INTRODUCTION

Study Background and Goal:

This study was prepared for the Southwest Minnesota Expo Center Board of Directors (Board) and the Southwest Regional Development Commission (SWRDC). Dorton Poquette Associates, planning and research consultants, were selected to conduct the study for the Board and SWRDC. The study was funded by a grant from the Minnesota Historical Society and a specific appropriation by the 1988 Minnesota Legislature.

The purpose of the grant and study is to conduct a planning study for a proposed facility on Interstate 90 to promote local commercial and historical attractions. The goal of the study conducted by the consultants is to provide data and information to assist the SWRDC and Board in developing a plan for the proposed Expo Center facility.

Study Objectives:

The study objectives defined in the consultant agreement with the SWRDC and the Board are:

1. Provide the Board with tourism, market, economic and other data needed to develop a funding proposal for the detailed facility and financial planning studies for the proposed Center.
2. Provide assistance to the Board and SWRDC staff to analyze the data collected and to develop an appropriate strategy for the development of the Center's concept.
3. Prepare a report for the SWRDC and Board on the results of the study.

Study Methodology:

The study was designed to collect and analyze data and information for use in developing a plan for the proposed facility. The study is organized into five tasks to identify and classify the data and information for use by the SWRDC and the Board. The five tasks are:

1. Collect and analyze historical tourism and commercial traffic in the I-90 corridor and other major trunk highways (59, 60, 71, 75, and 86) in Southwest Minnesota.
 - o Southwest Minnesota visitor characteristics
 - o I-90 corridor traffic data

- o Tourism traffic estimates
 - o Travel mileage and times to and from tourism market areas
2. Collect and analyze data on economic activity in Southwest Minnesota related to development of the Expo Center.
 - o Travel and tourism related expenditures in the area.
 - o General economic data on the economy of the area
 - o Data on major employers, sales, products and employment
 3. Collect and analyze information on other tourist and commercial attractions which are located on rural interstate highways and which may relate to the Expo Center proposal.
 - o Identify related attractions
 - o Collect data on visitor information, major features, and markets
 4. Analyze data from the Minnesota Office of Tourism's I-90 corridor study and other available information related to the Expo Center proposal.
 - o Develop inventory of attractions and accommodations for Southwest Minnesota.
 - o Analyze inventory of attractions and accommodations with other inventory data from the area
 - o Collect and analyze data on competing attractions in southern Minnesota and surrounding states.
 5. Prepare a final study report on data and information collected and analyzed for the study.
 6. Conduct meetings with the SWRDC and Board members and staff and other interested groups.

The study area is the nine-county Southwest Minnesota Region Eight composed of Cottonwood, Jackson, Lincoln, Lyon, Murray, Nobles, Pipestone, Redwood, and Rock counties. The major data sources for the study were:

Minnesota Office of Tourism
Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development
Minnesota Department of Transportation
Minnesota Department of Revenue

Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training

HISTORICAL TOURISM ACTIVITY IN SOUTHWEST MINNESOTA

Introduction:

The purpose of this section of the report is to provide traffic data for the major highways in the area and identify the segments of the highways with the highest potential for tourist traffic. The highways analyzed in the study were identified in the consulting agreement. The highways included in the study were the segment of Interstate 90 (I-90) in Rock, Nobles, and Jackson counties and the major north/south Trunk Highways (TH) 23, 59, 60, 71, 75, and 86 segments within the Region 8 nine-county study area.

Southwest Minnesota Traffic Data:

Data Description:

The traffic data has been divided into the major interstate and trunk highway segments between the principal cities in the study area. The data is described as the annual Average Daily Traffic (ADT), peak month ADT, and low month ADT. The data is presented for travel during the peak summer travel months of June, July, and August.

Minnesota Department of Transportation, Preliminary 1988 ATR Data, Telephone contact Office of Transportation Data, Research and Analysis. St. Paul, Minnesota: February, 1989.

Data Issues:

The ATR station on Interstate 90 is located outside of the study area at Alden, Freeborn County. The data from this station is applicable to the I-90 segment located in the study area. The traffic flow data west of Alden is within a narrow range and there are no major north/south highways with significant traffic volumes likely to affect the traffic on I-90. The data from this station is representative of the traffic on I-90 between I-35 and the South Dakota border.

Data Source:

Minnesota Department of Transportation, 1986 State Traffic Flow Map. St. Paul, Minnesota: 1987.

Data Issues:

The traffic data for each trunk highway segment was selected to represent the traffic between two principal cities. The data for the Interstate 90 segments was selected from the 1986 State Traffic Flow Map at a point west of the city and intersection listed in the table. The trunk highway data was selected from the map at a point generally north of the city or intersection listed in the table. The monthly ADT for each segment will be lower in the winter months and higher during the peak summer travel months.

Conclusions:

The interstate and trunk highway segments with the highest traffic volumes are the most likely to carry the highest amount of tourist traffic. The ten segments with the highest traffic flow are:

Southwest Minnesota Recreational Traffic:

Data Description:

The traffic data presented in Table 4 is an estimate of recreational travel for an average summer day in 1986 and it is a portion of the ADT. The traffic volumes are presented in ranges and provide a general indication of the amount of recreation travel in each highway segment. They are not intended to be used in the analysis of a specific route.

Data Source:

The recreational travel estimates were based on a model developed by the Minnesota Department of Transportation in 1982. The 1986 estimates were prepared using the 1982 model and updated factors based on 1986 traffic data.

Minnesota Department of Transportation, Recreational Travel for the Average Summer Day in 1982, Office of Transportation Data, Research and Analysis. St. Paul, Minnesota: 1982.

Minnesota Department of Transportation, 1986 State Traffic Flow Map. St. Paul, Minnesota: 1987.

Minnesota Department of Transportation, Staff Working Papers on Recreational Travel. St. Paul, Minnesota: July, 1985.

Data Issues:

The recreational travel estimates provide only a general indication of the portion of traffic on an average summer day. It is based on factors developed from travel data for the months of June, July, and August. The estimates are not intended for use in analysis of specific routes and segments.

Conclusions:

The highway segments in Southwest Minnesota with the highest level of recreational travel exceeding 1,000 Average Daily Summer Traffic (ADST) are:

Travel Mileage and Travel Times to Southwest Minnesota:

Data Description:

The travel information in Table 6 provides travel times and mileage from major travel destinations to Southwestern Minnesota. The travel mileages and times are based on the distances from the tourist market city to Worthington. Worthington was chosen because it is the mid-point on I-90 in the study area. The travel market cities were selected because they are the major population centers in the states identified in the Minnesota visitor profile. The travel times are based on highway driving time in hours and minutes.

Rand McNally & Company, Chicago, Illinois, 1989.

1987-1988 Official Highway Map Minnesota: Minnesota
Department of Transportation, St. Paul, Minnesota, 1987.

Data Issues:

The travel times are approximate under normal driving conditions. The travel times were calculated with consideration for topography, number of towns, congested urban areas, and state and federal highway speed laws along the travel routes. Sheridan, Wyoming was included in the table to provide a location in central Wyoming and Sheridan is the gateway to many of the mountail and national park areas in western Wyoming.

Conclusions:

The tourism markets within a one day travel time to Southwest Minnesota are Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Madison, Des Moines, Sioux City, Omaha, Sioux Falls, Kansas City, and Rapid City.

The tourism markets with more than one day travel time are Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and Sheridan.

Minnesota Visitor Profile Data:

Data Description:

The Minnesota Office of Tourism conducts an annual survey of individuals making inquiries for travel information in Minnesota. The survey is the basis for development of the Minnesota visitor profile. The Office of Tourism updates the profile annually. The visitor profile describes a number of characteristics of the Minnesota tourist. The detailed visitor profiles are available from the Minnesota Office of Tourism.

Data Source:

Minnesota Office of Tourism, Minnesota Office of Tourism Inquirer Profile (Draft). St. Paul, Minnesota: January, 1989.

Data Issues:

The Minnesota Visitor Profile is based on a survey of persons inquiring about travel in Minnesota. The profile provides a general description of visitor characteristics. The data should not be used to specifically describe the visitor characteristics for Southwestern Minnesota.

Data Summary:

The summer months are the most popular travel months in Minnesota. In 1987, the survey results indicated that June (18.9 %), July (24.3%), and August (23.9%) had the highest preference for all respondents to the survey. During 1986, 35.2% of the Spring/Summer visitors took a trip of a full week or longer. During the same period, 51.3% of the non-Minnesotans took a trip of a week or longer. Minnesotans are more likely to take shorter or weekend trips than non-Minnesotans.

The visitor profile provides information on the type of lodging used by Spring/Summer tourists in 1986. The total percentage exceeds 100% because the survey provided for multiple answers.

Hotel/Motel/Bed & Breakfast	47.4%
Home of friend/relative	30.6%
Summer cabin/home	16.3%
Resort	30.3%
Campground	22.1%
Recreational Vehicle	10.5%

The profile provides information on expenditures by visitors in Minnesota. The information is reported in three categories to identify the expenditure differences between Minnesotans and non-Minnesotans. The data is for 1987.

Minnesotans

Per party	$506.00
Per visitor	174.49
Visitor/night	17.63

Non-Minnesotans

Per party	$713.57
Per visitor	206.23
Visitor/night	27.24

The number of people in the travel party during the Spring/Summer, 1987 were 3.7 for Minnesotans and 3.5 for non-Minnesotans. The profile reports that 60.2% of the visitors during the same period were between the ages of 25 and 44 and 37.4% were between the ages of 45 and 64.

The states of residence for visitors during Spring/Summer, 1987 were Minnesota 43.2%, Illinois 11.2%, Iowa 8.3%, Wisconsin 6.2%, Missouri 3.8%, Nebraska 2.2%, and Indiana 2.1%. The balance were under 2%.

The major activities and interests of visitors during Spring/Summer, 1985 were outdoor activities, 61.2%; driving and scenery, 74.5%; urban activities, 39.5%; business and conventions, 7.5%; visits to friends and relatives, 38.4%; and education or learning 20.2%.

Southwest Minnesota Visitor Characteristics: I-90 Survey

Data Description:

The questions on the 1988 I-90 Visitor Survey included information on both visitor and trip characteristics. Some of these items were: origin and destination of the travel parties; length of stay; activities; use of area highways; satisfaction with the area; socio-economic characteristics such as age, income, level of education, presence of children.

Data Source:

This information was compiled from a Visitor Survey conducted by Davidson-Peterson Associates and Dorton Poquette Associates in the 21 counties of southern Minnesota during August and early September, 1988. Overall, there were 600 respondents, a response rate of 21%. 369 of the respondents picked up their questionnaires in Southwest Minnesota; of these, 192 answered their surveys at Pipestone National Monument. Other survey locations in southwest Minnesota were: Beaver Creek Travel Information Center; Lake Shetek State Park; motels at Worthington and Jackson; and a restaurant at Windom.

Responses were tabulated by region: Mississippi Valley/Bluff Country (Dodge, Fillmore, Goodhue, Houston, Mower, Olmsted, Wabasha and Winona counties); Central Lakes (Blue Earth, Faribault, Freeborn, Steele and Waseca counties) and Southwestern (Cottonwood, Jackson, Martin, Murray, Nobles, Pipestone, Rock and Watonwan counties).

Data Issues and Limitations:

Since the survey was conducted late in the summer, the data probably underrepresents the actual number of families with children that might be traveling throughout the tourist season.

The overall sample was highly skewed to the southwestern area of the state and especially to visitors at the Pipestone National Monument where the ranger encouraged people to fill out the forms before leaving the grounds. Therefore, one must look closely at the areawide results as well as at the answers to questions regarding activities in which the respondents participated.

Data Summary:

Visitation to southwest Minnesota is more varied than that to either the Mississippi Valley or the central Lakes region. The key market for Bluff Country is the Twin Cities as Iowa appears to be for the Lakes region. In Southwest, one in five comes from Minnesota (16% from the Twin Cities) but only 9% from Iowa, 8 % from Wisconsin and South Dakota and 6% from Illinois and California. It seems that Southwest is more dependent on drive-through traffic than the other regions.

Although about 20% of the visitors to Southwest regard it as their destination, over 55% said they were travelling to areas either east or west of Minnesota. The latter group probably does not represent much of a market for destination-type tourist activities that might be built in Southwest.

Demographically, visitors to all three regions are quite similar: well-educated (67% with some college experience); moderately affluent (72% with household incomes over $25,000) and white-collar (52%). 20% reported being "retired."

One-third of the visitors to Bluff Country are on a "weekend getaway," and about 25% each were visiting friends/relatives or stopped there as part of a longer trip. In the Lakes Region, more said they were visiting friends and relatives and another 27% were taking longer vacations. In Southwest, however, over 40% said that they were taking a longer vacation.

Southwest had the highest proportion of one-night stays with motels dominating the overnight accommodations (42% vs. 23% for camping.)

The most widespread activity throughout the corridor was sightseeing. Since many visitors to Southwest picked up surveys at Pipestone Nat. Monument, many mentioned visiting Indian sites.

Satisfaction with their experiences, as measured by repeat visitation, is fairly high: 54% in Southwest. 72% of the visitors said that they were likely to return again. This figure may be high because of the large number who have friends or relatives in the area. Most said that they would use the tourism infrastructure of the area (accommodations, restaurants, information centers, etc.) and some (about 30%) would participate in activities or events.

Three-quarters of the visitors to Southwest used I-90 but only about one-fifth traveled all the way through the state on I-90. 13% didn't use I-90 at all.

More detailed results of the survey are found in Appendix 1.

Conclusions:

1. Based on the average daily trip data elsewhere in this report, combined with the relatively small numbers of children in the traveling parties, an attraction in Southwest based on children's activities would have little chance for success.

2. According to the Davidson-Peterson report on the I-90 study, the drive-through traffic probably represents the LEAST viable market for significant tourism growth in southern Minnesota (other than in the obvious infrastructure facilities such as motels or restaurants). And Southwest has the highest proportion of drive-through traffic (visitors in the process of taking a longer vacation) of any of the three regions in the study.

There may be some limited opportunities to encourage through-tourists to stop for a short while with a few new modest facilities and with much stronger communication of the existing tourist-oriented resources in the area. These conclusions apply to those drive-throughs who spend a night in the I-90 corridor as well as those who do not.

3. Additional day-trippers might be encouraged to come to southwest Minnesota by the addition of some more festivals and events of greater-than-local significance.

4. Those whose primary destination is in the area and who stay overnight are MOST LIKELY THE PRIMARY TARGET for increasing economic benefits from tourism to the I-90 corridor, according to Davidson-Peterson. These are the visitors who will spend the most money on lodging, retail, food, events and other attractions.

5. Travelers who come to visit friends and relatives may also represent some additional income to the area if local residents can be made aware of attractions, events and activities throughout the area which might be of interest to their guests. To some extent, the "Minnesota 1990" program is an attempt to do just that sort of thing. Again, an increase in this market is directly related to the ability of the local communities to get together and produce strong communications packages that emphasize collections or groups of possible tourist-related attractions.

ECONOMIC ACTIVITY DATA IN SOUTHWEST MINNESOTA

Introduction:

The purpose of this section of the report is to collect and analyze economic activity in nine-county area of southwestern Minnesota. The economic data collected for the study provides a general picture of economic activity and some specific data on tourism related activity. The economic data is generally based on regional information. Data on the individual counties is found in the appendices.

Region 8 General Economic Activity:

Data Description:

The data presented in the tables on general economic activity in the nine-county Southwest Minnesota area generally describes the major economic activities in Region 8. It is based on data on gross sales, employment, wages, and property market values.

Data Issues:

The data is presented to describe a general level of economic activity in Southwest Minnesota. It does not describe all activities, but provides a picture of the major elements in the area economy. The employment and wage data do not include individual farm employment data.

Data Summary and Conclusions:

Manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, and services provide the major source of wages and gross sales in the region. The major economic activity is agriculture, but the level of other activities indicates the major role played by the non-agricultural sectors. A significant portion of the manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, and services are indirectly related to agricultural activity.

The commercial and industrial property classes are not a large portion of the total property values in the region. The relationship is in a range from 2% to 8% among the individual counties. The class with the highest portion of market value is agriculture. The agricultural market values are not included in the tables.

Minnesota Tourism Employment and Business Activity:

Data Description:

The data presented in the tables on employment, wages, and number of businesses related to Minnesota tourism is for purposes of comparison to the same date for Region 8. The Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) codes for eating and drinking places, hotels and lodging, amusement and recreation were selected because they are the major expenditure categories for tourists.

Data Issues:

The SIC codes used in the tables provide a general picture of expenditures related to tourism. The SIC codes can be analyzed at a much more detailed level, but the data privacy regulations limit the level of analysis at the county and even at the regional level.

Summary and Conclusions:

The largest area of employment, sales, and businesses are in the eating and drinking classification. The expenditure and employment levels are consistent with tourist activities data from the Office of Tourism and I-90 visitor surveys.

The employment, wages, and average wage data indicate the relationship of tourism related businesses to the peak summer travel months. The lowest level of employment and wages is during the winter quarter.

Southwest Minnesota Tourism Business and Employment:

Data Description:

The data presented in the tables on employment, wages, and businesses provides a general description of tourism related economic activity in the nine-county Region 8 area. The SIC codes for eating places, hotels and lodging, and amusement and recreation are the major expenditure categories for tourists. The SIC codes for Region 8 can be compared to the Minnesota data for the same categories.

Data Source:

Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training, Minnesota Employment and Wages by Economic Region and County - First to Fourth Quarter, 1987: St. Paul, MN, 1988, 4 Volumes.

Data Issues:

The data on Region 8 tourism related employment and wages provides a description of the general level of economic activity. The analysis is limited by the general category of the data.

Data Summary and Conclusions:

1. The largest number of businesses, employment, amount of wages is in the category of eating and drinking places. The state and regional data are similar in the amount of wages and employment in this category.
2. The employment and wages in the eating places and hotel and lodging categories indicate the seasonal variation in tourism related businesses.

Southwest Minnesota Tourism Related Sales:

Data Description:

The gross sales for activities directly related to tourism are in the categories for eating and drinking places, hotels and lodging, and amusement and recreation businesses. The data is presented by quarter to identify the variation in sales during the peak non-tourist season.

Table 18

Region 8 Tourism Related Sales

SIC Code	Winter (000)	Spring (000)	Summer (000)	Fall (000)

Hotels, Lodging (70)	1,436	1,697	2,233	1,669
Amusement (79)	753	1,098	4,906	5,001

Data Source:

Minnesota Department of Revenue, Minnesota Sales and Use Tax Data - Quarterly 1987 Region 8 - Selected Industries, Special Computer Report: St. Paul, MN, January, 1989.

Data Issues:

The substantial increase in amusement and recreation sales during the summer and fall quarters cannot be easily analyzed from the data. Additional research needs to be undertaken to explain the large increase.

The sales data provides a general indication of tourism related economic activity. The variation by quarter indicates the sales related to tourism. The winter quarter sales are likely an indicator of local business activity.

Data Summary and Conclusions:

1. The summer quarter hotel and lodging sales are much higher and indicate the impact of tourism activity during the peak summer travel months.
2. The summer quarter sales at eating places are higher and indicate the impact of tourism activity during the peak summer travel months.

Major Employers in Southwest Minnesota

Data Description:

The following data items were collected (in so far as they were available) on the major employers in southwest Minnesota: Company name; address; county; phone; name of president/manager; description of activities; SIC code; year founded; approximate number of employees; revenues; owned by (if owned by a larger company); headquarters if the parent company is outside the area; and information, if available, on whether or not the company distributes products nationally or internationally.

For the purposes of this study, a company was considered "major" if it had one or more of the following characteristics: employed more than 8 people; had revenues of over $2 million or was selling to a national or international market.

Data Sources:

The primary data sources were the 1988 Minnesota Manufacturers Directory and the Corporate Report Fact Book for the 9th Federal Reserve District. Additional input was also solicited from the SWRDC staff.

Data Issues:

Listings in both directories used depend on a company's voluntarily filling out a questionnaire. Therefore, companies not responding to requests for information will be missed.

The ranges of number of employees and annual revenues given in the Manufacturer's Directory are so general as to be meaningless in some cases. The top of the revenue range is $10,000,000, a relatively low figure. There is no way of picking out the very large companies from this directory.

Private companies will often not divulge truthful information about their operations.

Data Summary:

In the nine counties in southwest Minnesota, there are more than 80 companies which fit the definition above of "major". Two of the largest private companies in Minnesota have headquarters or operations in this area (Schwan's and Cargill).

Twenty of the companies have more than 100 employees.

Twenty-six of the 83 companies listed are cooperatives, dealing primarily with feed, seed and fertilizer. While these companies have few employees, often fewer than 10, they report relatively high revenues. Seven reported over $10 million in revenues, 12 between $5-10 million, 6 between $2-5 million, and one between 1-2 million. These companies tend to have primarily a local impact.

More than half of the 83 companies listed are related to agriculture or food production at either the local or national levels.

In some cases, there is information on whether the company distributes nationally or internationally. It is these companies which would be the most likely to participate in a public relations effort that would bring their products to the attention of tourists from outside of Minnesota.

Full information on each company listed is included in Appendix 2.

MIDWEST TOURIST ATTRACTIONS IN COMPARABLE LOCATIONS

Introduction:

The study was designed to collect and analyze information on tourist and commercial attractions in the midwest that could be used to provide useful data to further develop the Expo Center proposal. The information on the attractions is focused on traffic patterns, markets, major features, and visitor profiles. The attractions selected were all located on rural interstate highways and were dependent upon visitors from interstate highway traffic. The first group of attractions identified were:

Tobys'	Hinckley, Minnesota	I-35
Wall Drug	Wall, South Dakota	I-90
Burlington Old Town	Burlington, Colorado	I-70
Fort Hays	Fort Hays, Kansas	I-70
Russell	Russell, Kansas	I-70
Ogallala	Ogallala, Nebraska	I-80
Fort Cody	Fort Cody, Nebraska	I-80
Roosevelt Memorial	Medora, North Dakota	I-94
Little America	Little America, Wyoming	I-80
Silver Dollar City	Branson, Missouri	I-70
Amana Colonies	Amana, Iowa	I-80

Preliminary contacts were made to develop some background data to review with the SWRDC and Board. The limited resources and schedule prevented a detailed survey and study of all of the attractions. The attractions selected for study were Wall Drug, Silver Dollar City, Amana Colonies, and Ogallala.

Attraction: Wall Drug

Location:

Wall Drug is a commercial tourist attraction located on Interstate 90 about 70 miles east of Rapid City, South Dakota. It is located at 510 Main Street, Wall, South Dakota 57790. Contact is Esther Johanson (605) 279-2175.

Traffic Data:

The annual ADT on Interstate 90 at Wall is 4,530 with commercial vehicle ADT of 1,150. An ATR station is located east of Wall and the intersection of Highway 14. The 1986 annual ADT is 3,010 vehicles. The peak traffic months were June (4,415 ADT), July (5,246 ADT), and August (5,217 ADT). The low month is January (1,684 ADT). The traffic volumes are slightly higher at Wall because of the traffic from Highway 14.

Attractions:

The attractions at Wall Drug are free ice water, drug store, gift shop, western clothing store, western art museum, apothecary museum, wood carving displays, indian jewelry and artifact display, stuffed animal display, and mechanical bucking animals. The company also operates a large gas station. The attraction is owned and operated by a family corporation.

Visitor Data:

The annual number of visitors is 365,000. During the peak summer travel months the visitors number 15,000 per week. Wall Drug is open 365 days a year. The primary market is the I-90 traveler. The major advertising media is the roadside billboard. The majority of visitors are from the midwest states located on I-90.

Attraction: Ogallala, Nebraska

Location:

Ogallala is located in western Nebraska about 330 miles west of Omaha on Interstate 80. It is located about 200 miles east of Denver, Colorado on Interstate 76 and 80. The management office is located at the Ogallala Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 628, Ogallala, Nebraska 69153.

The attractions at Ogallala are managed through a joint association of the Chamber of Commerce and the Ogallala Visitors' Committee. The marketing and management of the association is supported by a county lodging tax dedicated to tourism promotion and management. The marketing theme for the interstate traffic is "Ogallala - Western Oasis". The attractions are privately owned and operated except for the Lake Ogallala and Lake McConaughy State Recreation Areas. A county historical society operates the historical museum.

The contact is Ken Anderson (308) 284-4066.

Traffic Data:

The annual 1987 ADT on I-80 near Ogallala 9,915. The commercial ADT is 3,025. The peak summer month is July with a 14,691 ADT and the low month is January at 7,006 ADT.

Attractions:

The attractions located at Ogallala are Front Street (Western Frontier Boardwalk Block), Fantasy Land (childrens amusement park), Mansion Hill (restored 1880's home and historical museum), Boot Hill Cemetary (old west cemetary), and Lake McConaughy (the largest lake in Nebraska and Colorado).

The town and surrounding attractions related to the lake have 20 restaurants, 20 motels (600 rooms), and large number of service businesses for the I-80 and the visitors to the lake.

Lake McConaughy is formed by the Kingsley Dam on the North Platte River. It is a large warm water lake with extensive white sand beaches. The lake offers bass and walleye fishing and has a large fleet of sail boats.

Visitor Data:

The Ogallala attractions have 700,000 annual visitors. The Labor Day weekend is the peak visitor period with 70,000 to 80,000 visitors. The major market for the area is Denver, Colorado. The lake is the major visitor interest in Denver. Nearly 70% of the lake visits are from Colorado. Marketing is directed at a 300 mile area of Nebraska and Colorado. Brochures and highway billboards are the major marketing media for the I-80 traffic.

Attraction: Amana Colonies, Amana, Iowa

Location:

The Amana Colonies are located about 15 miles west of Iowa City on Highway 6, 5 miles north of Interstate 80. The attractions include seven villages covering over 26,000 acres. The Amana Society manages the attractions and overall marketing. The Amana Society operates some of the businesses and about 90 are privately owned.

The contact is Rusila Hahn, Amana Convention and Visitors Bureau, Amana Society, Amana, Iowa 52203 (319) 622-3828.

Traffic Data:

The major traffic source and access for the Amana Colonies is I-80. The I-80 1988 annual ADT was 17,957. About 30% of the annual ADT is commercial traffic. The 1988 peak month was August with a 22,088 ADT. The low month was January with a 13,088 ADT.

Attractions:

The Amana Colonies include 9 restaurants, hotel, 2 bed and breakfasts, convention center, wineries, micro-brewery, woolen mill, pottery shop, blacksmith shop, leather shop, petting zoo, several museum, school, and a number of gift shops.

The marketing media used include travel and trade shows in Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City. The marketing media for interstate traffic are brochures distributed at visitor information centers and highway billboards located on I-80, I-35, I-380 and other federal and state highways near the attraction locations.

Visitor Data:

The Amana Colonies attract over 2 million visitors a year. The attraction operates all-year round. The Iowa Visitor's Bureau estimates about 2.9 people per party and expenditures of a $92 per party.

Attraction: Silver Dollar City

Location:

Silver Dollar City is an entertainment/tourist complex located about 50 miles south of I-44 in southwestern Missouri near the town of Branson. Interstate 44 runs from St. Louis to Oklahoma City. Silver Dollar City is in a major recreational playground of the central Midwest, near three large lakes, several state parks and the Mark Twain National Forest. It lies about 45 miles south of Springfield, MO, an urban area of about 135,000.

The contact person was Ray Canady, Marketing Director.
(417)338-8150.

Traffic Data:

Interstate 44, in 1987, had Average Daily Traffic volumes between 15,500 about 25 miles to the east of Springfield, rising to 17,000-19,000 in the urban area of Springfield and falling to about 13,600 at the border with Oklahoma. At U.S. 65, which runs from I-44 south to Branson, the ADT is 15,200 on I-44 and 23,300 on U.S. 65. The volume on U.S. 65 falls to 9530 about halfway to Branson and then to about 5000 near Branson.

The volume of commercial vehicles along I-44 in southwestern Missouri was about 3400-3500 vehicles per day in 1985.

The ADT on U.S. 65 at the Taney County line near Branson in January, 1988 was about 5600. In August, the count was about 12,500.

Attractions:

Silver Dollar City opened about 25 years ago. Marvel Cave, also on the site, already attracted thousands of visitors a year when other facilities began to open. Currently, the development, which is entirely owned by two brothers, consists of: the cave, 46 craftspeople/demonstrations, $15 million in rides and exhibits, a 4,000 seat amphitheater, a 750 seat legitimate theater which hosts 6-7 shows a day, a bandstand, and 7 major restaurants. They reinvest $2-3 million each year in physical facilities and new programming.

Their market area is primarily the Midwest to the north of Branson and they spend over $2.5 million each year in marketing and advertising. Mr. Canady also notes that they benefit from the heavy advertising done by other attractions in the area as well. Even in this high-traffic area, he mentioned that there are a number of failed businesses each year.

Visitor Data:

They have about 1.5 million visitors per season which runs from April 1 through December 15. 1988 was the first year that they offered a Christmas festival in November and December and it was quite successful and will be repeated.

80% of their visitors are repeating a trip made within the last four years. The park is a major destination in the area but is still quite dependent on the tourist traffic generated by the resort area nearby.

The major states of origin of their visitors are (in order of importance): Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska.

They see their three major markets as: 1) "2nd Honeymooners", couples without children, 2) families with children who are looking for a positive "togetherness" experience, and 3) senior citizens who travel mainly to fight off boredom.

SOUTHWEST MINNESOTA TOURISM MARKET DATA

Introduction

The purpose of this section of the report is to identify and summarize those facilities and attractions in the 9-county area which constitute the supply side of the tourism market. Included are: an inventory of accommodations of various types; an inventory of natural resources and active recreation resources that might draw people into the area; and an inventory of historic, cultural, and commercial resources and events.

Also in this section is a discussion of facilities that might compete, now or in the future, with any new attraction that may be built in southwest Minnesota. The facilities include those in neighboring states, other areas in Minnesota and those future developments in southern Minnesota identified during the I-90 Tourism Development Study.

Accommodations Capacity in Southwestern Minnesota

Data Description:

The list of accommodations includes hotels, motels, campgrounds, bed and breakfast establishments, historic inns and resorts. Data items on each accommodation include name, address, county, phone number and number of units or sites.

A complete roster of accommodations, listed both by county and by type, is included in Appendix 3. A summary of types by county is also in the Appendix.

Data Sources:

The data on accommodations was taken from a number of different sources. These include existing computer files of accommodations from both the St. Paul and the Mankato Offices of Tourism. This data comes from surveys which they send out. Additions to this information were made from the Electronic Yellow Pages, brochures, and the map of Southwestern Minnesota produced by Travel Southwest Minnesota.

To get the figures on capacity from those accommodations who did not answer the MOT survey, researchers called each motel, campground, B & B and hotel to check on number of units or sites.

Data Issues and Limitations:

Every attempt was made to cross-check lists; however, there may be some duplicate entries. Also, there were places with a listing in the Electronic Yellow Pages who had no phone listed with the telephone company. These places may have gone out of business or have had their phones disconnected for the winter, indicating that they do not operate year-round. It was also impossible to contact all the campgrounds in the middle of the winter. Therefore, there are listings for some campgrounds that do not include numbers of sites.

Information on number of campsites in county parks could not be obtained from some counties. However, capacities appear to run between 30 and 40 developed sites in most county parks. In addition, some parks allow primitive camping wherever people want to pitch a tent. This kind of capacity was not included.

The estimate for total campsites may be low because some municipal parks which allow camping were not included in this inventory.

Data Summary:

Table 19 below summarizes for the region accommodations by type and capacity.

TABLE 19
Regional Summary of Accommodations by Type

39 Motels (2 could not be reached)	1116 units
4 Bed & Breakfasts	14 units
1 Historic inn	50 units
1 Resort (no current telephone listing)	-----
Subtotal =	1180 units
17 Private campgrounds (5 w/ no current telephone listing) 2 not reachable to get #'s)	551 sites
11 County parks with developed campsites (3 not reachable to get #'s)	192 sites
5 State park campgrounds	342 sites

Subtotal =	1085 sites
TOTAL SITES/UNITS AVAILABLE =	2215

There are several issues to remember when looking at the capacity numbers.

1. While total number of rooms or sites is important, it is also necessary to distinguish between "indoor" and "outdoor" types of facilities which appeal to different segments of the traveling market. This distinction also points out the fact that some units are available year-round while others are not.

2. The geographic distribution of these facilities is obviously important. The bulk of the newer and larger motels tend to be in the larger cities which may or may not be near what might be considered a "tourist attraction." The Pipestone area, for example, draws many tourists but has relatively limited accommodations capacity. This limited capacity is definitely strained during the Hiawatha Pageant.

3. We have no information regarding the quality of these various facilities. The practical number of units, therefore, may be somewhat less than the entire number listed.

4. One aspect of the market which came out during the I-90 Study was the fact that in southwestern Minnesota during the summer season, motels operate at or near full capacity. However, the business drops off dramatically during the winter, leaving most facilities with about a 50% year-round occupancy rate. The addition of more facilities to increase summer capacity without additional activities in the area in the winter would probably not be practical or feasible.

Natural Resource and Recreation Resources Inventory

Data Description:

This inventory includes recreation resources such as wildlife management areas, county and state parks, trails (bike, hike, cross-country ski, snowmobile), canoe and boating rivers, public water access points, ski areas, etc. A complete list of types of resources listed and their codes in the database are listed in Appendix 4. The appendix also contains a printout of resources listed by type and also by county and city.

Data Sources:

This information was compiled from a number of sources including: printed materials from the Department of Natural Resources; the MN State Planning Agency; the Minnesota Office of Tourism; the MN Dept. of Transportation.

Other sources included The Minnesota Outdoor Recreation Atlas; the map of southwestern Minnesota recently published by Travel Southwest Minnesota; information gathered from citizens at the public hearings during the I-90 study sponsored by the MN Office of Tourism; city and regional brochures.

Data Issues and Limitations:

The survey omits municipal parks and facilities unless they are particularly special. Since there was no way to check the quality of these resources and they do vary widely, it was decided not to include them in this inventory.

Since these resources were taken from published documents, only those resources were included that have some sort of official standing. Trails, for example, in county and state parks were not listed separately unless they were listed separately in published materials.

Data Summary:

The following is a regionwide list of the types and numbers of natural and active recreation resources to be found in southwestern Minnesota.

Cultural, Historic and Commercial Resources Inventory

Data Description:

This inventory contains two sections. The first is an inventory of cultural, historic and commercial resources that might have potential to draw tourists to the area and includes such categories as historic sites, museums, special tours, theaters, and shopping opportunities such as antique shops, craftspeople or shops that sell ethnic merchandise.

A complete list of these resources and their codes in the data base are shown in Appendix 5. The appendix also contains lists of the resources by type and also by county and city.

The second section of the inventory is a list of festivals and events that occur throughout the year in the 9-county area. A complete list is also found in Appendix 5.

Data Sources:

This information was compiled from a variety of sources including: printed materials from the MN Historical Society; the MN Office of Tourism, both in St. Paul and in the Southern Minnesota Office in Mankato; brochures from cities, counties, special interest groups and private entrepreneurs; questionnaires distributed at public meetings held in southern Minnesota during the course of the I-90 study; the map of Southwest Minnesota recently published by Travel Southwest Minnesota.

The information on festivals and events was gathered from the MN Office of Tourism's Explorer newspaper and from the map of Southwest Minnesota mentioned above.

Data Issues and Limitations:

Again, listings in the data base, especially commercial attractions, were taken from tourist-oriented publications and, in some cases, advertisements. Therefore, antiques shops and craftspeople who do not advertise or who did not find their way into another brochure were probably not included.

There are a number of historic sites listed. Many of those on the National Register of Historic Places are in private ownership and are not open to the public. Therefore, if one were putting together a tour based on historic sites, one would have to do it carefully so that tourists would understand that many of the sites can be seen from the outside only.

In the list of festivals and events, it is difficult to know for certain if the event is an annual one. It would also be more helpful to know just what the event consists of and whether or not it might be attractive to someone coming in from outside the area.

Data Summary:

The following list is a regionwide summary of the various kinds and numbers of cultural resources to be found in the 9-county southwestern area of Minnesota.

Competing Attractions Within Minnesota

Data Description:

This section contains information from several different sources. Included in Appendix 6 is a list of future developments being planned by various groups along the I-90 corridor. Certainly, many of these projects, should they be completed, would compete for the tourist's attention and dollar with anything that Southwest Minnesota Expo should decide to build.

Data items for each of these planned developments include the name of the development, the location, the county, approximate cost, expected funding source, expected date of completion, the sponsoring group or agency, and one or two contact persons, with name, address and phone numbers.

Information obtained during general background research has no set format.

Data Sources:

The data sources for this section were chiefly two: general background research during the course of this study and of the I-90 study this summer; and a survey of potential tourist-related developments in the 21 southernmost counties of Minnesota.

Data Issues or Limitations:

This can not be relied on as a definitive survey of all potential tourist developments. Since it is based primarily on questionnaires returned by people who attended three public meetings in southern Minnesota, there will inevitably be potential developments that were missed. However, since the meeting announcement went out to hundreds of persons and organizations known to be interested in tourism and economic development activities, it is assumed that those people most interested and involved would have attended the meetings.

Also the list includes a wide range of potential facilities, from those in the "wish" stage to those with funding or under development at the present time. It is unlikely, however, that all of the projects listed will be built and even fewer will be completed in the near future.

Data Summary:

The survey shows 25 planned tourist-related developments in the I-90 corridor. In addition, there is an entry for LaCrosse, WI, which is proposing, and building, a number of tourist facilities over the next several years. This area, on I-90 at Minnesota's doorstep, is proposing a dog track, new visitor's center, a boardwalk along the river, a hotel, dinner theater, museum and retail facilities. This complex could become a new significant competitive nucleus for travelers headed west along I-90 if it is completed as planned.

The Minnesota listings include 1 facility in Brown Co., 1 in Dodge Co., 3 in Faribault, 1 in Fillmore, 3 in Houston, 2 in Jackson Co., 4 in Martin Co., 4 in Nobles Co., 2 in Olmsted, 2 in Pipestone, and 1 each in Rock, Wabasha and Winona counties.

Those planned developments which appear to relate most directly to ideas surrounding the Southwest Minnesota Expo Center are an agricultural interpretive center at I-90 and Highway 169 in Blue Earth; the Agriventure proposal for an agricultural theme park and campground 3 miles south of I-90 near Bricelyn; a Heron Lake Waterfowl Interpretive Center just off I-90 in the Lakefield area; a restaurant with a new retail shop emphasizing Minnesota gifts and antiques at I-90 and U.S. 71. In addition, there are 2 Indian-related planned projects, the Little Feather Indian Center at Pipestone and the Jasper Quarry Visitors Center at Jasper.

Conclusions:

Any proposed new tourist-related developments in southern Minnesota, and especially southwestern Minnesota, face competition from a number of sources and these sources differ to some extent on the segment of the market under discussion.

For the Twin Cities market, which is a significant one for southwest Minnesota, the competition lies mainly in the concept of "Up North." Northern Minnesota is the traditional "getaway" for many Twin Cities residents, for either weekends or longer stays. This is true both for people who own second homes or for those who rent vacation facilities. It is also clear from the I-90 Visitor Survey that the Mississippi Valley/Historic Bluff Country of southeastern Minnesota is becoming increasingly popular as a weekend getaway for Twin Cities residents. The appealing landscape, the historic river towns and the presence of more and more inns and bed & bedfasts reinforce this presence.

Apparently for the Iowa market, the northern Minnesota vacation is also the primary competition. For people who travel to get a "change in the scenery", south-central and southwestern Minnesota look and feel a lot like Iowa.

For those travellers driving across I-90, the main competition will be those attractions and facilities in Wisconsin and South Dakota. However, facilities already in place in southern Minnesota will afford competition to any new developments along the corridor. Several agriculturally-related developments already exist including Farmamerica, Heritage Acres in Fairmont, various collections of tractors, threshing machines and other agricultural equipment as well as several pioneer villages in various parts of southern Minnesota.

In addition, there is potential competition on agricultural subjects from AgriVenture and the Agricultural Interpretive Center planned for Blue Earth.

Another aspect of in-state competition cannot be overlooked and that is competition, not for markets but for funding. Any of these proposed projects in southern Minnesota who are looking for state funding are in direct competition with Southwest Expo. In fact, the competition for funding is statewide.

Competing Attractions in Neighboring States

Data Description:

Major attractions in the neighboring states of Iowa, Wisconsin and South Dakota that might provide competition for tourism-related activities in southern Minnesota were inventoried during the I-90 Tourism Development Study in the summer of 1988. Data items include the state, the name of the attraction, the city nearest where it is located and a brief description if the name wasn't self-evident.

Listings included only those attractions on or near I-90 in South Dakota and Wisconsin. In Iowa, attractions were listed which were either in the top two tiers of counties or were easily accessible to I-35 from the Minnesota border to Des Moines.

A complete listing by state is included in Appendix 7.

Data Sources:

The primary data sources were the state Depts. of Tourism in Iowa, South Dakota and Wisconsin and individual brochures of attractions provided by those states' Travel Information Centers nearest the border of Minnesota.

Data Issues or Limitations:

Information was gathered only from published sources. Therefore, some attractions may have been missed. However, the intent was to inventory only MAJOR competing attractions and in addition to see what kinds of attractions were already available along I-90 to prevent duplication by groups in Minnesota planning new tourism-related developments.

In Iowa, there were very few MAJOR attractions in the northern part of the state except for the area around Lake Okoboji. We therefore listed some of the minor attractions, such as bed & breakfast establishments which might provide some competition for such facilities in southern Minnesota.

Data Summary:

There are a number of major attractions that will compete for the interest of the traveler headed straight through Minnesota on I-90. There are major concentrations of tourist-related attractions in Wisconsin at the Dells, at Madison and a growing number at LaCrosse which has recently announced plans for the development of a number of tourist-related facilities.

In South Dakota, major concentrations appear around Rapid City as well as at other locations on or easily accessible to

I-90. In addition, Sioux Falls has several destination locations as well as good tourism infrastructure facilities such as motels and restaurants. This area must be regarded as a major competitor to any tourism-related development in far southwestern Minnesota.

As mentioned above, Iowa has few major competitive attractions. The Lake Okoboji area is a major tourist center but careful planning could turn that area into a potential market rather than a serious competitor. Successful advertising and marketing of day trips into southern Minnesota, emphasizing clusters of interesting sites or antique shops, for example, might draw Okoboji tourists across the state line.

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

Southwest Minnesota Traffic and Recreational Travel:

1. The highway segments with the highest traffic volume and recreational travel are I-90 from Worthington to the South Dakota border and TH 60 from Worthington to Windom.
2. The most significant tourism market areas within a one-day drive from Southwest Minnesota are Minneapolis and St. Paul, Milwaukee, Madison, Des Moines, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Sioux Falls, and Rapid City.

Southwest Minnesota Visitor Characteristics:

3. The major sources of visitors to Southwest Minnesota are Minnesotans and the residents of Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, and Illinois.
4. The majority of visitors to Southwest Minnesota are traveling to areas either east or west of Minnesota.
5. Southwest Minnesota has a high proportion of visitors on vacations exceeding one week, who spend one night in the area, and use area overnight accommodations.
6. The visitors to Southwest Minnesota are likely to be well educated, be in the age group from 36 to 65, have a higher than average income, and have white-collar occupations.
7. The visitors to Southwest Minnesota are satisfied with their visit and will likely return again. The major interest of the area visitor is sightseeing.

Economic Activity and Tourism in Southwest Minnesota:

8. The major tourism business activities in Southwest Minnesota are eating and drinking places and lodging and hotels. The employment and gross sales in these businesses are seasonal and the winter quarter activity is much lower than the summer and fall quarters.
9. Southwest Minnesota has a significant number of successful companies in the manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, and service areas. These companies provide a significant amount of employment and wages to the regional economy.

Midwest Tourist Attractions in Comparable Locations:

10. The midwest tourist attractions in comparable locations examined in this study were located on interstate highways with a peak month ADT exceeding 5,000 vehicles. These attractions offered a variety of activities; were managed by an single association or corporation; conducted extensive marketing programs with brochures and highway billboards; and they participated in travel and trade shows in their market areas.

Southwest Minnesota Tourism Market Data:

11. There are about 2,200 motel and campsites available in the nine-county area. Half are in motels and inns and the remainder are campsites. In summer the motels operate at or near capacity. Winter occupancy is quite low and this fact makes it difficult economically to build additional facilities to meet any increased summer demand.
12. The area has a number of active recreation resources but few have sufficient pull to bring in many tourists from outside the area, and except for cross country skiing and snowmobiling, these are mainly summer attractions with some hunting in the fall.
13. The area has a number of modest cultural attractions but, except for the Pipestone National Monument, few in themselves have the power to draw tourists from outside the area. However, if some attractions were packaged and marketed as a group, they might persuade visitors in the area to stay and explore the area further.
14. The major areas of competition within Minnesota are northern Minnesota and attractions in other parts of southern Minnesota. In addition, proposed new tourism developments in the I-90 corridor will compete for both visitors and funding.
15. The major areas of competition in other states are destination-type attractions along I-90 in Wisconsin and South Dakota. Iowa provides some competition but also offers some potential markets.

Socio-Economic Information

1/25/89

Highlights from the I-90 Tourist Survey that are of interest to SW Minnesota:

1. Of the 600 questionnaires returned, 369 (61.5%) were picked up in SW Minnesota. These locations were Pipestone National Monument (192), Beaver Creek TIC (59), Lake Shetek State Park (16), motels in Jackson (64) and Worthington (33), and a Windom restaurant (5). The total sample, therefore, is heavily weighted toward southwestern Minnesota.

2. In the study as a whole,

(a) 39% reported that they had a final destination somewhere in Minnesota and 21% reported a destination in the 21 counties in southern Minnesota. About 8.5% were going to Pipestone as their primary destination.

(b) 31% said they had final destinations in areas west of Minnesota (SD- 15.4%; Mountain region- 10.8%; Pacific region-5.4%)

(c) 4.6% were headed for Wisconsin and 2.7% for Iowa.

(d) respondents reported visiting or stopping in the following towns:

Winona	2.7%
Rochester	3.0
