Minnesota's Forfeiture Laws

Part 1 of this information brief summarizes the general forfeiture law applicable to most felony offenses. Part 2 describes several special forfeiture laws that apply to particular criminal offenses such as DWI violations, game and fish violations, gambling crimes, and racketeering crimes. Part 2 does not include any discussion of property forfeiture due to tax law violations. Part 3 briefly discusses the circumstances under which a court may rule that a particular forfeiture violates the U.S. Constitution's prohibition against "excessive fines" or "double jeopardy."

1. General Forfeiture Law

Minn. Stat. §§ 609.531 to 609.5319

Judicial Forfeiture; Designated Offenses

Minnesota law permits a court to order the forfeiture of certain property associated with the commission of a “designated offense.”

The definition of “designated offense” includes most serious felonies against persons, a number of property felonies, and felony or gross misdemeanor violations of the crime of unauthorized computer access. It also includes the gross misdemeanor crime of carrying a rifle or shotgun in a public place and the crimes of promoting, soliciting, or engaging in prostitution, regardless of the penalty prescribed for the violation. Minn. Stat. § 609.531, subd. 1. The term does not include controlled substance offenses, however. These offenses are governed by the special forfeiture provisions described in the next section. (See the appendix for a complete list of the crimes included within the definition of “designated offense.”)

Property is subject to forfeiture if it was either (1) personal property used or intended for use to commit or facilitate the commission of a designated offense; or (2) real or personal property representing the proceeds of a designated offense. Additionally, all contraband property is subject to forfeiture as is any weapon used or possessed in furtherance of any criminal code violation, controlled substance offense, violation of chapter 624, or violation of a domestic abuse order for protection. Minn. Stat. §§ 609.5312; 609.5316, subd. 3.

Property associated with a designated offense (other than weapons and contraband) may be forfeited by judicial order, following a civil in rem proceeding. Minn. Stat. § 609.5313. The government has the burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that the property is subject to forfeiture. The fact that a designated offense was committed may be established only by proof of a criminal conviction. Minn. Stat. §§ 609.531, subd. 6a. The law also provides certain defenses for innocent common carriers, innocent owners, and innocent secured parties. “Innocent” in this context means that the party neither knew of, consented to, or was involved in the act or omission giving rise to the forfeiture. The existence of a security interest must be established by clear and convincing evidence. Minn. Stat. §§ 609.5312; 609.5319.

Judicial Forfeiture; Controlled Substance Offenses

Minnesota law also provides for judicial forfeiture of property associated with controlled substance (i.e., illegal drug) offenses.

This procedure is identical to the judicial forfeiture procedure for designated offenses with the following exceptions:

- ▶ the fact that a controlled substance offense was committed must be established by clear and convincing evidence; however, the government does not need the fact of a criminal conviction to satisfy this evidentiary burden;
- ▶ a “conveyance device” (i.e., a motor vehicle) used to commit the controlled substance offense is forfeitable only if the retail value of the drugs is $25 or more; and
- ▶ real property associated with the controlled substance offense is forfeitable not only when it represents the proceeds of the offense but also when it is used in the commission of the offense; however, forfeiture of such property in the second instance is permitted only if the retail value of the controlled substance is $1,000 or more.

Minn. Stat. § 609.5311.

Seizure of Property in Advance of Forfeiture

Minnesota law permits a law enforcement agency to seize forfeitable property in advance of its forfeiture.

The seizure may be made under process issued by any court having jurisdiction over the property. The law also authorizes seizure without process under the following circumstances:

- ▶ the seizure is incident to a lawful arrest or a lawful search;
- ▶ the property has been the subject of a prior judgment in favor of the state in a criminal injunctive or forfeiture proceeding; or
- ▶ the law enforcement agency has probable cause to believe that the delay required to obtain court process would result in the property's removal or destruction and that the property is either dangerous to health or safety or was used or is intended to be used to commit a felony.

Minn. Stat. § 609.531, subd. 4.

The owner of the seized property may, subject to the law enforcement agency's approval, give security or post a bond in an amount equal to the property's retail value and, thereby, regain possession of the property. If this is done, the forfeiture action proceeds against the security as if it were the seized property. Alternatively, if the seized property is a motor vehicle, the owner may regain possession of the vehicle pending determination of the forfeiture action by surrendering the vehicle's certificate of title to the law enforcement agency. The agency must notify the Department of Public Safety and any secured party noted on the certificate that this has occurred and must notify them if and when the certificate of title is returned to the owner. Minn. Stat. § 609.531, subd. 5a.

Seizures of motor vehicles used to commit certain prostitution crimes or used to flee from a pursuing peace officer are governed by more restrictive provisions. These provisions apply to the seizure of vehicles from persons alleged: (1) to have engaged in or solicited another to engage in prostitution; or (2) to have fled from a peace officer in a manner that endangered life or property. If such a vehicle is seized before a judicial forfeiture order has been issued, a hearing must be held before a judge or referee within 96 hours. Notice of the hearing must be given to the registered owner within 48 hours of the seizure.<sup>1</sup> The prosecutor must certify to the court before the hearing that he or she has filed or intends to file charges against the alleged violator. After the hearing, the court must order the motor vehicle returned to the owner if the prosecutor fails to certify that charges have been filed or will be filed in the case, the owner has demonstrated that he or she has a defense to the forfeiture, or the court has determined that seizure of the vehicle would create an undue hardship for members of the owner's family. If a seized vehicle ultimately is not forfeited, neither the owner nor the alleged violator is responsible for seizure and storage costs. Minn. Stat. § 609.5312, subds. 3 and 4.

Administrative Forfeiture; Controlled Substance Offenses

Minnesota law contains a separate, nonjudicial procedure for forfeiting certain property seized in connection with a controlled substance offense.

This administrative forfeiture law creates a presumption that the following property is subject to forfeiture:

- ▶ all money, precious metals, and precious stones found in proximity to controlled substances, forfeitable drug manufacturing or distribution equipment, and forfeitable records of drug manufacture or distribution;
- ▶ conveyance devices containing controlled substances with a retail value of $100 or more if possession or sale of the drugs would be a felony-level controlled substance crime; and

- ▶ all firearms, ammunition, and firearms accessories found: (1) in a conveyance device used or intended for use to commit a felony drug offense; (2) on or in proximity to a person from whom a felony-level amount of drugs was seized; or (3) on the premises where drugs were seized and in proximity to the drugs, if the possession or sale of the drugs would be a felony offense.

The law enforcement agency is permitted to seize the property immediately and send a notice to all persons known to have an ownership, possessory, or security interest in the property. The notice must state that the property will be forfeited unless the property claimant files a demand within 60 days for a judicial forfeiture hearing. If the demand is filed, the judicial forfeiture procedures must be followed. If no demand for judicial forfeiture is filed, the property is forfeited. Minn. Stat. § 609.5314.

Administrative Forfeiture; Drive-by Shooting Offenses

Minnesota law also contains a separate, nonjudicial procedure for forfeiting motor vehicles used to commit a “drive-by shooting” offense.

The “drive-by shooting” offense imposes felony penalties on any person who recklessly discharges a firearm at or toward a person, vehicle, or building while in or having just exited from a motor vehicle. Minn. Stat. § 609.66, subd. 1e. A motor vehicle used to commit the drive-by shooting offense is subject to administrative forfeiture if the prosecutor establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the motor vehicle was used to commit the crime. The prosecutor does not need the fact of a criminal conviction to meet this burden; however, if the vehicle owner was convicted of a drive-by shooting offense, that fact creates a presumption that the vehicle was used in the violation. Minn. Stat. § 609.5318.

As is true of other types of administrative forfeitures, this law permits the immediate seizure of the property and, unless the owner demands a judicial forfeiture proceeding, the forfeiture of the vehicle without any further hearings. However, this law differs from other administrative forfeiture laws in the following ways:

- ▶ notice of a vehicle seizure must be given within seven days of the seizure;
- ▶ if criminal charges are filed in connection with the drive-by shooting incident, the 60-day period during which the owner may demand a judicial forfeiture proceeding begins to run when the charges are filed instead of when the seizure notice is sent; and
- ▶ the “innocent owner” defense does not apply if the owner was grossly negligent in allowing the vehicle to be used by another.

Summary Forfeitures

Minnesota law permits law enforcement agencies to summarily forfeit certain property without going through any judicial or administrative proceedings.

The types of property included in this provision are:

- ▶ contraband property; i.e., property which is illegal to possess under Minnesota law. This property must either be destroyed by the agency or used for law enforcement purposes;
- ▶ police radios used to commit or attempt to commit a felony or to flee a peace officer in a motor vehicle;
- ▶ schedule I controlled substances that are illegally sold or possessed, or that are seized by peace officers and of unknown ownership; and species of plants from which controlled substances in schedules I and II may be derived that are growing wild, of unknown ownership, or lack appropriate registration;
- ▶ weapons used or possessed in furtherance of a criminal code violation, a controlled substance crime, a violation of chapter 624, or a violation of a domestic abuse order for protection, upon the owner's or possessor's conviction for one of these crimes;
- ▶ firearms used in any way during the commission of a domestic assault;
- ▶ bullet-resistant vests worn or possessed during the commission or attempted commission of a criminal code violation or controlled substance crime, upon the owner's or possessor's conviction for one of these crimes; and
- ▶ telephone cloning paraphernalia (materials capable of creating a cloned cellular telephone) used to commit a cellular telephone counterfeiting crime.

The law also provides that weapons, bullet-resistant vests, and telephone cloning paraphernalia used in a crime may, instead, be judicially forfeited without proof of a conviction for the underlying crime. Minn. Stat. § 609.5316; § 609.856, subd. 2.

Forfeiture Sales; Distribution of Forfeiture Proceeds

Minnesota law provides various formulas for the disposition of forfeited property.

The property may be sold if it is not otherwise required by law to be destroyed and is not harmful to the public; it may be kept for official use by the law enforcement and prosecuting agencies; or it may be forwarded to the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. If the forfeited property is a firearm, the law enforcement agency has the following options:

- ▶ if the firearm is an antique, the agency may sell it at a public sale;
- ▶ if the firearm is an assault weapon, the agency must either destroy it or keep it for official use; or
- ▶ if the firearm is neither of the foregoing, the agency may destroy the firearm, keep it for official use, or sell it to a federally licensed firearms dealer.

The law also provides that if the Hennepin or Ramsey county board disapproves of the sale of forfeited firearms, the local sheriff must comply with that directive.

If property representing proceeds of a crime is sold, the proceeds must be applied first, to satisfy valid liens and forfeiture sale expenses and second, to pay court-ordered restitution. If other forfeited property is sold, the proceeds also must be used first to satisfy valid liens and forfeiture sale expenses. The remaining sale proceeds from both types of property are distributed according to the following formula:

- ▶ 70 percent to the law enforcement agency;
- ▶ 20 percent to the prosecuting agency; and
- ▶ 10 percent to the state general fund.

A special formula applies to the distribution of proceeds from the sale of vehicles forfeited for prostitution violations. In these cases, proceeds are distributed as follows:

- ▶ 40 percent to the law enforcement agency;
- ▶ 20 percent to the prosecuting agency; and
- ▶ 40 percent to the city treasury for distribution to neighborhood crime prevention programs.

Each law enforcement agency must give a written record of each forfeiture incident to the state auditor. The report must be made monthly and include the amount forfeited, the date of the forfeiture, and a brief description of the circumstances involved. The report also must include the number, make, model, and serial number of firearms seized by the agency. The state auditor must, in turn, report annually to the legislature on the nature and extent of forfeitures during the preceding year. Minn. Stat. § 609.5315.

Residential Rental Property; Drug Seizures

A special forfeiture procedure applies to residential rental property on which contraband or a controlled substance with a retail value of $100 or more is seized pursuant to a lawful search or arrest.

Under these circumstances, the county attorney must notify the landlord of the seizure. The landlord must then either initiate eviction proceedings against the tenant on whose premises the property was seized or assign the eviction right to the county attorney. If the landlord does neither and there is a second occurrence involving the same tenant within one year, the rental property may be judicially forfeited. However, the property may be forfeited only if the value of the controlled substances is $1,000 or more, or there have been two previous seizures of drugs valued at $100 or more involving the same tenant. Minn. Stat. § 609.5317.

2. Specific Forfeiture Laws

Forfeiture of Motor Vehicles and Recreational Vehicles Used to Commit Impaired Driving Offenses

Minnesota's impaired driving law provides a special forfeiture procedure applicable to motor vehicles and recreational vehicles (such as snowmobiles, all-terrain vehicles, and motorboats) used to commit certain alcohol-related traffic offenses.

This law<sup>2</sup> authorizes the forfeiture of a motor vehicle or recreational vehicle used to commit one of the following:

- ▶ a first-degree DWI offense. This category of offense includes DWI offenses that involve two or more "aggravating factors." "Aggravating factor" means: (1) having a prior impaired driving conviction or license revocation in the past ten years; (2) having an alcohol concentration of 0.20 or more at the time of the offense; or (3) having a passenger under the age of 16 in the vehicle at the time of the offense.
- ▶ a DWI offense committed by a person whose driver's license has been canceled as "inimical to public safety"; or

<sup>2</sup> This information brief describes the DWI laws as amended by the 2000 Legislature. These changes are effective January 1, 2001, and modify the scope and application of the DWI forfeiture law. For a description of the DWI forfeiture law's scope prior to January 1, 2001, see the 1999 revision of this information brief.

- ▶ a DWI offense committed by a person whose driver's license has been limited by the Commissioner of Public Safety to require that the person abstain from the use of alcohol or drugs.

A person's vehicle also may be forfeited under this law based on a license revocation instead of a criminal conviction, if it is preceded by two or more prior impaired driving convictions or license revocations within the previous ten years.

A motor vehicle may be forfeited under this law only if the driver is convicted of the designated offense on which the forfeiture is based, fails to appear in court on the impaired driving charge, or the driver's conduct results in a license revocation. If the owner was not the violator, the vehicle is subject to forfeiture only if the owner knew or should have known of the unlawful use or intended use. In addition, vehicles that are subject to a security interest or a long-term lease agreement are subject to those interests unless the secured party or lessor had knowledge of or consented to the action on which the forfeiture is based and did not take reasonable steps to terminate use of the vehicle by the offender.

The forfeiture may be effected either through administrative forfeiture or judicial action. These administrative and judicial processes are essentially the same as those provided under the general forfeiture law described in Part 1. The vehicle must be returned to the owner immediately if the person charged with committing the designated offense appears in court and is not convicted of the offense, the license revocation is rescinded, or the vehicle owner is found not to have been privy to the offense.

If a vehicle is forfeited under this section, the vehicle must either be sold or kept by the local law enforcement agency for official use. If the proceeds do not equal or exceed an outstanding loan balance on the vehicle, the agency must remit all sale proceeds (minus storage and sale expenses) to the secured party.<sup>3</sup> If a motor vehicle other than a recreational vehicle is sold, the net proceeds must be forwarded to the treasury of the political subdivision that employs the law enforcement agency for use in DWI-related enforcement, training, and education activities. If the law enforcement agency is a state agency, the net proceeds must be forwarded to the state general fund. If a recreational vehicle is sold, the proceeds must be forwarded to the appropriate recreation or natural resources account in the state treasury, where one exists. If no special account exists, the proceeds must be forwarded to the state general fund. Minn. Stat. § 169A.63.

<sup>3</sup> A secured party may elect to foreclose on the loan and sell the vehicle at its own foreclosure sale. If so, that sale process replaces the forfeiture sale process. The secured party is subject to certain limits and must reimburse the law enforcement agency for its storage expenses.

Forfeiture of Motor Vehicles and Boats Used to Commit Game and Fish Offenses

Minnesota law authorizes conservation officers to seize and forfeit any property, motor vehicle, or boat used to commit certain violations of the game and fish laws.

For example, a conservation officer has the power at any reasonable time to inspect premises and motor vehicles requiring a license under the game and fish laws. The officer must seize unlawfully possessed firearms and must seize any items used to illegally take game if no owner of the items can be identified. These items are subject to an administrative forfeiture process, not a judicial one. The officer also may confiscate any wild animals, wild rice, prohibited harmful exotic species, or other aquatic vegetation that have been unlawfully taken or possessed as well as any equipment having a value under $1,000 that was used to commit the violation. Furthermore, conservation officers may seize and seek judicial forfeiture of any:

- ▶ equipment having a value of $1,000 or more that is used to take or transport wild animals, wild rice, or other aquatic vegetation unlawfully;
- ▶ motor vehicle used illegally to shine wild animals, to transport big game or fur-bearing animals that have been illegally taken or purchased, or to transport minnows illegally; and
- ▶ boat or motor used to net fish illegally on Lake of the Woods, Rainy Lake, Lake Superior, Namakan Lake, or Sand Point Lake.

The law outlines a confiscation and judicial forfeiture process applicable to persons convicted of these game and fish law violations. This process is similar to that contained in the general forfeiture law described in Part 1 for “designated offense” forfeitures, except that proceeds from the sale of forfeited motor vehicles, boats, and motors are credited to the game and fish fund in the state treasury. Minn. Stat. §§ 97A.215 to 97A.225.

Forfeiture of Gambling Devices, Prizes, and Proceeds

A separate forfeiture law applies to persons convicted of various gambling offenses.

According to this law, the following property is subject to forfeiture:

- ▶ illegal gambling devices;
- ▶ money and property used or intended for use as payment to participate in gambling or a prize or receipt for gambling;
- ▶ books, records, and research products used or intended for use in gambling; and
- ▶ property used or intended to be used to illegally influence the outcome of a horse race.

The law outlines a judicial forfeiture process applicable to persons convicted of gambling violations. This process is similar to that contained in the general forfeiture law described in Part 1 for “designated offense” forfeitures, except that proceeds from the sale of forfeited property are shared equally by the law enforcement and prosecuting agencies. Minn. Stat. § 609.762.

Forfeiture of Property Associated with Racketeering Crimes

Minnesota law provides a unique criminal forfeiture procedure applicable to persons convicted of a “racketeering” crime.

A person is guilty of a racketeering crime if the person is employed by or associated with an enterprise and intentionally conducts or participates in the affairs of the enterprise by participating in a pattern of criminal activity. The law defines “pattern of criminal activity” to encompass only certain serious crimes and to require that at least three of these criminal acts must have occurred within the ten years preceding the racketeering prosecution. Minn. Stat. §§ 609.902 and 609.903.

When a person is convicted of racketeering, the court is authorized to order the forfeiture of any real or personal property used in, intended for use in, derived from, or realized through the racketeering conduct. This forfeiture procedure differs from the other forfeiture procedures found in Minnesota law because it is not a separate civil in rem proceeding; rather it is an in personam criminal forfeiture penalty applied by the court in addition or as an alternative to the other criminal sanctions available, such as fines and imprisonment.<sup>4</sup> Once property has been ordered forfeited by the court, the prosecutor may dispose of the property or forfeiture sale proceeds in a manner similar to that provided for “designated offense” forfeitures under the general forfeiture law. Minn. Stat. § 609.905.

3. Major Constitutional Issues

Does a particular forfeiture violate the U.S. Constitution’s prohibition against excessive fines?

Three significant rulings have been issued by the U.S. Supreme Court concerning whether a particular property forfeiture violates the Eighth Amendment’s prohibition against “excessive fines” when its value is disproportionate to the seriousness of criminal activity on which it is based.

<sup>4</sup> A civil in rem forfeiture proceeding is a proceeding directed against “guilty property” instead of against a criminal offender. Technically speaking, it is separate from and independent of any criminal prosecution. In contrast, an in personam forfeiture penalty results from a criminal conviction and is imposed directly on an individual offender as punishment for criminal wrongdoing.

In 1993, the Court ruled that there are constitutional limits on the value of property that may be subject to either criminal in personam or civil in rem forfeiture due to its having been used to commit or facilitate the commission of a crime. Regardless of whether the forfeiture provision is characterized as a criminal penalty (like the racketeering forfeiture provision) or as a civil remedial remedy (like the general forfeiture law), its purpose in both contexts is to serve as a penalty for criminal behavior and, as such, it is subject to the limitations imposed by the “Excessive Fines Clause” of the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The Court, therefore, remanded both cases to the courts of appeal from which they came, with instructions to determine whether the forfeitures in the two cases were unconstitutionally excessive in violation of the Eighth Amendment. Austin v. United States, 509 U.S. 602 (1993); Alexander v. United States, 509 U.S. 544 (1993).

In the Austin and Alexander cases, the Court declined to articulate an analytical, constitutional test for determining whether a particular fine or forfeiture is excessive, leaving that task to the lower courts. In a concurring opinion, Justice Scalia indicated some sympathy for a more relaxed “excessiveness” inquiry in civil forfeiture cases than in criminal ones; but the majority opinion declined to endorse his analysis or otherwise influence the future decisions of the lower courts on this matter.

In 1998, the Court ruled for the first time that the government’s forfeiture of a particular sum of money in an in personam forfeiture proceeding did, in fact, violate the Excessive Fines Clause of the Eighth Amendment.

In this case, the government forfeited $356,144 from the defendant because he had unlawfully failed to report to customs officials that he was carrying the money at the time he boarded an international flight. The Court ruled, in a 5-4 decision, that because the defendant’s offense was “solely a reporting offense” and involved minimal culpability or harm, the forfeiture of this large sum of currency was unconstitutional because it was “grossly disproportional” to the gravity of the offense. This “grossly disproportional” standard, the Court stated, is the proper one to use in deciding excessive fine inquiries under the Eighth Amendment because it gives adequate deference to legislative judgments concerning the appropriate level of punishment, and it recognizes the “inherent imprecision” of any judicial determination regarding the gravity of particular criminal offenses. United States v. Bajakajian, 524 U.S. 321, 118 S. Ct. 2028 (1998).

Minnesota’s appellate courts have relied on two different tests to resolve Eighth Amendment challenges to civil forfeitures: a “significant role” test and a “grossly disproportional” test.

In City of Worthington v. One 1988 Chevrolet Beretta, 516 N.W.2d 581 (Minn. App. 1994), the respondent challenged the forfeiture of his automobile on Eighth Amendment grounds, arguing that the value of the automobile far exceeded the value of the property he was convicted of stealing. However, the Minnesota Court of Appeals rejected this argument and ruled that if the use of the property played a significant role in the commission of the offense, the property may be forfeited no matter what its value. In taking this approach, the court rejected the proportionality analysis used in several other jurisdictions to determine whether a particular forfeiture constitutes an excessive fine. Accord, Treit v. Connecticut Valley Arms Black Powder .58 Cal. Rifle, C4-98-392 (unpublished opinion, Minn. App., Oct. 20, 1998) (using “significant role” analysis to support validity of forfeiture).

More recently, in Lukkason v. 1993 Chevrolet Extended Cab Pickup, 590 N.W.2d 803 (Minn. App. 1999), review denied May 18, 1999, the Minnesota Court of Appeals relied on the “grossly disproportionate” standard used by the U.S. Supreme Court in the Bajakajian case to uphold a civil forfeiture of a vehicle under the DWI law. Even though the U.S. Supreme Court has not clearly mandated the use of the Bajakajian standard to civil in rem forfeitures, the Court of Appeals ruled that the forfeiture in Lukkason survived scrutiny under that standard and, therefore, was lawful. Accord, Hawes v. 1997 Jeep Wrangler, 602 N.W.2d 874 (Minn. App. 1999); Muhar v. One 1997 Harley-Davidson Motorcycle, C6-99-1053 (unpublished opinion, Minn. App., December 21, 1999).

Does a particular forfeiture violate the U.S. Constitution’s prohibition against double jeopardy?

A significant ruling was issued by the U.S. Supreme Court in June 1996, concerning whether the Fifth Amendment’s prohibition against “double jeopardy” is violated when the government seeks to convict an individual for engaging in criminal activity and, separately, to forfeit property resulting from or used in that same criminal activity.

The Court ruled that the Fifth Amendment’s Double Jeopardy Clause is not violated when the government both punishes a defendant for a criminal offense and forfeits the defendant’s property for that same offense in a separate civil proceeding. In contrast to its analysis under the Eighth Amendment’s excessive fines clause, the Court ruled that the forfeiture of property in a civil in rem proceeding does not constitute “punishment” for purposes of the Double Jeopardy Clause.

The Court used a two-pronged test in reaching this result. First, it considered whether the legislature intended the forfeiture proceedings to be criminal or civil. The Court found that, in this case, Congress clearly intended the proceedings to be civil because it targeted the property itself rather than the property owner as the “guilty party,” and it provided distinctly civil procedures for conducting the proceedings. Second, the Court considered whether the forfeiture proceedings were so punitive in form or effect as to clearly render them criminal, despite Congress’ intent to the contrary. It found that, while the proceedings had certain punitive aspects, they also served important nonpunitive goals, such as deterring the illegal use of property and ensuring that no one profits from engaging in criminal activity. For these reasons, the Court ruled that civil in rem proceedings to forfeit either the proceeds of criminal activity or property used to commit criminal acts are neither punishment nor criminal for purposes of the Double Jeopardy Clause. United States v. Ursery, 116 U.S. 2135 (1996).

The U.S. Supreme Court’s ruling in Ursery is consistent with recent forfeiture decisions of the Minnesota Court of Appeals concerning the double jeopardy issue.

In State v. Rosenfeld, 540 N.W.2d 915 (Minn. App. 1995), decided six months before Ursery, the Minnesota Court of Appeals upheld the authority of the state to prosecute the defendant for a drug crime after having civilly forfeited property representing instrumentalities and proceeds of the crime. The court ruled that the Double Jeopardy Clauses of neither the federal nor the state constitutions were violated by these actions because the forfeiture was rationally related to such remedial, nonpunitive goals as eliminating the means for engaging in future drug trafficking and reducing the financial incentive for drug dealing.

However, the court of appeals also ruled that when the state seeks to forfeit property that is merely “associated” with a crime, the forfeiture is subjected to closer scrutiny. To escape the limitations of the Double Jeopardy Clause, it must be shown either that the property being subjected to forfeiture was “proceeds” or “instrumentalities” of the crime, or that the forfeiture served some other remedial goal such as compensating the government for its costs in connection with the property owner’s criminal activity. See Freeman v. Residence Located at 1215 East 21st St., 552 N.W.2d 275 (Minn. App. 1996).

Similarly, in City of New Hope v. 1986 Mazda 626, 546 N.W.2d 300 (Minn. App. 1996), the Court of Appeals upheld the constitutionality of a motor vehicle forfeiture under the DWI forfeiture law. The court ruled that civil forfeiture of a motor vehicle used by a repeat DWI offender to commit a DWI offense is rationally related to the statute’s remedial purpose of protecting public safety and, therefore, is not punishment for purposes of the Double Jeopardy Clauses of either the federal or state constitutions. Accord, City of Pine Springs v. One 1992 Harley Davidson, 555 N.W.2d 749 (Minn. App. 1996); see also Johnson v. 1996 GMC Sierra, 606 N.W.2d 455 (Minn. App. 2000), reviewed denied April 18, 2000; Hawes v. 1997 Jeep Wrangler, 602 N.W.2d 874 (Minn. App. 1999); and Lukkason v. 1993 Chevrolet Extended Cab Pickup, 590 N.W.2d 803 (Minn. App. 1999), review denied May 18, 1999.

Definition of “Designated Offense” in the General Forfeiture Law (Minn. Stat. § 609.531, subd. 1)

For dangerous weapons used or possessed in furtherance of a crime, “designated offense” includes every offense in chapter 609 (the Criminal Code), chapter 152 (controlled substance provisions), and chapter 624 (firearms and other criminal provisions).

For all other purposes, “designated offense” includes:

(1) felony violations of or felony-level attempts or conspiracies to violate the following laws:
