LOCAL GOVERNMENT LOBBYING

Program Evaluation Division

The Program Evaluation Division was established by the Legislature in 1975 as a center for management and policy research within the Office of the Legislative Auditor. The division's mission, as set forth in statute, is to determine the degree to which activities and programs entered into or funded by the state are accomplishing their goals and objectives and utilizing resources efficiently. Reports published by the division describe state programs, analyze management problems, evaluate outcomes, and recommend alternative means of reaching program goals. A list of past reports appears at the end of this document.

Topics for study are approved by the Legislative Audit Commission (LAC), a 16-member bipartisan oversight committee. The division's reports, however, are solely the responsibility of the Legislative Auditor and his staff. Findings, conclusions, and recommendations do not necessarily reflect the views of the LAC or any of its members.

The Office of the Legislative Auditor also includes a Financial Audit Division, which is responsible for auditing state financial activities.

Senator John Brandl, Chair
Legislative Audit Commission

Dear Senator Brandl:

This document contains the additional data on local government lobbying requested by Legislative Audit Commission members. Included is information on: (1) all lobbying and lobbying-related contracts, (2) per capita lobbying expenditures and per capita contract expenditures by cities and counties, and (3) per student lobbying expenditures and per student contract expenditures by school districts.

We present spending data for all counties and for selected cities and school districts. The report covers the largest cities and school districts, as well as those belonging to higher spending splinter groups or hiring staff or contract lobbyists.

The data show that one firm has 25 percent of the contract lobbying business provided by local governments and their associations. The top four firms account for more than half of total contract spending.

Among cities, spending per capita is generally higher outstate due to the higher per capita cost of membership in the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities. Among counties, however, spending per capita is highest among Twin Cities metropolitan area counties. These counties are more likely to have contract or staff lobbyists and belong to splinter groups than outstate counties. Lobbying expenditures per student tend to be slightly higher in metropolitan area districts than outstate. Unlike the pattern for cities and counties, large school districts do not generally spend more per student than small districts.

This supplementary report was prepared by John Yunker (project manager) and Joel Narducci.

Sincerely yours,

James R. Nobles
Legislative Auditor

Roger Brooks
Deputy Legislative Auditor
