, unless by common consent, to wit:

Art. I. No person demeaning himself in a peaceable and orderly manner shall ever be molested on account of his mode of worship, or religious sentiments in the said territories.

Art. II. The inhabitants of the said territory shall always be entitled to the benefits of the writs of habeas corpus, and of the trial by jury; of a proportionate representation of the people in the Legislature, and of judicial proceedings according to the course of the common law. All persons shall be bailable, unless for capital offenses, where the proof shall be evident or the presumption great. All fines shall be moderate, and no cruel or unusual punishments shall be inflicted. No man shall be deprived of his liberty or property, but by the judgment of his peers, or the law of the land, and should the public exigencies make it necessary, for the common preservation, to take any person's property, or to demand his particular services, full compensation shall be made for the same. And, in the just preservation of rights and property, it is understood and declared that no law ought ever to be made or have force in the said territory, that shall, in any manner whatever, interfere with or affect private contracts, or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.

Art. III. Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged. The utmost good faith shall always be observed towards the Indians; their lands and property shall never be taken from them without their consent; and in their property, rights and liberty they never shall be invaded or disturbed, unless in just and lawful wars authorized by Congress; but laws founded in justice and humanity shall, from time to time, be made, for preventing wrongs being done to them, and for preserving peace and friendship with them.

The inhabitants and settlers in the said territory shall be subject to pay a part of the federal debts, contracted, or to be contracted, and a proportional part of the expenses of government, to be apportioned on them by Congress, according to the same common rule and measure by which apportionments thereof shall be made on the other States, and the taxes for paying their proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the Legislatures of the district, or districts, or new States, as in the original States, within the time agreed upon by the United States in Congress assembled. The Legislatures of those districts, or new States, shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil by the United States in Congress assembled, nor with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing the title in such soil to the bona fide purchasers. No tax shall be imposed on lands the property of the United States; and in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents. The navigable waters leading into the Mississippi and Saint Lawrence, and the carrying places between the same, shall be common highways, and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of the said territory as to the citizens of the United States, and those of any other States that may be admitted into the Confederacy, without any tax, impost, or duty therefor.

The eastern State shall be bounded by the last mentioned direct line, the Ohio, Pennsylvania, and the said territorial line: Provided, however, and it is further understood and declared, that the boundaries of these three States, shall be subject so far to be altered, that, if Congress shall hereafter find it expedient, they shall have authority to form one or two States in that part of the said territory which lies north of an east and west line drawn through the southerly bend or extreme of Lake Michigan. THE ORGANIC ACT

The Organic Act was passed by Congress on March 3, 1849, to provide for the Territorial Government of Minnesota. The boundaries of the territory of Minnesota were Canada on the north, Wisconsin on the east, Iowa on the south and the Missouri and White Earth rivers on the west.

The movement to create a Minnesota Territorial Government arose out of the necessity for formal government in the remnants of land area which remained after the formation of the states of Wisconsin and Iowa.

Minnesota's land area west of the Mississippi was left without territorial government when the State of Iowa was formed out of the Territory of Iowa in 1846.

The triangular area between the St. Croix River and the Mississippi River was left without territorial government when the State of Wisconsin was admitted to the Union in 1848.

Thus, by 1848 the land area from the St. Croix River west to the Missouri and White Earth rivers was without territorial government—a veritable "no man's land."

Consequently, when Henry H. Sibley was elected delegate to Congress from this area, he worked together with Senator Stephen A. Douglas, chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories, to bring about the passage of the Organic Act for the establishment of a territorial government over this area—the Territory of Minnesota.

The Organic Act provided for a governor, secretary, judicial system, legislative assembly and a delegate to congress. Legislators and the delegate to congress were elected; all other officers were appointive.

The Legislative Assembly consisted of two houses, a council composed of nine members and a house of representatives with eighteen members. The first session of the Legislature convened on September 3, 1849, in the Central House at the corner of Bench and Minnesota Streets in St. Paul. Since that time St. Paul has been the capitol of Minnesota. However, in 1857 a bill was introduced in the territorial legislative assembly to have the capitol removed from St. Paul to St. Peter. This action was promoted by the East and West boundary group which contended that the boundary to be established for the State of Minnesota should extend from Wisconsin west to the Missouri River, with the north line of the state being just north of St. Paul. Although this bill passed both houses of the legislative assembly, it was stolen before it could be presented to the territorial governor for his signature. Thus, the bill failed to pass because of assembly member Joseph Rolette, who disappeared with the bill and held it until the close of the Legislative session.

An important provision of the Organic Act was the reservation of sections 16 and 36 of each township for school purposes.

Alexander Ramsey, a Whig, was the first Territorial Governor. He was followed by Willis A. Gorman and Samuel Medary, Democrats.

Minnesota progressed under the territorial government, but many groups felt that progress would be accelerated if Minnesota were a state. Within a short time there arose a strong desire for statehood.

Organic Act of Minnesota

An act to establish the Territorial Government of Minnesota
[Passed March 3, 1849]

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act, all that part of the territory of the United States which lies within the following limits, to-wit: Beginning in the Mississippi river at the point where the line of forty-three degrees and thirty minutes of north latitude crosses the same; thence running due west on said line, which is the northern boundary of the state of Iowa, to the northwest corner of the said state of Iowa; then southerly along the western boundary of said state to the point where said boundary strikes the Missouri river; thence up the middle of the main channel of the Missouri river to the mouth of White Earth river; thence up the middle of the main channel of the White Earth river to the boundary line between the possessions of the United States and Great Britain, thence east and south of east along the boundary line between the possessions of the United States and Great Britain to Lake Superior; thence in a straight line to the northernmost point of the state of Wisconsin in Lake Superior; thence along the western boundary line of said state of Wisconsin to the Mississippi river; thence down the main channel of said river to the place of beginning, be and the same is hereby erected into a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Minnesota; provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to inhibit the government of the United States from dividing said Territory into two or more territories, in such manner and at such times as Congress shall deem convenient and proper, or from attaching any portion of said Territory to any other state or territory of the United States.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the executive power and authority in and over said Territory of Minnesota shall be vested in a governor, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the president of the United States. The governor shall reside within said Territory; shall be commander-in-chief of the militia thereof; shall perform the duties and receive the emoluments of superintendent of Indian affairs. He may grant pardons for offenses against the law of said Territory, and reprieves for offenses against the laws of the United States until the decision of the president can be made known thereon; he shall commission all officers who shall be appointed to office under the laws of the said Territory, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be a secretary of said Territory, who shall reside therein, and hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president of the United States; he shall record and preserve all the laws and proceedings of the legislative assembly hereinafter constituted, and all the acts and proceedings of the governor in his executive department; he shall transmit one copy of the laws and one copy of the executive proceedings, on or before the first day of December in each year, to the president of the United States, and at the same time two copies of the laws to the speaker of the house of representatives, and the president of the senate for the use of Congress. The house of representatives shall, at its first session, consist of eighteen members, possessing the same qualifications as prescribed for members of the council, and whose term of service shall continue one year. The number of councilors and representatives may be increased by the legislative assembly, from time to time, in proportion to the increase of population; provided, that the whole number shall never exceed fifteen councilors and thirty-nine representatives. An apportionment shall be made, as nearly equal as practicable, among the several counties or districts for the election of the council and representatives, giving to each section of the Territory representation in the ratio of its population, Indians excepted, as nearly as may be. And the members of the council and of the house of representatives shall reside in and be inhabitants of the districts for which they may be elected, respectively. Previous to the first election, the governor shall cause a census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the several counties and districts of the Territory to be taken, and the first election shall be held at such time and places and be conducted in such manner as the governor shall appoint and direct, and he shall, at the same time, declare the number of members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties and districts shall be entitled under this act.

And the persons thus elected to the legislative assembly shall meet at such place on such day as the governor shall appoint, but thereafter the time, place and manner of holding and conducting all elections by the people, and the apportioning of the representation in the several counties or districts to the council and house of representatives, according to the population, shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the commencement of the regular session of the legislative assembly; provided, that no one session shall exceed the term of sixty days.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every free white male inhabitant above the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of said Territory at the time of the passage of this act, shall be entitled to vote at the first election, and shall be eligible to any office within the said Territory; but the qualifications of voters and of holding office at all subsequent elections shall be such as shall be prescribed by the legislative assembly; provided, that the right of suffrage and of holding office shall be exercised only by citizens of the United States and those who shall have declared on oath their intention to become such, and shall have taken an oath to support the constitution of the United States and the provisions of this act.

All the laws passed by the legislative assembly and governor shall be submitted to the Congress of the United States, and if disapproved shall be null and of no effect.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That all township, district and county officers, not herein otherwise provided for, shall be appointed or elected, as the case may be, in such manner as shall be provided by the governor and legislative assembly of the Territory of Minnesota. The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the legislative council, appoint all officers not herein otherwise provided for, and, in the first instance, the governor alone may appoint all said officers, who shall hold their offices until the end of the next session of the legislative assembly.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no member of the legislative assembly shall hold or be appointed to any office which shall have been created, or the salary or emoluments of which shall have been increased, while he was a member, during the term for which he was elected, and for one year after the expiration of such term; and no person holding a commission or appointment under the United States, except postmasters, shall be a member of the legislative assembly, or shall hold any office under the government of said Territory.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the judicial power of said Territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and in justices of the peace. The said Territory shall be divided into three judicial districts, and a district court shall be held in each of said districts by one of the justices of the supreme court, at such time and places as may be prescribed by law; and the said judges shall, after their appointment, respectively, reside in the districts which shall be assigned them. The jurisdiction of the several courts herein provided for, both appellate and original, and that of probate courts and justices of the peace, shall be as limited by law; provided, that the justices of the peace shall not have jurisdiction of any matter in controversy when the title or boundaries of land may be in dispute, or where the debt or sum claimed shall exceed one hundred dollars; and the said supreme and district courts, respectively, shall possess chancery as well as common law jurisdiction. Each district court, or the judges thereof, shall appoint its clerk, who shall also be the register in chancery, and shall keep his office at the place where the court may be held. Writs of error, bills of exception and appeals shall be allowed in all cases from the final decisions of said district courts to the supreme court, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, but in no case removed to the supreme court, shall trial by jury be allowed in said court. The supreme court, or the justices thereof, shall appoint its own clerk, and every clerk shall hold his office at the pleasure of the court for which he shall have been appointed. Writs of error and appeals from the final decisions of said supreme court shall be allowed, and may be taken to the supreme court of the United States, in the same manner and under the same regulations as from the circuit courts of the United States, where the value of the property or the amount in controversy, to be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of either party, or other competent witness, shall exceed one thousand dollars; and each of the said district courts shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction, in all cases arising under the constitution and laws of the United States, as is vested in the circuit and district courts of the United States; and the first six days of every term of said courts, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be appropriated to the trial of causes arising under the said constitution and laws; and writs of error and appeal in all such cases shall be made to the supreme court of said Territory, the same as in other cases. The said clerk shall receive in all such cases the same fees which the clerks of the district courts of the late Wisconsin Territory received for similar services.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed an attorney for said Territory, who shall continue in office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president, and who shall receive the same fees and salary as the attorney of the United States for the late Territory of Wisconsin received. There shall also be a marshal for the Territory appointed, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president, and who shall execute all processes issuing from the said courts, when exercising their jurisdiction as circuit and district courts of the United States; he shall perform the duties, be subject to the same regulations and penalties, and be entitled to the same fees as the marshal of the district court of the United States for the late Territory of Wisconsin; and shall, in addition, be paid two hundred dollars annually as a compensation for extra services.

And be it further enacted, That when the lands in said Territory shall be surveyed under the direction of the government of the United States, preparatory to bringing the same into market, sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in each township in said Territory shall be and the same are hereby reserved for the purpose of being applied to schools in said Territory, and in the state and territories hereafter to be erected out of the same.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That temporarily, and until otherwise provided by law, the governor of said Territory may define the judicial districts of said Territory, and assign the judges who may be appointed for said Territory to the several districts, and also appoint the times and places for holding courts in the several counties or subdivisions in each of said judicial districts, by proclamation to be issued by him; but the legislative assembly, at their first or any subsequent session, may organize, alter or modify such judicial districts, and assign the judges, and alter the times and places of holding the courts, as to them shall seem proper and convenient.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That every bill which shall or may pass the council and house of representatives, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the Territory; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated; which shall cause the objections to be entered at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall also be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law; but in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days, (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislative assembly, by adjournment, prevent it, in which case it shall not become a law.

THE ENABLING ACT

Henry M. Rice, delegate to Congress from the Territory of Minnesota, at the opening of Congress in December 1856 introduced a bill for an act to authorize a state government for Minnesota. The Rice bill proposed that the north, south and east boundaries of Minnesota be continued, and that the west boundary be established as a line beginning at a point in the center of the main channel of the Red River of the North at the Canadian Border and running south through Lake Traverse, through Big Stone lake, to the Big Sioux river and to the northwest corner of Iowa. In place of the Big Sioux river Congress substituted a line from the outlet of Big Stone lake due south to the Iowa border.

Considerable controversy had arisen in the territory over proposed boundaries for the State of Minnesota. There were two general groups, the East and West group and the North and South group. The East and West group proposed the Missouri river as the west boundary, and a point just north of St. Paul as the north boundary. The Rice bill followed the proposal of the North and South group.

The bill for an enabling act was not without opposition in Congress. However, Minnesota again found a friend in Senator Stephen A. Douglas who was still chairman of the Senate committee on territories. The enabling act passed Congress and was approved on February 27, 1857.

In addition to establishing boundaries for the State of Minnesota, the Enabling Act provided for a constitutional convention and an election of delegates to that convention. It further provided that the following proposals be submitted for the consideration of the constitutional convention: that sections 16 and 36 of each township be reserved for school purposes; that 72 sections of land be reserved and set aside for a state university; that ten sections be granted to the state to complete and erect public buildings at the capitol; that all salt springs, not exceeding 12, be granted to the state for its use; and that five per centum of net proceeds from the sale by Congress of public lands lying within the State of Minnesota be paid to the state for public road purposes.

The Enabling Act also authorized the State of Minnesota to have one Representative in Congress and such additional Representatives as the population of the state would entitle it to at the current ratio of representation. For the purpose of determining the population the act authorized a census to be taken by the United States marshal for the Territory of Minnesota. The census was completed in October of 1857.

Second—That seventy-two sections of land shall be set apart and reserved for the use and support of a state university, to be selected by the governor of said State, subject to the approval of the commissioner at the general land office, and to be appropriated and applied in such manner as the legislature of said State may prescribe; for the purpose aforesaid, but for no other purpose.

THE MINNESOTA CONSTITUTION

The State of Minnesota is unique among constitutional governments in that it doesn't have a constitution—it has two. The circumstances which gave rise to this historical anomaly depict the strong feeling for independent political thinking which has pervaded Minnesota politics since statehood. However, any thought of illegality because of two constitutions should be promptly dismissed, for the two instruments are substantially identical, and all challenges on this issue have been quickly overturned.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

In accordance with the Enabling Act of February 26, 1857, an election was held on June 1, 1857, at which Republican and Democratic delegates were elected to the constitutional convention. When these delegates assembled in St. Paul on July 13, 1857, to draft the Minnesota constitution, bitterness between the two parties was so intense that Republican delegates and Democratic delegates refused to meet in the same convention. As a result each party held separate sessions in different rooms of the first capitol building.

The Democratic "convention" was presided over by Henry H. Sibley, later elected first governor of Minnesota. The Republican "convention" was presided over first by John W. North, and later by St. Andrew D. Balcombe.

The political cleavage was so great that the two bodies never acted in joint meeting during the entire constitutional convention—July 13 to Aug. 29. The final work of writing the constitution was done through a conference committee composed of five conferees from each of the conventions. The conferees, by reporting to and receiving advice from their respective conventions, were able to draft a constitution that would be acceptable to both bodies. On August 28, 1857, in spite of numerous protests by delegates, the report of the conference committee was adopted without amendment by both the Republican and Democratic conventions.

The procedure for acquiring statehood not only requires a constitution to be approved by the voters of the proposed state, the constitution must also be approved by Congress. In December of 1857 the Minnesota constitution was submitted to the United States Senate for ratification.

A certified copy of the Democratic constitution was transmitted to the Senate by the territorial secretary—a Democrat. This copy was attached to the bill for the admission of Minnesota into the union. However, when the bill was reported back from the Senate, historians report that the Republican constitution was attached. In any event, there is substantial authortiy that both constitutions were before Congress when Minnesota was admitted to the union on May 11, 1858.

ARTICLE I

Bill of Rights

Object of government. SECTION 1. Government is instituted for the security, benefit and protection of the people, in whom all political power is inherent, together with the right to alter, modify or reform such government, whenever the public good may require it.

Rights and Privileges. SEC. 2. No member of the State shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to any citizen thereof, unless by the law of the land, or the judgment of his peers. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the State otherwise than the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

Liberty of the press. SEC. 3. The liberty of the press shall forever remain inviolate, and all persons may freely speak, write and publish their sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of such right.

Trial by jury. SEC. 4. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, and shall extend to all cases at law without regard to the amount in controversy, but a jury trial may be waived by the parties in all cases in the manner prescribed by law; [and the legislature may provide that the agreement of five-sixths of any jury in any civil action or proceeding, after not less than six (6) hours' deliberation, shall be a sufficient verdict therein][1]

[1]The clause in brackets was adopted November 4, 1890.

No excessive bail or unusual punishments. SEC. 5. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor shall excessive fines be imposed; nor shall cruel or unusual punishments be inflicted.

Rights of accused in criminal prosecutions. SEC. 6. In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the county or district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which county or district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel in his defense.[2]

[2]The jury contemplated by article 1, section 6, securing the right to jury trial in criminal cases, is a body of twelve men, and it is error to try a party charged with crime in a justice court, against his objection, with a jury of six. The fact that he may appeal to the district court, on entering into recognizance with sureties, does not change the rule. 14 Minn. 330.

Due process; prosecutions; second jeopardy; self-incrimination; bail; habeas corpus. SEC. 7. No person shall be held to answer for a criminal offense without due process of law, and no person for the same offense shall be put twice in jeopardy of punishment, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. All persons shall before conviction be bailable by sufficient sureties, except for capital offenses when the proof is evident or the presumption great; and the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when in case of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require.

Redress of injuries or wrongs. SEC. 8. Every person is entitled to a certain remedy in the laws for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property or character; he ought to obtain justice freely and without purchase; completely and without denial; promptly and without delay, conformable to the laws.

Treason defined. SEC. 9. Treason against the State shall consist only in levying war against the same, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

Right against unreasonable searches. SEC. 10. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the person or things to be seized.

Prohibits ex post facto laws, or laws impairing contracts. SEC. 11. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts shall ever be passed, and no conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate.

Imprisonment for debt; property exemption. SEC. 12. No person shall be imprisoned for debt in this State,[3] but this shall not prevent the legislature from providing for imprisonment, or holding to bail, persons charged with fraud in contracting said debt. A reasonable amount of property shall be exempt from seizure or sale for the payment of any debt or liability. The amount of such exemption shall be determined by law. [Provided, however, that all property so exempted shall be liable to seizure and sale for any debts incurred to any person for work done or materials furnished in the construction, repair or improvement of the same, and provided further, that such liability to seizure and sale shall also extend to all real property for any debt incurred to any laborer or servant for labor or service performed.][4]

[3]23 Minn. 1; 23 Minn. 411.

[4]The clause in brackets was adopted November 6, 1888.

Private property for public use. SEC. 13. Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use without just compensation therefor, first paid or secured.[5]

[5]The words "destroyed or damaged" inserted by amendment adopted November 3, 1896.

Military power subordinate. SEC. 14. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power, and no standing army shall be kept up in this State in times of peace.

Lands declared allodial; leases, when void. SEC. 15. All lands within the State are declared to be allodial, and feudal tenures of every description, with all their incidents, are prohibited. Leases and grants of agricultural lands for a longer period than twenty-one years hereafter made, in which shall be reserved any rent or service of any kind, shall be void.

Freedom of conscience; no preference to be given to any religious establishment or mode of worship. SEC. 16. The enumeration of rights in this constitution shall not be construed to deny or impair others retained by and inherent in the people. The right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience shall never be infringed, nor shall any man be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any religious or ecclesiastical ministry, against his consent; nor shall any control of or interference with the rights of conscience be permitted, or any preference be given by law to any religious establishment or mode of worship; but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licen-tiousness, or justify practices inconsistent with the peace or safety of the State, nor shall any money be drawn from the treasury for the benefit of any religious societies, or religious or theological seminaries.

No religious test or property qualifications to be required. SEC. 17. No religious test or amount of property shall ever be required as a qualification for any office of public trust under the State. No religious test or amount of property shall ever be required as a qualification of any voter at any election in this State; nor shall any person be rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity in consequence of his opinion upon the subject of religion.

No license to peddle. SEC. 18. Any person may sell or peddle the products of the farm or garden occupied and cultivated by him without obtaining a license therefor.[6]

ARTICLE II

Name and Boundaries

Name and boundaries. SECTION 1. This State shall be called and known by the name of the State of Minnesota, and shall consist of and have jurisdiction over the territory embraced in the following boundaries, to-wit: Beginning at the point in the center of the main channel of the Red River of the North, where the boundary line between the United States and British Possessions crosses the same; thence up the main channel of said river to that of the Bois des Sioux river; thence up the main channel of said river to Lake Traverse, thence up the center of said lake to the southern extremity thereof; thence in a direct line to the head of Big Stone lake; thence through its center to its outlet; thence by a due south line to the north line of the State of Iowa; thence east along the northern boundary of said State to the main channel of the Mississippi river; thence up the main channel of said river and following the boundary line of the State of Wisconsin until the same intersects the St. Louis river; thence down the said river to and through Lake Superior, on the boundary line of Wisconsin and Michigan, until it intersects the dividing line between the United States and British Possessions; thence up Pigeon river and following said dividing line to the place of beginning.[1]

[1]The northern boundary of the state at the Lake of the Woods is projected beyond the 49th parallel a distance of about twenty miles, making a wedge-shaped jog through the lake until it strikes firm ground on the west bank of the lake; thence in a due south line to the 49th parallel. The explanation of this jog is found in the subjoined paragraphs. In the seventh article of the treaty of Ghent, section 19 reads as follows: Sec. 19. Resolved that the following described (also represented on said map as before mentioned), is, in the opinion of the commissioners, so far as the same extends, the true boundary intended by the before mentioned treaties, namely: * * * thence through the middle of the waters of this bay to the northwest extremity of the same; being the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods, and from a monument in this bay, on the nearest firm ground to the above northwest extremity of said bay, the courses and distances are as follows: 56° W. 1,565½ feet; 2nd, N. 6° W. 861¼ feet; 3rd, N. 28° W. 615.4 feet; 4th, N. 27° 10′ W. 495.4 feet; 5th, N. 5° 10′ E. 1,322½ feet; 6th, N. 70° 45′ W. 493 feet, the variation being 12° east. The termination of this 6th and last course and distance being the above said most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods, as designated by the seventh article of the treaty of Ghent, and being in latitude 49° 23′ 55″ north of the equator, and in longitude 95° 14′ 38″ west from Greenwich. The second article of the convention of 1818 is as follows: Article 2. It is agreed that a line drawn from the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods along the 49th parallel of north latitude, or, if the said point shall not be in the 49th parallel of north latitude, then that a line drawn from the said point due north or south, as the case may be, until the said line shall intersect the said parallel of north latitude, and from the point of such intersection due west, along and with the said parallel, shall be the line of demarkation between the territories of the United States and His Britannic Majesty, and that the said line shall form the northern boundary of the said territories of the United States and the southern boundary of His Britannic Majesty, from the Lake of the Woods to the Stony Mountains. This boundary was re-established and determined by a commission authorized by congress, and the surveys embracing four years were made and reported to congress in 1877.

Jurisdiction on bordering rivers. SEC. 2. The State of Minnesota shall have concurrent jurisdiction on the Mississippi and on all other rivers and waters bordering on the said State of Minnesota, so far as the same shall form a common boundary to said State, and any other state or states now or hereafter to be formed by the same; and said rivers and waters, and navigable waters leading into the same, shall be common highways and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of said State as to other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll therefor.

Acceptance of propositions in enabling act. SEC. 3. The propositions contained in the act of Congress entitled, "An act to authorize the people of the Territory of Minnesota to form a constitution and state government, preparatory to their admission into the Union on equal footing with the original states," are hereby accepted, ratified and confirmed, and shall remain irrevocable without the consent of the United States; and it is hereby ordained that this State shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil within the same, by the United States, or with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing the title to said soil to bona fide purchasers thereof; and no tax shall be imposed on lands belonging to the United States and in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents.

ARTICLE III

Distribution of the Powers of Government

Division of powers. SECTION 1. The powers of government shall be divided into three distinct departments—legislative, executive, and judicial; and no person or persons belonging to or constituting one of these departments shall exercise any of the powers properly belonging to either of the others, except in the instances expressly provided in this constitution.[1]

[1]Courts cannot control or interfere with an executive officer of the state in his official acts, even though they are such that the duty to perform them might have been entrusted to some other officer. 28 Minn. 50.

ARTICLE IV

Legislative Department

Length of session; limit on introduction of new bills. 1-SEC. 1. The legislature shall consist of the Senate and House of Representatives. The senate shall be composed of members elected for a term of four years and the house of representatives shall be composed of members elected for a term of two years by the qualified voters at the general election.

The legislature shall meet at the seat of government in regular session in each odd numbered year at the time prescribed by law for a term not exceeding 120 legislative days; and no new bill shall be introduced in either branch, except on the written request of the Governor, during the last 30 days of such sessions.

A special session of the legislature may be called as otherwise provided by this constitution.[1]

[1]Changed by amendment adopted Nov. 6, 1962.

Apportionment of members. SEC. 2. The number of members who compose the Senate and House of Representatives shall be prescribed by law, but the representation in the Senate shall never exceed one member for every 5000 habitants, and in the house of Representatives one member for every 2,000 inhabitants. The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state, in proportion to the population thereof.[2]

[2]Changed by amendment adopted Nov. 3, 1964.

Eligibility of members; quorum. SEC. 3. Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and eligibility of its own members; a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to transact business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day and compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as it may provide.

Rules of government. SEC. 4. Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, sit upon its own adjournment, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member; but no member shall be expelled the second time for the same offense.

Officers; journal of proceedings. SEC. 5. The House of Representatives shall elect its presiding officer and the Senate and House of Representatives shall elect such other officers as may be provided by law; they shall keep journals of their proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, and the yeas and nays, when taken on any question, shall be entered on such journals.

Length of adjournments. SEC. 6. Neither house shall, during a session of the legislature, adjourn for more than three days (Sundays excepted), nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be assembled, without the consent of the other house.

Compensation. SEC. 7. The compensation of senators and representatives shall be prescribed by law. But no increase of compensation shall be prescribed which shall take effect during the period for which the members of the existing House of Representatives may have been elected.[3]

[3]Changed by amendment adopted Nov. 3, 1964.

Privilege from arrest. SEC. 8. The members of each house shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session of their respective houses, and in going to or returning from the same. For any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

Restriction as to holding office. SEC. 9. No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he is elected, hold any office under the authority of the United States or the State of Minnesota, except that of postmaster, and no senator or representative shall hold an office under the state which has been created or the emoluments of which have been increased during the session of the legislature of which he was a member, until one year after the expiration of his term of office in the legislature.

Bills of revenue to originate in House. SEC. 10. All bills for raising a revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose and concur with the amendments as on other bills.

Approval of bills by Governor; action on non-approval. SEC. 11. Every bill which shall have passed the Senate and House of Representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the State. If he approves, he shall sign and deposit it in the office of secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment within that time, prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law.

Governor may cut out items of appropriation bills and otherwise approve. If any bill presented to the governor contain several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. [3]Portion of Occupation Tax Placed in Veterans' Compensation Fund. SEC. 1B. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 1A of Article 9 of the Constitution, a portion of the proceeds of the occupation tax on the valuation of all ores mined or produced to be paid by every person, co-partnership, company, joint stock company, corporation, or association however or for whatever purpose organized, engaged in the business of mining or producing iron ore or other ores in this state, equal to the proceeds of a tax of one percent on such valuation levied in the manner provided by law, shall be paid into the veterans compensation fund before the remaining funds derived from the occupation tax are apportioned as provided by Section 1A of Article 9 of the Constitution.

[3]Adopted November 7, 1950.

This amendment when approved by the people and proclaimed, all as provided by law, shall be effective as of the first day of January, 1949. In the event that the provisions of the preceding sentence shall be held to contravene the constitution of the United States of America, the remaining provisions of this section shall stand as valid and continue in full force and effect.

This section of the constitution shall expire on December 31, 1958, except as to the proceeds of the occupation taxes theretofore levied and thereafter collected.

N. B.—Sections 2, 3 and 4 obsolete, because in 1906 there was adopted the section which now is Section I in this article. It supplanted Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 and the unnumbered section of 1896. This amendment is sometimes called the wide open tax amendment. No amendments have been adopted to take the place of the old Sections 2, 3 and 4. There is therefore a gap in the numbering from 1 to 5.

Subd. 2. Public debt may be contracted: (a) for the acquisition and betterment of public land and buildings and other public improvements of a capital nature, and to provide moneys to be appropriated or loaned to any agency or political subdivision of the state for such purposes; provided any law authorizing such debt is adopted by the vote of at least three fifths of the members of each branch of the legislature;

(d) for refunding outstanding bonds of the state or any of its agencies, whether or not the full faith and credit of the state has been pledged for the payment of such bonds; and for refunding certificates of indebtedness authorized by the legislature prior to January 1, 1963.

Subd. 3. As authorized by law, certificates of indebtedness may be issued during each biennium, commencing on July 1 in each odd-numbered year and ending on and including June 30 in the next odd-numbered year, in anticipation of the collection of taxes levied for and other revenues appropriated to any fund of the state for expenditure during that biennium.

No such certificates shall be issued with respect to any fund when the amount thereof with interest thereon to maturity, added to the then outstanding certificates against the same fund and interest thereon to maturity, will exceed the then unexpended balance of all moneys which will be credited to that fund during the biennium under existing laws; except that the maturities of any such certificates may be extended by refunding to a date not later than December 1 of the first full calendar year following the biennium in which such certificates were issued. If moneys on hand in any fund are not sufficient to pay all non-refunding certificates of indebtedness issued on such fund during any biennium and all certificates refunding the same, plus interest thereon, which are outstanding on December 1 immediately following the close of such biennium, the state auditor shall levy upon all taxable property in the state a tax collectible in the then ensuing year sufficient to pay the same on or before December 1 of such ensuing year, with interest to the date or dates of payment.

Subd. 4. Public debt other than certificates of indebtedness authorized in subdivision 3 shall be evidenced by the issuance of the bonds of this state. All bonds issued under the provisions of this section shall mature within not more than 20 years from their respective dates of issue, and each law authorizing the issuance of such bonds shall distinctly specify the purpose or purposes thereof and the maximum amount of the proceeds authorized to be expended for each purpose. The legislature may by law appropriate funds from any source to the state bond fund, and the amount of moneys actually received and on hand pursuant to such appropriations prior to the levy of such tax in any year, shall be used to reduce the amount of tax otherwise required to be levied.

Limitation as to when debt may be contracted; definition of public debt. [6]SEC. 7. The state shall never contract any public debt, unless in time of war, to repel invasion or suppress insurrection, except in the cases and in the manner provided and referred to in the sixth section of this article. Public debt includes any obligation payable directly, in whole or in part, from a tax of state-wide application on any class of property, income, transaction or privilege, but does not include any obligation which is payable from revenues other than taxes.

Money drawn from the State treasury. SEC. 9. No money shall ever be paid out of the treasury of this State except in pursuance of an appropriation by law.

Credit of the State limited. SEC. 10. The credit of the State shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated "Minnesota State Railroad Bonds," under what purports to be an amendment to Section ten (10) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution, adopted April 15th, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the State, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. [7]Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the State may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the State upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in Section 5 of this Article shall not apply to the provisions of this Section, and the purposes for which the credit of the State of the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes.

In all cases, however, a fair and equitable compensation shall be paid for such land, and the damages arising from the taking of the same; but all corporations being common carriers enjoying the right of way in pursuance of the provisions of this section, shall be bound to carry the mineral, agricultural and other productions of manufacturers on equal and reasonable terms.

Local Government, legislation affecting. SECTION 1. The legislature may provide by law for the creation, organization, administration, consolidation, division, and dissolution of local government units and their functions, for the change of boundaries thereof, for their officers, including qualifications for office, both elective and appointive, and for the transfer of county seats. No county boundary shall be changed or county seat transferred until approved by a majority of the voters of each county affected voting thereon.

Special Laws. SEC. 2. Every law which upon its effective date applies to a single local government unit or to a group of such units in a single county or a number of contiguous counties is a special law and shall name the unit or, in the latter case, the counties, to which it applies. The legislature may enact special laws relating to local government units, but a special law, unless otherwise provided by general law, shall become effective only after its approval by the affected unit expressed through the voters or the governing body and by such majority as the legislature may direct. Any special law may be modified or superseded by a later home rule charter or amendment applicable to the same local government unit, but this does not prevent the adoption of subsequent laws on the same subject.

Home Rule Charter. SEC. 3. Any city or village, and any county or other local government unit when authorized by law, may adopt a home rule charter for its government in accordance with this constitution and the laws. No such charter shall become effective without the approval of the voters of the local government unit affected by such majority as the legislature may prescribe by general law. If a charter provides for the consolidation or separation of a city and a county, in whole or in part, it shall not be effective without approval of the voters both in the city and in the remainder of the county by the majority required by law.

Charter Commissions. SEC. 4. The legislature shall provide by law for charter commissions. Notwithstanding any other constitutional limitations, the legislature may require that commission members shall be freeholders, provide for their appointment by judges of the district court, and permit any member to hold any other elective or appointive office other than judicial. Home rule charter amendments may be proposed by a charter commission or by a petition of five percent of the voters of the local government unit as determined by law and shall not become effective until approved by the voters by the majority required by law. Amendments may be proposed and adopted in any other manner provided by law. A local government unit may repeal its home rule charter and adopt a statutory form of government or a new charter upon the same majority vote as is required by law for the adoption of a charter in the first instance.

Existing Laws and Charters. SEC. 5. Existing laws and charters, valid when adopted shall continue in effect until amended or repealed in accordance with this article.[1]

Said trunk highway system shall consist of the trunk highway routes numbered 1 through 70 described in the constitutional amendment adopted November 2, 1920, the trunk highway routes added to said foregoing routes by the legislature prior to the effective date of this article, and such additional routes as may be added to the trunk highway system hereby created pursuant to authority in this article contained. The said highways shall extend as nearly as may be along the routes number 1 through 70 described in said constitutional amendment adopted November 2, 1920, and the routes described in any act of the legislature which has made or will hereafter make a route a part of the said trunk highway system. The more specific and definite location of said routes shall be fixed and determined by such boards, officers or tribunals and in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, but in fixing such specific and definite routes there shall not be any deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in said routes nor shall there be any deviation in fixing such routes from the various villages and cities named therein through which such routes are to pass.

The legislature may add by law new routes to said trunk highway system. Said trunk highway system shall not exceed 12,200 miles in extent, provided however, that the legislature may add by law trunk highways to said system in excess of said foregoing mileage limitation as the legislature may determine as necessary or expedient to meet, use, or otherwise take advantage of any federal aid made available by the United States to the State of Minnesota for highway purposes.

Any route added by the legislature to the trunk highway system either prior or subsequent to the effective date of this article may be altered, amended, relocated, changed or removed from said system, as provided by law. The definite location of said trunk highways numbered 1 through 70 heretofore fixed pursuant to this article may be thereafter changed and relocated as provided by law but no such change or relocation shall be authorized which would cause a deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in said routes nor cause any deviation from the various villages and cities named therein through which such routes are to pass.

After the deduction of collection costs as provided by law and the payment of refunds authorized by law, the net proceeds of such taxes shall be transferred to the following funds in the following proportions: 62 percent to the trunk highway fund; 29 percent to the county state-aid highway fund; nine percent to the municipal state-aid street fund. After January 1, 1963, the legislature is authorized to provide by law that five percent of the net proceeds of the highway user tax distribution fund may be set aside and if so set aside shall be apportioned as provided by law to one or more of the three foregoing funds on such basis as the legislature may determine. After said five percent may have been so set aside the balance of the highway user tax distribution fund shall in all events be transferred to the trunk highway fund, the county state-aid highway fund, and the municipal state-aid street fund in accordance with the percentages hereinbefore set forth. No change in the apportionment of the proceeds so set aside shall be made within six years of the commencement of the year in which the last previous change occurred.

Trunk highway fund. SEC. 6. There is hereby created a trunk highway fund which shall be used solely for the purposes specified in section 2 of this article and the payment of principal and interest of any bonds which may be issued under the authority of section 12 of this article and any bonds issued for trunk highway purposes under the constitution prior to July 1, 1957. All payments of principal and interest on any such bonds issued shall be a first charge on moneys coming into this fund during the year in which such principal or interest is payable. The fund created by this section shall also be used for the carrying on of work undertaken and the discharge of obligations incurred payable out of or chargeable to the trunk highway fund or the trunk highway sinking fund constituted and established by the constitution prior to July 1, 1957, and all moneys in said funds on the effective date of this article are hereby transferred to the fund created by this section.

County state-aid highway fund. SEC. 7. There is hereby created a county state-aid highway fund. Said fund shall, in addition to the share of the highway user tax distribution fund transferred to it by section 5, receive and include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund. All moneys in the state road and bridge fund as constituted and established by the constitution prior to July 1, 1957, are hereby transferred on the effective date of this article to the fund created by this section. To render aid for highway purposes the county state-aid highway fund shall be apportioned among the counties as provided by law. Except as provided herein, the funds apportioned shall be used by the counties as provided by law for aid in the establishment, location, construction, reconstruction, improvement and maintenance of county state-aid highways. The legislature may authorize the counties, as provided by law to use a part of said funds so apportioned to them to render aid in the establishment, location, construction, reconstruction, improvement and maintenance of other county highways, township roads, municipal streets, and any other public highways, including but not limited to trunk highways and municipal state-aid streets within the respective counties.

Except as provided herein, the funds apportioned shall be used by such cities, villages and boroughs as provided by law for aid in the establishment, location, construction, reconstruction, improvement and maintenance of municipal state-aid streets. The legislature is hereby authorized to provide by law for the taxation of motor vehicles using the public streets and highways of this state on a more onerous basis than other personal property; provided, however, that any such tax on motor vehicles shall be in lieu of all other taxes thereon, except wheelage taxes imposed by political subdivisions solely for highway purposes and except that the legislature may impose such tax upon motor vehicles of companies paying taxes under gross earnings system of taxation and upon the right to use such vehicles upon the public highways notwithstanding the fact that earnings from such vehicles may be included in the earnings of such companies upon which such gross earnings taxes are computed. Any such law may, in the discretion of the legislature, provide for the exemption from taxation of any motor vehicle owned by a non-resident of the state but properly licensed in another state, and transiently or temporarily using the streets and highways of the state. The proceeds of such tax shall be paid into highway user tax distribution fund.

The enumeration as in this section contained of the power of the legislature to authorize political subdivisions to participate in trunk highway work shall never operate or be construed so as to limit, prejudice or curtail in any degree or manner whatsoever any power or authority now vested in the legislature concerning or relating to any other public highways.

Bonds. SEC. 12. The legislature may provide by law for the issue and sale of the bonds of the state in such amount as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of section 2 of this article; provided, however, that the total amount of such bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed $150,000,000, par value. Taconite Taxation

SECTION 1. Notwithstanding any other provision of this constitution, Laws of Minnesota 1963, Chapter 81, relating to the taxation of taconite and semi-taconite, and facilities for the mining, production and beneficiation thereof shall not be repealed, modified or amended, nor shall any laws in conflict therewith be valid, for a period of 25 years after the adoption of this amendment; and laws may be enacted, fixing or limiting for a period of not more than 25 years but not extending beyond the year 1990, the tax to be imposed upon persons or corporations engaged in (1) the mining, production or beneficiation of copper, (2) in the mining, production or beneficiation of copper-nickel, or (3) in the mining, production or beneficiation of nickel. Taxes imposed upon the mining or quarrying of taconite or semi-taconite and upon the production of iron ore concentrates therefrom, which are in lieu of a tax on real or personal property, shall not be considered to be occupation, royalty, or excise taxes within the meaning of this amendment.

[1]Adopted Nov. 3, 1964. Laws of Minnesota for 1963, Chapter 81, (to be coded as Minnesota Statutes 1965, Section 298.40), referred to in Article XXI, provides:

SECTION 1. The combined occupation, royalty, and excise taxes imposed upon or required to be paid with respect to the mining, production, or beneficiation of taconite or semi-taconite by any person or corporation engaged in such mining, production, or beneficiation, shall not be increased so as to exceed the greater of (a) the amount which would be payable if such taxes were computed under the laws in existence as of July 1, 1963, or (b) the amount which would be payable if such person or corporation were taxed with respect to such mining, production, or beneficiation under the income, franchise, and excise tax laws generally applicable to manufacturing corporations transacting business within the state, as such laws may be enacted or amended from time to time, except that for the purpose of the computation under this clause (b), (1) income shall be apportioned to Minnesota in the manner which may be otherwise specified by law; (2) operating losses shall be carried forward from one taxable year to another only to the extent which may be otherwise permitted by law; and (3) the market value of the taconite or semi-taconite, or the beneficiated product thereof, at the point where the beneficiation processes within this state are completed may be treated by law as gross receipts for the purpose of determining gross income from the business of mining, producing, or beneficiating taconite or semi-taconite, provided that if such market value is so used, to the extent that federal income taxes are deductible in computing taxes of manufacturing corporations generally, deductions shall be computed and allowed as if such taxes had been computed, assessed, and paid under the federal income tax laws with the market value of the taconite or semi-taconite or the beneficiated product thereof constituting the gross receipts for the purpose of determining gross income from the business of mining, producing, or beneficiating taconite or semi-taconite.

SEC. 2. Taxes imposed upon the mining or quarrying of taconite or semi-taconite and upon the production of iron ore concentrates therefrom, which are in lieu of a tax on real or personal property, shall not be considered to be occupation, royalty, or excise taxes within the meaning of this act.

SEC. 3. For the purpose of this act "taconite" and "semi-taconite" shall have the meaning given to them by laws in existence at the time of the adoption of this act.

CONGRESSIONAL ACT OF ADMISSION

Acceptance by Congress is the final act in the process of being admitted as a state. A bill for the admission of Minnesota into the Union was submitted to Congress in December of 1857.

The bill for admission encountered several obstacles. The Minnesota bill was coupled with the bill for the admission of Kansas. It was customary to admit states in pairs—a state which permitted slavery would be linked with a state which prohibited slavery. This served to preserve the balance of power in Congress. Minnesota was to be a free state, Kansas a slave state. The proposal to admit Kansas as a slave state was being made under its fraudulent Lecompton constitution. The fraud in the adoption of the Kansas constitution was so glaring that admission under it was abandoned. This delayed the Minnesota bill for several months. Minnesota's bill also met with general opposition from congressmen from southern slave states.

On May 11, 1858, the bill for the admission of Minnesota was passed by Congress and approved by President James Buchanan. However, word of its passage did not reach St. Paul until almost two weeks later. Minnesota had no telegraph lines or railroads, so a telegram was sent to Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, and carried up the Mississippi River to St. Paul by steamboat. On May 24, 1858, the state officers took their oaths of office and Minnesota's state government began to function.

This ended the long trek toward statehood, which had seen the area of the state of Minnesota under four nations—France, Spain, Great Britain and the United States, and under nine territories—Northwest, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota.

ACT OF ADMISSION INTO THE UNION

An Act for the admission of Minnesota into the Union
[Passed May 11, 1858]

WHEREAS, An act of Congress was passed February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, entitled "An Act to authorize the people of the Territory of Minnesota to form a constitution and state government preparatory to their admission into the Union on an equal footing with the original states"; and, whereas, the people of said Territory did, on the twenty-ninth day of August, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, by delegates elected for that purpose, form for themselves a constitution and state government, which is republican in form, and was ratified and adopted by the people at an election held on the thirteenth day of October, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, for that purpose; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the State of Minnesota shall be one, and is hereby declared to be one, of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said State shall be entitled to two representatives in Congress, until the next apportionment of representatives among the several states.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That from and after the admission of the State of Minnesota, as hereinbefore provided, all the laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable shall have the same force and effect within that State as in other States of the Union; and the said State is hereby constituted a judicial district of the United States, within which a district court, with like powers and jurisdiction as the district court of the United States for the district of Iowa, shall be established; the judge, attorney and marshal of the United States of the said district of Minnesota shall reside within the same, and shall be entitled to the same compensation as the judge, attorney and marshal of the district of Iowa; and in all cases of appeal or writ of error heretofore prosecuted and now pending in the supreme court of the United States, upon any record from the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, the mandate of execution or order of further proceedings shall be directed by the supreme court of the United States to the district court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, or to the supreme court of the State of Minnesota, as the nature of such appeal or writ of error may require; and each of those courts shall be the successor of the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, as to all such cases, with full power to hear and determine the same, and to award mesne or final process therein.
